Infield Boot After 2 Griff Hits Ends American League's Longest '46 Tilt

Other Scores
Detroit, 16-3; Boston, 2-9.
New York, 8; Cleveland, 4.
Philadelphia at St. Louis, night.

By Al Costello
Post Reporter

Chicago, June 26.—Bob Kennedy, White Sox third baseman, came to the rescue of the Nats today. Misplaying an easy grounder from the bat of Stan Spence in the sixteenth inning on what would have been the third out Kennedy's untimely boot permitted Sid Hudson to score from third with the winning run that snapped a three-game losing streak and enabled the Nats to win the longest American League game of the year, 4-3.

The Nats had been having their troubles with Joe Haynes and Frank Papish, who divided the job equally, each hurling eight innings. Three of the four runs the Nats tallied were unearned—two in the first and the big one in the sixteenth.

Although they clubbed out 16 hits it remained for Kennedy's boot to give the Nats the game that prevented them from dropping to the .500 mark and also record for them their fourth victory in 11 starts in the rugged West.

Hudson Gets Credit

Dutch Leonard, Mickey Haefner and Sid Hudson took c:ie of the moundwork for the Nats, each performing well indeed. Leonard, seeking his seventh win, relinquished nine hits and the three Chisox runs in 10 innings before going out for a pinch hitter in the eleventh. Haefner hurled two perfect innings, the eleventh and twelfth, and Hudson, who eventually hung up his fifth victory to reach the .500 mark, gave up only one single in the final four frames, retiring 12 of the last 13 White Sox who faced him. From the ninth to the sixteenth, the Sox could only get one measly hit.

Deadlocked in a tense battle as the sixteenth opened, the Nats started their victory when Hudson himself singled to center with one out. Grace flied out, but Buddy Lewis ripped a sharp single to right that permitted Hudson to reach third.

Then it was that Spence tapped his easy bounder to Kennedy, who manhandled it beautifully for the Nats as the slim crowd of 4174 gasped in horror when the ball rolled into left field and Hudson delightedly danced across the plate.

Only Series Win

It was the only victory for the Nats over the Chisox in this three-game series, and it also marked the Nats' ninth win in 12 games with the Chicagoans.

The Nats scored those two very much unearned but very welcome runs in the first on the strange mixture of a two-base error, two hit batters, an intentional pass and an infield single.

With one away, Lewis pulled in at second when Platt dropped his lazy fly. Spence was hit by a pitch and both moved up when Vernon bounced out. Travis was intentionally walked to load the bases. Priddy beat out a hit over second, scoring Lewis before Hitchcock took a Haynes pitch in the short ribs to force Spence over the dish. Evans flied out to leave three stranded.

The Sox got those back pronto. With one down, Appling and Wright singled and both advanced when Leonard cut loose with a wild pitch. Trosky fanned but Platt singled to left to score Appling and Wright.

Veteran Who Shot Wife's Lover Gets Suspended Term

New York, June 26 (AP).—Army Capt. Archie Miller, 28, who pleaded guilty to manslaughter in the fatal shooting of a fellow officer rather than to have his estranged wife testify, received a suspended sentence today in General Sessions.

Capt. Miller

"It is a sad day for a devoted husband with red blood in his veins not to do something about a situation like this when he comes home and finds his home violated," Judge John A. Mullen told the Bellevue, Tex., veteran of three years' overseas service.

"I am going to give you a suspended sentence and place you on probation. I realize the provocation you had. . . ."

Miller was indicted after Capt. Eugene Dale, 27, survivor of the Bataan Death March, was shot last December 27 in the apartment of Miller's estranged wife, a former Powers model, from Jonesboro, N. C.

President's Letter to Senator Tobey

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

May 29, 1946

Dear Senator Tobey:

Replying to your telegram of May twenty-third, in which you say you are making a "Macedonian cry", it seems to me that you have been making Macedonian cries or yells ever since I have been in The White House. For what reason I never could understand.

Your unwarranted attacks on Mr. Pauley almost ruined a good public servant. Between you and Mr. Ickes you have made it exceedingly difficult for me to get good men to fill the necessary places in the Government. You are still continuing your Macedonian cries and I hope you will get a lot of pleasure out of them.

As far as your food situation is concerned, the Secretary of Agriculture has been instructed to meet the situation as well as he possibly can both in New England and the far Northwest, where the situation is exactly the same. It is a matter of chickens or people and, if it comes to the decision as to which should be kept from starving naturally, if I make the decision, it will be the people. I don't know whether that will please you or not, but I hope it will.

Sometime when you have reached a cooling-off period, I'd be glad to talk with you about the whole situation.

Sincerely yours,

Harry.

Honorable Charles W. Tobey

House Decides To Cite Lamont For Contempt

Others Identified As Friends of Russia Involved in Action

The House voted 240 to 85 yesterday to cite Corliss G. Lamont, chairman of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, for contempt of a congressional committee.

Lamont failed to answer a subpena served by the House Committee on Un-American Activities directing him to produce the books and records of his organization.

The Justice Department will be required to institute contempt proceedings against Lamont in the Federal Courts as a result of House indorsement of the committee's citation.

Lamont was one of three men the committee asked the House to cite. The others were Richard Morford, council director of the American-Soviet group, and George Marshall, of the National Federation for Constitutional Liberty.

The House recessed for the day without taking up the remaining two citations.

Court Fight Planned

New York, June 26 (INS).—Corliss Lamont, certified for contempt of a Congressional committee, declared tonight he would fight the Congressional action in the courts.

Lamont, chairman of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, declared:

"It i. the aim of the council, in its reasoned opposition to the Wood-Rankin Committee, to establish once and for all the right of Americans under our Constitution to work freely for American-Soviet understanding and friendship."

Lamont termed the issue "a test case important to all individuals and organizations active in the field of education and public relations."

Food as Aid to Peace

Miss Marie Berger, one of the first persons from this country to go to Greece with UNRRA, will show a film entitled "Food—Secret of Peace" tonight at 8 at the Mt. Olivet Methodist Church, Glebe rd. and N. 16th st. The public is invited.

Truman Needs A Cooling Off, Tobey Replies

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Senator Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.), puzzled target of a blistering letter from the President, told the Senate yesterday that maybe Harry Truman needs a "cooling off period."

The Republican who has supported the Administration in the Senate more consistently than any other was lashed by the President for the one time that he missed.

Tobey replied softly but firmly to the President's tart charge that his "Macedonian cries or yells" against Edwin W. Pauley had discouraged "good men" from entering the Government.

Suggestions Offered

He suggested:

1. That the President's statement "will not stand inspection," since there was "never a time, after the appointment was challenged, that Mr. Pauley could have been confirmed."

2. That the Pauley episode should cause the President to send nominations to the Senate "on a plane so high that confirmation would be assured before the appointment is sent down."

Tobey took the floor to read the letter, which "amazed and troubled me," after newspaper publication of the substance of it. He told the Senate it was "not the type of letter which a Senator would expect to receive from one holding the high office of President."

Later Tobey told newsmen he had never "asked a favor" of the President before the Truman-provoking "Macedonian cry" for grain for New England poultrymen.

Tobey said he felt "hurt," but would continue to support the Truman program "through this period of crisis, just as (Senator) George Aiken (R., Vt.), and I told him we would when he entered the White House. I am no Indian giver. And I don't hold grudges."

Tobey, who came to the Administration's rescue in the OPA conference by casting the deciding vote for retention of food controls, reminded newsmen that it was his

Poles Give U.S. Data on Pacts; Loan Restored

America Calls Off 50-Million-Dollar Credit's Suspension

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

The United States Government has called off its suspension of a $50,000,000 credit to Poland for the purchase of American surplus property abroad.

Announcement that the credit had been restored was made by the State Department yesterday, after the Communist-dominated government of Poland had agreed to furnish this Government with the texts of its trade agreements with Russia, Hungary, Rumania, Sweden, Norway and Denmark.

Poland's policy of secrecy about these trade pacts was one of three reasons why Acting Secretary of State Dean Acheson, on May 10, suspended the $50,000,000 credit. The other reasons were (1) the Warsaw government's failure to publicize American-Polish negotiations for a total of $90,000,000 in credits, and (2) apparent censorship of American press dispatches from Poland.

The State Department said yesterday that Polish provisional government har recently published the notes concerning the credits, had clarified the question of censorship, and had assured Ambassador Arthur Bliss Lane that the texts of the economic agreements would be furnished to Washington.

The announcement came four days in advance of a referendum in Poland, one in which the Poles will vote on the form of their parliament. State Departments officials said the timing of yesterday's announcement had no bearing on this referendum.

A contract has been drawn up for a 40-million-dollar loan to Poland from the Export-Import Bank. However, it has not been signed, and won't be until American officials are satisfied that Poland can pay back the money. In this connection, Poland's trade agreeemnts with Russia and other countries are important.

They will be studied to determine two things: 1. Whether Poland intends to conduct her trade so as to be able to repay foreign loans; 2, To make certain that Poland does not intend to discriminate against American commerce.

The American surplus property that Poland is to get with the 50-million-dollar credit will be used to help rebuild the devastated country.

Isolation an Issue?

Nye Defeated, Langer Ahead In North Dakota Primaries

Fargo, N. D., June 26 (AP).—North Dakota today had apparently rejected one U. S. Senate candidate long identified with isolationist policies, but a second with the same leanings took over the lead in a close race for the Republican senatorial nomination.

Former Senator Gerald P. Nye appeared decisively beaten by Senator Milton R. Young (R., N. D.), on the basis of returns from about half the State's precincts in Tuesday's special short-term Senate election. Nye, who served 19 years in the Senate before his defeat in 1844, ran a poor third to Young, a farmer from Derlin, N. D., and P. W. Lanier, jr., of Fargo, the Democratic candidate and a World War II veteran.

United States Senator William Langer (R., N. D.), meanwhile, had forged ahead of J. B. Bridston, Grand Forks insurance man, in Langer's fight for renomination in the State's primary, held Tuesday with the special Senate election.

Langer, who gained steadily as rural returns began to come in, led Bridston 39,501 to 37,296 with 1264 of 2256 precincts in.

Young's majority continued to mount. With 1191 precincts in, he had 47,246 votes to 24,136 for Lanier and 12,674 for Nye.

Nye said in a statement conced-

House Battles Over District Budget Today

Teachers' Pay Bill To Be Considered By Senate Group, McCarran Reveals

By Edward Ryan
Post Reporter

Major Capitol decisions are slated today on more Federal money for the District, and more pay for its employes.

In the House an all-out battle is scheduled over the Senate proposal to boost the Federal contribution to the District from six million dollars approved earlier by the House to 10 million dollars for the 1947 fiscal year.

Morning meetings of both Capitol District Committees will be faced with proposals for boosting the salaries of Washington school teachers.

Pay Bill On Slate

Senator McCarran (D., Nev.) announced late yesterday he will present to the Senate District Committee, meeting at 10 a. m., a revised teacher's pay increase bill calling for boosts ranging from $550 to $950. The bill represents a combination of his own plan, with increases from $100 to $500, and of the plan sponsored by District officials and school personnel for a flat $450 increase.

In the House group, Representative Beall (R., Md.) said he plans to ask an early hearing on the bill he introduced in the House yesterday calling for a flat $450 increase in school salaries. He said he will make his request formally when the House committee meets at 9:30 a. m. to study other bills.

These include a proposed five-day week for Washington financial institutions and a plan to give the District register of wills five deputies in place of his present two. House District Chairman McMillan (D., S. C.) said the meeting would be brief, since the House meets at 10 a. m.

To Weigh Nomination

Acting Chairman Hoey (D., N. C.) said that the main purpose of the House District session is to review the nomination of Public Utilities Commission Chairman James Flanagan for a new three-year terem. He added that the committee may follow the Flanagan hearing with an executive session to consider a 14 per cent salary pay boost for Washington police and firemen and a plan to continue Washington's day care centers with District financial help as part of the public school system.

Meanwhile, Capitol decisions on Washington affairs yesterday included these developments:

1. Unanimous approval for the proposed new pair of four-lane highway bridges over the Potomac was voted by the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee. The committee's action probably will lead to speedy House approval for the bill, Representative Holmes (R., Mass.), ranking committee member, predicted.

Barge Funds Provided

2. A $75,000 fund to build a new Watergate concert barge was forwarded to the White House for approval. The barge fund was part of the Interior Department Appropriation Bill, given final congressional approval when the Senate adopted a conference agreement on the bill. Park officials had asked $150,000 for the new barge.

3. A probable setback for Washington's postwar National Guard was revealed by a House Appropriations Committee decision trimming a requested appropriation by two thirds. The guard fund was trimmed from $105,000 to $35,000, and forwarded to the House floor with $46,000 in other funds for Dis-

A 5-year-old boy was injured fatally and another, 6, was hurt critically yesterday afternoon as the city's traffic toll rose to 28.

Leroy Thompson, 1133 7th st. se., died of a fractured skull a short time after he was struck by a car in the 500 block of L st. se. Witnesses said the boy darted from a playground directly into the path of an auto driven by Earl E. Hughes, 36, of 1344 Dexter terr. se.

Fifteen minutes later, Angelo Basas, 6, of 1120 8th st. se., suffered head injuries when he walked into the side of a moving streetcar at 7th st. and Pennsylvania ave. se. The operator of the trolley was Tex Willis, 46, of 1701 Swann st. nw.

Anna Butler, 13, of 816 Potomac ave. se., who was crossing the street with the Bacas boy, said they were waiting for the car to pass, but that the boy stepped into it. He is in Providence Hospital.

Another child, 8 - year - old Charles Williams, 1104 2d st. se., suffered minor injuries when he was struck by a car at 4th and L sts. se. The driver of the car was Stevens Campbell, 29, of Falls Church, Va.

Fireboats Still Fight Ferry Terminal Fire

New York, June 26 (U.P.).—The two million dollars fire, which destroyed a Staten Island Ferry Terminal and took the lives of three persons, still burned today, more than 24 hours after the first alarm.

More than 200 firemen were overcome by smoke, and 18 persons were hospitalized, suffering from burns and shock.

Twenty engine companies, five hook and ladder companies and six fireboats fought flames throughout the day.

Top Aides Say:

Bowles to Resign OPA Post If Conference Revisions Stand

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Economic Stabilizer Chester Bowles will quit his job if the conference committee extending OPA now before the Senate comes law, it was definitely stated yesterday.

That Bowles' mind is made up not to try to enforce the measure as now drawn, was made clear by his top aides at the OES last night, where Bowles resturned from an afternoon conference with President Truman.

One of Bowles' top assistants remarked that 'it is a safe bet" that Bowles would resign. Such action would be in line with Bowles' remarks at a recent press conference on the pending measure.

At that conference Bowles said that the bill then contained "booby-trap amendments that an honest man wouldn't attempt to administer." Most of the amendments he objected to are in the final draft passed by the House and now before the Senate.

Another recent defeat for Bowles was seen in the announcement yesterday that the retail price of coffee would soon be increased from 3 to 4 cents a pound. This increase follows a boost of 2.075 cents a pound to coffee importers.

The coffee market recently has been supported by gradually decreasing subsidy. In April the subsidy to growers was 5 cents a pound. In May, 4, and in June 3 cents a pound.

Reports yesterday were that Bowles wished to meet the present situation by an increase in the subsidy to 5 cents rather than by a price increase, but was thwarted by refusal of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to advance the money for the subsidy.

The RFC took the position that it would be out of place to grant a subsidy only four days in advance of the expiration of authority to do so, and also in the face of impending changes in the bill permitting subsidies.

An OES official last night pointed out that the coffee boost may increase the cost of coffee in some public eating houses from 5 to 10 cents a cup. Such an increase would be possible under provisions of the recent changes in OPA rules governing restaurant prices.

In return for the price boost, Bowles said, the Brazilian government has assured the United States of steps to maintain a "satisfactory

House Battle Looms on Aid To Russia

'Free Press' Backers Would Ban UNRRA Funds for Soviet

By the Associated Press

The House Appropriations Committee set the stage yesterday for a fight over further war relief aid to Russia by recommending an additional 465-million-dollar grant to UNRRA.

House "world free press" advocates promptly served notice they will seek to block use of any of the money in two Soviet republics because of Moscow's refusal to permit American correspondents to report on UNRRA's Russian operations without censorship.

They will make their move tomorrow when the House debates the bill—part of a $726,571,909 deficiency appropriation measure—under procedure permitting wide latitude in the consideration of amendments.

Brown May Lead Move

Representative Clarence Brown (R., Ohio) who sought unsuccessfully in the past to deny UNRRA aid to countries refusing free access to American correspondents, indicated he would offer the "none-for-Russia" amendment.

"I'm thinking about it," Brown told reporters.

"Someone will offer an amendment of that nature," said Representative Rankin (D., Miss.), adding that he will "support any amendment prohibiting the spending of money in countries which won't let us find out what it's being spent for."

Representative Taber of New York, top Republican on the Appropriations Committee, said he "might" offer the amendment himself.

The House once approved a ban against expenditure of any UNRRA funds in countries exercising censorship against American correspondents. The Senate, however, refused to go along and the two branches finally compromised on a requirement that the President do what he could to have the censorship bans lifted in the case of corresopndents reporting on UNRRA activities.

Russia Stands Aloof

The President reported to Congress Monday that all nations receiving UNRRA aid, except the Soviet republics of the Ukraine and Byelo-Russia, have agreed to give visiting reporters access to UNRRA news.

The new UNRRA fund, if approved, would complete appropriation of the United States' current commitment of $2,700,000,000 to the world relief agency. America has provided 70 per cent of UNRRA's funds.

Meanwhile, a controversial report urging a stiffer attitude toward

Big 4 Meeting Rejects Soviet Trieste Plan

Yugoslav Control Or Dual Sovereignty Proposed by Russia

Paris, Thursday, June 27 (AP).—The Foreign Ministers Conference has rejected a Russian proposal to place disputed Trieste either under dual sovereignty or under Yugoslav sovereignty as an autonomous district, authoritative circles said today.

Paris, June 26 (AP).—The Foreign Ministers' Conference was called into session tonight to discuss Italian peace treaty issues including the key question of Trieste—the Adriatic city claimed by both Italy and Yugoslavia.

An American informant said the night session was scheduled at the request of Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov. The call came after the French press printed reports that Molotov was expecting an important message from Moscow which might bring a surprise development in the Trieste issue.

Earlier, vigorous American opposition balked an attempt by Molotov to write a special commercial status for Russia into the peace treaties for the Balkan nations.

American sources said Molotov had sought unsuccessfully to include in the Romanian treaty a provision which would have exempted neighboring states, including Russia, from clauses requiring Romania to give all the Allies equal commercial status.

Agreement was reached on provisions requiring Romania to make restitution of looted Allied property but permitting her to negotiate directly and individually with interested nations.

The ministers shelved a three-point proposal by British Foreign Secretary Bevin on Danube navigation when Molotov asked for time to study it.

A Yugoslav spokesman in an interview here said that his government never would sign a peace treaty with Italy which did not accept the Yugoslav "solution" of the Trieste issue.

He said the French compromise was not acceptable.

Italy has announced through her ambassador to Paris that she will not sign away her claim to Trieste.

Navy Request to Buy Md. Land Approved

The House Appropriations Committee yesterday approved a Navy request to purchase two improved properties in Silver Spring, Md., to be used as an ordnance laboratory and a research annex.

Approval was given to purchase 5300 square feet of land at $9250 for an ordnance laboratory and 16,046 square feet at $30,000 for an ordnance research annex. Naval Ordnance officials would not disclose exact location of the properties pending further negotiations.

Gun Injures Third Boy

Brothers, 3 and 4 Years Old, Wounded in Pistol Accident

Two brothers, 3 and 4 years old, were wounded yesterday when a .32 caliber Belgian automatic pistol was discharged in their home at 1330 G st. ne.

In another accidental shooting, a 13-year-old boy was wounded in the leg.

Police had two versions of the shooting in which James Chambers, 3, and his brother, Robert, 4, were slightly wounded. Robert was shot under the right shoulder and James in the upper left arm. One version said an older brother, Bunny, 5, was holding the gun when it discharged.

x Another said that Bernard Given, 15, of 408 Oklahoma ave. ne., who was taking care of the children in the absence of their working parents, held the pistol.

James Ryan, 13, of 1026 Irving st. ne., was shot in the leg while playing in a vacant lot at 1100 Neal st. ne. Police said Ryan was wrestling with George Pettas, 14, of 1141 Neal st. ne.., over possession of a .38 caliber revolver which Pettas said he had found.

War Agency to Close

President Truman yesterday ordered the termination of the War Relocation Authority, effective June 30. The agency handled the housing of Japanese aliens who were removed from the West Coast.

Sen. O'Daniel Threatens To Filibuster OPA to Death

He Needs Help to Talk 3 Days, Texan Admits; Senate Exchanges Words for Six Hours

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The Senate talked away six of the remaining hours of OPA's existence yesterday as Administration leaders pressed for action on the compromise conference measure to extend the agency's life.

Today the Senate is faced with the threat of a filibuster by Senator W. Lee (Pappy) O'Daniel (D., Tex.), who announced his intention of talking beyond the Sunday midnight deadline when the agency expires.

O'Daniel, who admitted it would be impossible to talk for three days without help, told reporters he still hoped some of his colleagues would come to his rescue, although he had no promise of assistance.

Terming OPA, "unconstitutional, un-American, communistic, and unnecessary," O'Daniel declared it would be "a refreshing thing for the American people to wake up Monday morning under the American form of government."

Difficulty for Truman

The Texas Senators' colleagues did not take his filibuster threat very seriously, although they pointed out that if he talked for very long it might become difficult for President Truman to veto the compromise bill.

Some of the President's top advisers, like Stabilization Director Chester Bowles, have been urging a veto so the President could ask Congress for a speedy simple resolution to extend the agency in its present form.

Since the agency will die without congressional action by midnight Sunday, prolonged debate would interfere with any such action.

Barkley Sees Dim Prospect

Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley (D., Ky.) led the fight for the compromise bill. He said:

"In my judgment if it is rejected the chances of any price controls beyond next Sunday are extremely dim."

Senate Minority Whip Kenneth Wherry (R., Nebr.) attempted to rally enough strength to send the report back to conference to have all price controls on meat and livestock lifted at midnight Sunday.

The Republican whip told reporters, however, that he had been unable to muster sufficient strength to carry his point.

Wherry Fears Violence

Tempers flared as Senators ground through the pros and cons of the extension bill.

Wherry insisted that another year of price control will bring "actual violence in this country."

When Senator Joseph F. Guffey (D., Pa.) protested that the Republican whip was always opposing Administration measures, Wherry snapped back that Guffey was "just a rubber stamp."

The Wherry-Guffey exchange resulted in a commotion in the "Senate chamber and the galleries.

Bidault Regime Gets Tremendous Vote of Confidence

Paris, June26 (U.P.).—The National Assembly gave President-Premier Georges Bidault and his coalition government an overwhelming 514-4 vote of confidence today after he promised stern economic measures and an increase in workers' purchasing power but warned that wage increases would not go beyond 15 per cent.

The provisional president made clear his position regarding the American loan to France.

Bidault promised the assembly that the loan would be brought before it for consideration "as soon as practicable." He said it would not affect the value of French money, which would remain at its present vallue of 119 francs to a United States dollar.

Thousands Purged By Russia for Fraud

Crimea, Chicken Tartars 'Shipped To Other Areas'

London, June 26 (U.P.).—Russia announced a sweeping purge of top-ranking industrial executives on fraud charges today and divulged that untold thousands of people in the liquidated Crimean and Chechen-Ingush republics had been "transported to other areas" for mass disloyalty during the war.

Moscow newspapers devoted three columns to an announcement that industrial executives all over the Soviet Union—as far east as Tomsk, Siberia—were being prosecuted on fraud and graft charges.

Disclosure of the mass resettlement of disloyal peoples in two former autonomous republics was made before the presidium of the Russian supreme Soviet or parliament.

Liquidated Quickly

The Crimean and Chechen-Ingush republics were quietly liquidated more than seven months ago, and it was known that the reason was that many of the population aided the German invaders at a critical time in the war. Many of the men turned up as soldiers in the German army later.

Today's disclosure came in a statement made to the presidium by its secretary, M. M. Bakhmurov.

"Many Chechens and Crimean Tartars, instigated by German agents, joined volunteer detachments set up by the Germans and jointly with German troops waged an armed struggle against Red army units," Bakhmurov reported. "Following German instructions they set up saboteur gangs to fight against the Soviet power in the rear.

"The bulk of the Chechen-Ingush and Crimean population did not offer opposition to these traitors.

Tartars Placed Elsewhere

"In view of this, Chechens and Crimean Tartars were transported to other districts of the Soviet Union where they were allotted land and rendered the necessary state assistance in economic settlement."

Bakhmurov's report was given in a dispatch of the official Russian news agency Tass.

Though there was no mystery about the reason for the liquidation of the republics, this was the first Russian admission of mass disloyalty in them, and the first news of the drastic transportation program. How many may have been executed as traitors there was no telling.

Both areas were of vital importance at the darkest time of the war for Russia, when the Germans after reaching the Crimea on the Black Sea raced on to reach the Caucasus oil fields of which the Chechen-Ingush republic was a part.

A United Press Moscow dispatch told of the big industrial purge.

Production Figures Faked

Charges included faking production figures, receiving illegal bonuses, misappropriating factory funds and converting State property to personal use.

Defendants include factory managers and directors, engineers and accountants.

In seven specific cases cited, defendants were the manager and production chief of the big Diesel motors program, managers of a coal mine, the chief engineer, manager and accountant of the Dnieperpetrovsk metallurgical equipment plant, the manager of the Katek automobile works, the managers of a big Siberian meat and milk supply company, the manager and chief engineer of the ministry of aviation's construction trust No. 11 and the chief accountant and a department head of the agriculture ministry's machinery factory No. 70.

The fact that several head men in some cases indicated that there were factory conspiracies of some size to cheat the government.

"The ministry of state control examined the financial and economic activities of a number of enterprises, institutions and organizations," the Moscow newspaper announcements said.

"The examination disclosed facts of illegal receiving of bonuses, use of bonus funds not as intended and also the fact that some persons misappropriated money and objects of value."

Plans Wanted

FBI Informed On Data Given Soviet Agent

Seattle, June 26 (AP).—The Canadian-Russian "spy scare" this spring halted all connection between Russian Navy Lieut. Nicolai Gregorovich Redin and the Seattle shipyard worker who furnished him with plans and specifications of the destroyer tender Yellowstone, Assistant District Attorney Allan Pomeroy today told the jury trying Redin on espionage and conspiracy indictments.

Pomeroy's opening statement in District Judge Lloyd L. Black's courtroom related that Herbert Kennedy, Scottish-born Seattle shipyard worker and British subject, went to the Federal Bureau of Investigation last October, 1945, after Redin had hinted his interest in confidential warship plans.

Pomeroy added that Kennedy was in touch almost daily with the FBI during the period he furnished Redin with plans and received cash payments therefor.

Listens Intently

Redin, trim in black and gold dress uniform, sat with head cocked intently to the statements.

Once the Russian naval officer allowed a smile to flit across his face as Pomeroy told the jurors that he could not divulge to them all the details of the Yellowstone plans "as they are still somewhat confidential." Redin's attractive wife accompanied him to court.

Pomeroy said the middle-aged Kennedy first met Redin when the lieutenant picked him up outside the Todd Pacific shipyard one evening. En route home, Redin explained his wife was lonely because they knew one one here, and invited Kennedy to bring his wife and visit them.

Pomeroy said they continued social calls, but after Kennedy made his first delivery of plans to Redin and received $50 for them, the Redins became "more demanding" and their expressed attitude toward the United States changed noticeably. Pomeroy emphasized that Kennedy acceded to Redin's demands only after notifying the FBI.

Wanted Radar Plans

Pomeroy said Redin demanded Kennedy obtain data on the Yellowstone's steering system, auxiliary machinery, trial system and particularly its radar and fire control system and how it defended itself against attack by Kamikaze planes.

The radar and fire-control data never were delivered by Kennedy, Pomeroy's recital indicated, though, Redin first offered $1000 for it.

When "the Canadian incident" attracted attention the two men agreed not to meet again for at least three weeks.

ing Young's victory that he was "thoroughly surprised" at the margin by which he apparently was defeated. He charged Republicans voted for Young "in fright" over the possibility of a victory by Lanier.

Nye was, in fact, seeking to regain the Senate seat he lost in 1944 to the late John Moses, Democrat, for Moses died in office last year and Young was apponited interim Senator to succeed him.

The rejection of Nye and the possible victory of Langer, political observers said, showed that the issue to North Dakota voters was not clear-cut isolationism-internationalism, despite identification of these two men with isolationist policies.

Recalled Langer's Vote

Langer's opponents attacked his leadership of the Nonpartisan League faction of the Republican Party, his turbulent career as Governor of North Dakota in the 30s, and his Senate record since 1940.

Bridston, however, candidate of the league's opposing faction, the Republican Organizing Committee, frequently mentioned Langer's vote against the United Nations.

Accused of sponsoring "trivial" legislation in the Senate, Langer has replied that he effectively champions the cause of the common man.

North Dakota's two Representatives in Congress, William Lemke and Charles R. Robertson, continued to gain over three World War II veterans in the contest for the GOP nominations. Lemke was endorsed by the ROC and Robertson by the league.

ROC Governor Fred G. Aandhal, completing his first term, seemed assured of renomination by a large margin over two opponents.

volume of coffee exports to this country."

The present three-cents a pound subsidy given importers will continue providing new OPA regulations, now pending before Congress, maintains the Federal subsidy authority.

The coffee increase has long been urged by the State Department. The announcement of the price change was made by the State Department coincidentally with OPA, OES and the Agriculture Department.

The ruling lifts quotas formerly imposed upon coffee importers and sets no time or quantity limitation on import volume.

A wag in OES pointed out that coffee is the third step in raising the price of beverage drinking. Milk was raised one cent a quart recently; beer one cent a bottle this week, and a price increase in cocoa is expected within a week.

Beetle Control Program Started In Prince Georges

The Japanese beetle control program in Prince Georges County is now underway, according to County Agent P. E. Clark.

Leasing stations have been designated and traps are being distributed throughout the county under the supervision of Fred Wyvill, of the county agent's office in Marlboro.

Leasing stations will be operated by Lee Leisher at 700 Main st., Laurel, by Robert Alexander and Charles Richard behind the county service building, Hyattsville; by Felicitas A. Childs at 5627 Oxon Hill rd., Oxon Hill; at Sellner's Filling Station, District Heights and at Ripple's Supply Co., Clinton.

In addition to traps the county agent will also release parasites and distribute the "milky white" disease. Information on other spraying methods will be supplied on request by Clark and Wyvill.

In answer to a reporter's question as to what business the three men were in, Jacobson answered humorously: "Kaplan sells shirts, I sell furnishings, and the Rabbi sells notions"

"maximum employment" proposal that also saved Mr. Truman's full employment bill.

He led the fight, on the Republican side of the aisle, for the Administration's Bretton Woods monetary agreement, extension of the reciprocal trade act, and the British loan.

To the Senate, Tobey merely said that the President's reference to the Pauley incident was "regrettable" and "unfortunate," adding:

"The hearings lasted for five or six weeks and the record speaks for itself. Mr. Pauley repudiated his testimony at least five times while under oath, on different occasions, and his testimony on that record constituted in my judgment an indictment of Mr. Pauley as being unfit for the post of Undersecretary of the Navy. . . .

"Realizing that he could not be confirmed, Mr. Pauley asked that his nomination be withdrawn, to which the President assquiesced. I assumed the matter had been closed, but the President, replying to a Senator who was seeking help for his constituents, saw fit to make the motivation of his reply."

Veteran Honored At Maryland U.

Robert K. Bechtold of Laurel, Md., University of Maryland junior and Army veteran, has been named the outstanding junior agricultural student on the College Park campus.

Bechtold won the Danforth leadership training scholarship, which includes two weeks at the Danforth Purina experimental farms in Kansas City and a tour of the city's markets and stock yards, to be followed by two weeks at the Danforth American Youth Foundation Leadership Training Camp at Shelby, Mich., from August 12 to 25.

Charlton Named 'Flying Steward' at N. H. Park

Salem, N. H., June 26 (U.P.).—R. Norman Charlton, a Canadian flying ace in World War I, today was named the first flying steward in horse racing history.

A well known racing official, Charlton will be in the helicopter which has been purchased by Rockingham Park for use during the meeting which opens July 8.

Mount Rainier Taxicab Stand Plans Dropped

Plans for establishment of a taxicab feeder stand on Rhode Island ave., Mount Rainier, opposite the Capital Transit Co. bus and trolley terminal, have been abandoned by the city council, it was revealed yesterday.

The stand, according to original plans, would have held up to 10 cabs to feed into the three-cab stand on the opposite side of the street, south of the trolley terminal. The three-cab stand is often occupied by four cabs, with the last vehicle in line protruding into the intersection.

Rhode Island ave. property owners protested allotting curb parking space for the feeder cab stand. The present stand will hereafter be restricted to three vehicles, officials said.

Degnan Kidnap Suspect Held For Chicago Police

Phoenix, Ariz., June 26 (U.P.).—Richard R. Thomas, 42-year-old former convict who recently was convicted of rape of his 13-year-old daughter, today insisted that he was the long-sought kidnap slayer of Suzanne Degnan although Chicago police said there was a number of discrepancies in his confession.

He was held in jail until Chicago police can come here to question him.

His wife, who had him arrested on the rape charge, said "he had been mixed up in kidnapings and extortions before."

Hospital Plans Holiday Decoratio

Plans have been made by the Prince Georges General Hospital Guild to observe each holiday with appropriate decorations to cheer the patients.

Mrs. L. C. Rosenkrans, Mrs. Irving Brown, Mrs. T. H. Keiper and Mrs. C. F. Orton have been named to the holiday decorations committee which will function on July 4, the opening date for this year's program. The guild meetings will be discontinued for the summer, although the various committees will continue to function.

Russia and Italy was approved for official release yesterday by the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

The report was drafted by a subcommittee of four after a European trip and portions of it had been made public before its consideration by the full committee. This led to disputes among committee members.

Chairman Bloom (D., N. Y.) told reporters the full committee approved its publication as a subcommittee document without considering whether the views expressed should be approved.

A major portion dealt with Soviet-American relations. One suggestion was that Premier Stalin and President Truman meet as soon as possible.

Other recommendations about Russia included:

1. "Immediate abandonment of any semblance of appeasement in our own negotiations and relations with Russia."

2. "That the over-all objective of complete reciprocity with Russia be kept in mind in all our dealings with that country."

3. "As an integral part of our foreign policy a definite and unequivocal determination should be made as to the attitude and policy of the Russian government toward the countries now either absorbed by or under control of the USSR."

4. "Both the United States and Russia should encourage the increased exchange of people, products and publicity between their two countries."

The report declared our policy toward Italy has been "altogether too vapid, soft and indecisive."

It asserted that this has alienated the friendship of Greece, Yugoslavia and Hungary and that these nations are being driven toward Russia.

The report was drafted by Representatives Bolton (R., Ohio), Gordon (D., Ill.), Mundt (R., S. Dak.), and Ryter (D., Conn.), based on a trip they made last fall. Ryter and Gordon did not sign the section on Italy, because they left for home before that country was visited.

Siam Doctor Board Slated to Report King Assassinated

Bangkok, June 26 (AP).—A board of 18 physicians was reliably reported today prepared to submit a report suggesting that youthful King Ananda Mahidol of Siam was the victim of an assassin.

The report will be turned over to a commission investigating the strange circumstances of the monarch's death.

The 20-year-old King was found dead in his apartment June 9. The official report to Parliament the next day said he accidentally shot himself.

It was learned that medical evidence secretly studied by the commission supported the theory that Mahidol was the victim of an assassin.

Mrs. Ellmore, 89, Of Leesburg, Dies

Leesburg, Va., July 26 (Spl.).—Mrs. Sarah C. Ellmore, 89, of Leesburg, died this morning at the Paeonian Springs Rest Home, where she had been a patient for a month. Born in Nashville, Tenn., she had been a resident of Leesburg for many years. Her husband, Charles A. Ellmore, died 28 years ago. She was a member of St. John's Catholic Church.

Mrs. Ellmore is survived by five daughters—Mrs. Thomas J. Flangan of Clarksburg, W. Va.; Mrs. O. N. Ahalt, Lucketts; Mrs. C. W. Harvell, Wilmington, Del.; Miss Mary Ellmore, Leesburg, and Mrs. Roland Cochran, Sterling; two sons, Henry Ellmore, Wilmington, and Frank Ellmore, Leesburg; a sister, Mrs. Mary A. Crismond, Silver Spring, Md., and a brother, John P. Peacock of Clarksburg.

Requiem mass will be held at St. John's Catholic Church, Leesburg, at 11 o'clock Friday morning, with burial in the Leesburg Union Cemetery.

trict agencies, as part of the final 726-million-dollar deficiency bill.

Top House leaders yesterday mapped plans for today's floor showdown on the city's Federal contribution.

Cannon May Intervene

Representative Cannon (D., Mo.), chairman of the powerful House Appropriations Committee, may step into the floor fight on increasing the Federal grant to the District.

Cannon said he plans early today to study the evidence on increasing the Federal payment to the 10 million dollar grant for which Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) won unanimous Senate backing.

His review of the issue before the House acts, said Cannon, will decide whether he favors a part of the increase, all of it, or none. He said he may take the floor when the issue is debated.

Cannon conferred informally about the funds increase with Representative Dirksen (R., Ill), ranking member of the House District Appropriations Committee.

Compromise Seen

Dirksen said that some increase appeared to be needed in the Federal grant, but said that some compromise may be necessary in the Senate-approved fund. He would not predict what compromise figure might be suggested on the floor, possibly eight or nine million dollars.

A strong fight against any increase is expected to be led by Representative Taber (R., N. Y.), ranking minority member of the House Appropriations Committee, who proposed earlier cutting the grant to five million dollars.

Representative Flood (D., Pa.) said that he plans to make the formal motion for the House to agree with the Senate-approved Federal contribution. His motion will open the issue to an all-out battle.

Armory Uncertain

Reduction of the National Guard fund was ordered, Cannon said, because of uncertainty about when the guard will be able to take over its armory, now used by the Federal Bureau of Investigation for offices.

Guard plans are based on information that the armory would become available for training purposes on October 1.

Against this plan, however, House Appropriations members were advised that the October transfer was very unlikely, and that the National Guard would be lucky to get into its armory by July of next year.

The committee also wrote into the bill an order for the District to abandon its road-materials testing laboratory, unused for 10 years by standing orders of Congress, and turn over the equipment to the War Assets Administration.

WAA would sell the equipment as surplus property and turn back proceeds of the sale to the District.

Not Enough Money

The cut in Guard funds, according to Col. C. A. Dravo, adjutant general of the District Guard, would make it impossible to run the Armory—assuming it could be taken over in October.

"You just can't operate the Armory with that amount of money," he said. "You can't light it and heat it for that."

At the Capitol, however, it was pointed out that if the Guard actually gets into the Armory in October, it would be possible later to get a deficiency appropriation to run the Armory.

During testimony on the Guard plan made public yesterday, Chairman Cannon raised a question whether the postwar Guard would "be capable of military duty," or would be "a lot of has-beens and old fellows who would meet socially, but, in case of war, would be like the guard we had out at Bladensburg in 1814."

Colonel Dravo replied, "We are going to have an excellent force or nothing."

The Fairfax Chapter of the Red Cross yesterday issued an appeal for a living room table and chairs, a kitchen table and chairs, a single bed or cot and bureaus or dressing tables to aid in the rehabilitation of a family.

'Hunger' Drive Centers in U. S. Offices Today

An all-out effort for funds to fight famine is being asked of Federal employees tomorrow, on "Government Day."

Collections will be made in all Government agencies and money will be turned over to the Washington Food Conservation Committee to buy foods in bulk for shipment to famine-ridden areas overseas.

At a special meeting yesterday in the Commerce Department auditorium, Raymond F. Garrity, chairman of the Washington Food Conservation Committee, told approximately 300 Government representatives that every five seconds of every day, some one is dying of hunger, and that funds contributed to alleviate that hunger are desperately needed.

Conscience Is Quota

"There is no quota in this campaign," he declared. "The only quota any one will have is his own conscience."

Garrity reminded those who attended the session that conservation still is the first goal in the drive against famine.

"We must first conserve, then collect, then buy, then distribute," he declared.

Clifton E. Mack, director of the Treasury's procurement division and chairman of the Inter-Departmental Famine Relief Committee, presided at the meeting yesterday. He called for fullest cooperation from all agencies on "Government Day."

Maj. F. X. A. Eble, special assistant in the Treasury procurement and conservation liaison officer, said that office notices to all employes already had been sent out in the procurement division, reminding employes of "Government Day."

Make Out Checks to 'Hunger'

All funds collected in Government agencies will be sent to Treasury Procurement Division, which will turn them over to the Washington Food Conservation Committee. Checks representing such funds may be made out to "Hunger."

Garrity said yesterday that he expects contributions within the District, either through mail donations to Hunger, Washington, 4, D. C., or through contributions t one of the Hunger stations downtown, will total $50,000. "I hope," he added, "that Federal contributions will match that figure."

Others who spoke yesterday were Charles Cunningham, of the office of the Secretary of War, and Miss Mae Hoover of Government Services, Inc.

Wheat Figure Off By 17 Million Tons

Agriculture Reports Underestimated 1945 Shipments

The Department of Agriculture, in announcing yesterday that its goal of 225 million bushels of wheat for famine relief was within sight, admitted that famine countries would gain 17 million bushels of grain from the United States through errors in computing shipments.

This country set 400 million bushels of wheat as the goal for famine relief for the year from June, 1945, to June 30, 1946. In January, when the Nation made its commitment of 225 million bushels for the first six months of this year, reports to the Agriculture Department showed that 175 million bushels had been shipped in the last six months of 1945.

However, revised figures show that a total of 192 million bushels were shipped from June to December last year. The error in figuring last year's shipments was occasioned by delay and errors in ship loadings of "wheat equivalents," mainly flour. Whole grain shipments of wheat are made from only a few ports while flour shipments were loaded at practically every U. S. port, it was pointed out.

The department announced yesterday that shipments for the second ten days of June reached the amazing total of 477,000 long tons of wheat. This brought the total for the first 20 days of the month to 834,000 tons. At the present rate of shipments, the month's total is estimated at above 1.3 million tons.

The department also announced a program to relieve an acute shortage of household fats and oils in Southern and Western States during the next three months.

Reduced shipments of lard and fatback have created this shortage, the department says. Processors and distributors are being instructed to channel a larger proportion of shortening, salad and cooking oils to the affected areas.

Meanwhile good news was contained in the weekly weather and crop bulletin of the weather bureau. Favorable weather, with plenty of rain, is reported generally throughout the Nation.

UNRRA announced last night that its livestock shipping program for rehabilitation of war-scourged countries is now a year old.

"The first vessel of farm animals was dispatched from Baltimore for Greece in the last week of June, 1945," Fiorello LaGuardia, UNRRA director, said. "It had 336 heifers, 12 bulls and 375 horses aboard."

In the 12 months since UNRRA has sent more than 100,000 head of livestock to Yugoslavia, Greece, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Italy and China. Eighty-two thousand are work animals, and 20,000 dairy cattle. No meat animals were sent.

The Association of American Railroads informed Senator Reed (R., Kans.) yesterday that it was sending every car available into the Southwest to help move the bumper wheat crop now being harvested there.

Reed reported yesterday that 327 elevators along the Santa Fe, Rock Island and Union Pacific Railroad lines in Kansas were closed because they were filled and unable to get cars to move wheat.

New Yorkers Boo Browder On Return

Ne wYork, June 26 (U.P.).—Earl Browder, deposed head of the Communist Party in the United States, arrived by plane tonight from Moscow but maintained absolute silence on his much-discussed visit to the Soviet Union.

After spending almost an hour in customs, Browder posed briefly for photographers, then entered a private car and drove off to the booing of a small crowd at the terminal.

Browder's only comment on his Russian trip was to confirm that he had not seen Premier Josef Stalin.

Smiling at the large group of photographers, he said: "I am very happy to see you all again. No place but New York put on a show like this."

But his smile disappeared when the crowd began booing and one unidentified man shouted: "you big bum, you."

He did not comment on the treatment he received in Great Britain where officials placed him under surveillance because he did not have a British visa.

Capt. Cameron Robertson, pilot of the plane said it was his understanding that Browder was technically in his custody. He said he signed a paper certifying that Browder had boarded his airplane and was leaving England.

"It seems to me," Robertson said, "that the British wanted to get rid of him so they gave him to me and I signed for him."

Defense Sums Up As Rollins Trial Nears Completion

Annapolis, Md., June 26 (AP).—Mrs. Evelyn Baker Richman, attorney for chief steward, Walter W. Rollins, 46, Negro, on trial charged with stealing and embezzling liquor, gambling, scandalous conduct and adultery with a white woman, argued today that the prosecution had failed to prove its case beyond a reasonable doubt.

In presenting the defense summation before the court-martial for the chief, who was assigned to the North Severn Officers Club, Mrs. Richman contended that on every charge and specification there was reasonable doubt.

The two charges involving sexual offenses, Mrs. Richman contended were unproved. She relied on the testimony of John H. Poole, a Naval Academy civil engineer, that a hole about a ventilator did not permit a full view of Rollins' room.

It was through this hole in the wall that separated Rollins' room from the mess stewards' duty room that Curtis Carter, former Negro steward, said he saw Rollins alone with Mrs. Margaret A. Sima engaged in intimacies.

After Mrs. Richman's summation, the court adjourned until tomorrow (10 a. m.) when the prosecution's final reply will be heard.

THIS IS NO KIDNAPING—At Nashua, N. He didn't learn about it until he read the report in a newspaper seven hours later and then promptly explained to police. (We don't know whether Earle found the rattle or not)

Federal Officials Chicago Trip Linked With Capone Charges

Chicago, June 26 (U.P.).—A top-ranking official of the Internal Revenue Bureau, the agency that sent Al Capone to prison, arrived by plane from Washington today as police investigated charges that Capone still rules the Chicago underworld and the gambling rackets in other cities.

E. Riley Campbell of the Internal Revenue Bureau, conferred immediately with regional income tax officials and U. S. District Attorney J. Albert Woll.

It was believed that conferred about charges contained in a 25,000-word statement by James M. Ragen, sr., wealthy racing information tycoon, who claimed Capone still directs gambling rackets.

As the Federal officials met, Mayor Edward J. Kelly announced that Chicago police were "going in to clean gambling up."

Late today police released former State Senator Dan Serritella, who was picked up last night on Ragen's charge that he was a political "fixer" for Capone's syndicate.

In his statement, Ragen said that in 1934 the Capoe syndicate wanted to take over control of the race wires in New York. Ragen'es office was in New York City at that time. During the fight Federal authorities called in Willie Bioff and George Browne, who had muscled into control of the stage hands and movie operators' union.

Serritella came to him and said: "Is Brien McMahon friendly with the New York D. A.?"

(McMahon, now United States Senator from Connecticut, formerly was special assistant United States attorney in Chicago and at the time of the New York fight was a member of the law firm of Gallagher & Dean, which repreesnted Continental Press. Ragen was head of Continental Press.)

"I said, 'naturally. He was in charge of the criminal division for several years under Cummings.' (Former United States Attorney General Homer S. Cummings.)

"And I said, 'why', and he said, 'they are calling Bioff and Browne to the D. A.'s office and pumping them and we are wondering whether Brien McMahon promoted that'.

"I said, 'well, he would be an awful sucker if he didin't promote all he could to annoy you people, because if we go out of business he will go out on the retainer'."

Ragden did not clarify whether McMahon had anything to do with the case. Both Bioff and Browne were sent to prison for labor racketeering.

Physicians at Michael Reese Hospital said tonight that Regan was recovering from gunshot wounds but may lost the use of his right arm.

Sources close to Capone said Capone's mental condition was such as to prevent him from taking any part in business, legal or otherwise.

"Mild-Mannered Squire"

Miami, Fla., June 26 (AP).—Al Capone, the once dreaded "Scarface," was pictured today as a mild-manndered squire of Palm Island who wouldn't know a thing about the modren underworld.

The one-time overlord of Chicago rackets now spends his days dawdling with a tennis racket, aimlessly batting a ball into a net with childlike happiness, a source said.

Vegetarian Menu Spreads Over District

Housewives, hotels and restaurants here are turning to meatless menus to offset a meat shortage more critical than it was during the war.

The District's meat outlook yesterday continued "very black," industry spokesmen declared, while the National Association of Retail Meat Dealers reported that half the butcher shops of the whole country were closed down.

Robert J. Wilson, executive secretary of the Washington Restaurant Association, said yesterday, "we thought it was pretty bad during the war, when restaurants were struggling to get meat points, but we've never seen anything like this."

He said area restaurants "are doing every bit of improvising they can with vegetables and salads" to make the absence of meat on the menus less conspicuous. "Fortunately," he said, "seafood and fresh vegetables are very plentiful, and so far there's still some poultry around."

Joseph B. Danzansky, who represents the wholesale meat division of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, yesterday discounted reports that large quantities of black market meat are available here.

"Washington has always been a pretty 'clean city' insofar as black markets are concerned," he said. "The chances are good that what little meat is coming in here is probably legitimate."

On Capitol Hill tomorrow, the Nation's lawmakers will be better off for meat than most of Washington.

Although the Senate dining room served scrapple today, restaurant manager Derwin W. Darling said the Senators would find Tennessee ham and smoked sausage on the menu today.

The House dining room will do far better. William A. Brockwell, manager there, said the Representatives' menu would include braised beef—"top sirloin," he added—lamb stew, and spaghetti with meat sauce.

Arlingtonian Named To Red Cross Fund Post

Appointment of John L. Dismukes of Arlington, as assistant director of fund-raising for the Eastern Area of American Red Cross was announced yesterday in Alexandria by Area Manager Ramone S. Eaton.

Dismukes, who lives at 2110 Key blvd., has been with the Red Cross since 1942 and served overseas. Twice wounded, he was one of two Red Cross workers to receive the Honorary Infantryman's Badge in World War II, and he wears the Purple Heart and the European Theater Ribbon with three battle stars.

Swimming Pupils Urged to Try 'Flutter Kick' in Prone Glide

FREESTYLE CHAMP—Milton Michaelis of 3659 Minnesota ave. se., 17-year-old Junior National AAU Freestyle champion and winner of the national high school freestyle championship displays the form that won his titles. He kicks up a frothy wake

(Fourth of a Series)

When you've mastered the "flutter kick" so that you can feel an easy rhythm in the water with your legs, the next step urged by George DuBock is the prone glide-propulsive movement.

Streamlining your body atop the water as you did in the gliding-floating lesson, bring in the flutter kick and concentrate on propelling yourself through the water, face down, hands stretched out in front of you.

Push off from the bottom or side of the pool in waist-deep water and gradually stretch the distances you can move through the water. If you find yourself staying in one place, you may have one of the following faults:

1. Toes not extended outward.
2. Ankles not flexible or whipping.
3. Knees are bending.
4. Leg kick is too stiff.

Get back to perfecting that kick by hanging on to the side of the pool or stretching out with hands on the bottom of the pool or lake.

Too much effort cannot be given to perfecting the "flutter kick," according to DuBock. Work at the combination of the push-glide-kick until you know that you are ready to take up actual stroking and swimming through the water.

Bringing in the arm stroke is nothing to get excited about—in fact, DuBock advocates, as at the outset, first things first.

Walking into waist-deep water, push off, glide, kick and begin moving your arms dog-fashion—that is, crawl through the water with first one arm and then the other moving back and forth under your chest.

This involves actual swimming with your head out of the water and bringing in the timing you set out to learn in breath control.

Keepnig the muscles relaxed, practice the "dog fashion" stroke until you can selected a goal and swim to it easily. Increase it each day until you have developed your timing to a point where you not only can reach your goal but can turn around and swim back to the starting point.

The next step is developing your timing and learning the utilization of the arms in the graceful crawl stroke used by expert swimmers.

'Body of Headless Man' Proves That of Hog

Hagerstown, Md., June 26 (AP).—Detective Sergt. Wayne Sellman, sheriff's officers, the Washington County medical examiner and an undertaker rushed to a spot along the Potomac River after they received reports the body of a headless man had been found in the water.

The "headless man" turned out to be the skeleton of a ewll-grown hog.

Fredericksburg, Va., June 26 (Spl.).—Garnett Merriman, 49-year-old local Negro, was injured to an undetermined extent about 7:10 p. m. yesterday when he fell from a southbound passenger train on the R. F. & P. railway bridge here.

500 Acres Acquired For Baltimore Airport

Baltimore, June 26 (AP).—The Baltimore Aviation Commission has purchased more than 500 of the 1000 acres of land needed for construction of the new Baltimore airport near Friendship Church in Anne Arundel County.

Maj. Gen. Julian A. Schley, commission director, announced the land had been bought for $250,000. The proposed airport is to cost 17 million dollars.

He added that the land thus acquired represented about one-third of that needed before any grading or work on the runway pattern could be started.

Gen. Schley also disclosed he had been in touch with the city solicitor's office regarding steps that could be taken in case condemnation proceedings were necessary to acquire the additional land.

$7,500,000 Mental Aid Bill Get Backing

Final approval by Congress for a new $7,500,000 research institute for mental illness at Bethesda, Md. appeared sure yesterday.

Building plans for the institute were approved by a joint Senate-House conference committee whose members agreed to back the Senate's write-up of the construction fund.

The House had approved 4.5 million dollars for the building. A Senate committee boosted the figure to 10 million, but that was trimmed on the floor to 7.5 million.

Representatives Priest (D., Tenn.) and Brown (R., Ohio), top managers for the bill in the House, predicted it would be approved there without serious difficulty.

The bill already has been approved by the Senate, substantially in its present form. The conference agreement, however, must be returned to the Senate for confirmation before the House acts on it.

The Bethesda institute for research in mental illness and related disorders would be set up as part of the national institute of health there. Besides the construction money, the bill authorizes Congress later to appropriate up to 10 million dollars a year to finance a national research and training program aimed at reducing mental illness.

In one decision, the conference group agreed that the consent of guardians would have to be granted before transferring mental patients to the research institute for observation and treatment.

On October 14, 1890, Francis E. Warren, the last territorial governor, was inaugurated as Governor of the new State of Wyoming.

Friends Fete R. L. Walkers, Wed 50 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Walker, both of whom belong to Arlington's oldest families, this week celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

Close to 400 friends and well-wishers visited the Walker home at 2606 Military rd. at a reception, and showered the couple with gifts and floral arrangements.

Walker, who is 71, served as a member of the board of supervisors for seven years.

A veteran of 35 years with the county government, he also has served as supervisor of roads, in the health department and is now active head of the county refuse department.

Walker's Chapel Methodist Church, one of the oldest in Arlington County, was named for the Walker family. Mrs. Walker, still spry at 73, is the former Elizabeth Ann Marcey, daughter of James and Elizabeth Birch Marcey. Both the Walker and Marcey families have lived in Arlington for more than 150 years.

The couple have seven children, 11 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. Mrs. Walker was born within 100 yards from the present home where she and her husband have lived for the past 30 years.

Asked how it felt to be married to the same man for 50 years, Mrs. Walker replied heartily that it felt fine and she was still sure she had married "an A-No. 1 man."

Adults Blamed For Juvenile Delinquency

Juvenile delinquency is actually adult delinquency in nine cases out of 10, the executive committee of the Prince Georges Council of Homemakers Clubs reported yesterday.

The failure of many adults to take an interest in providing sufficient facilities for youth recreation is to blame for much of the delinquency problems, the women said.

The conclusion was a result of an extended discussion among the members, according to Miss Ethel M. Regan, county home demonstration agent. All members havve been urged to assist in the recreational programs for youngsters and in the various 'teen age canteens in the county.

The recent country fair held for the benefit of the County Memorial Library fund netted $500, the committee said.

Nutrition chairmen were asked to make surveys in their communities to locate surplus fruits and vegetables which may be canned or frozen to aid in the famine relief program.

Bladensburg Unit of Bank To Open July 1

The newly constructed Bladensburg, Md., branch of the Citizens Bank of Riverdale will be opened July 1, officials said yesterday.

The bank will be open for public inspection that day from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m. and business will be transacted from 8 a. m. to 1 p. m.

The new branch is on Defense hwy., opposite the Bladensburg Fire Station, and is designed to serve the neighboring communities of Edmonston, Cheverly, Tuxedo, Cottage City, Colmar Manor, Landover, Lanham, Kenilworth, Mount Rainier, Brentwood and Hyattsville.

The building is equipped with summer air cooling and the fixtures are of Georgia marble with mahogany trim. The building and vault were constructed by Morrison & Hollingsworth of Bladensburg, and Ross & Walton of Hyattsville were the architects.

York D. Hollingsworth, assistant cashier, will be in charge of the branch. The bank's combined assets are now five million dollars, officials said. Officers are Alfred H. Smith, president; Max Vollberg, chairman of the board; Dr. Joseph S. Caldwell, vice president; Gershon P. Bickford, vice president; Joseph B. Waters, jr., cashier, and William A. Carson, William F. Gasch, Samuel H. Harvey, William K. Hutchinson, Ernest Maier, Charles G. Souder, Frank M. Stephen, Herbert W. Wells, T. Hammond Welsh, jr., and Richard C. Zantzinger, directors.

Rockville Farmhand Dies of Heart Attack

Norman Thompson, 23, of Rockville, Md., collapsed while working on the farm of Russell Pope near Avery, Md., about 8:30 a. m., yesterday. Members of the Gaithersburg Rescue Squad, applied artificial respiration more than 30 minutes before the youth was pronounced dead.

Dr. F. J. Broschart, Montgomery County coroner, issued a certificate of death from a heart attack. The body was taken to the Reuben Pumphrey funeral home. Funeral arrangements have not been set.

Dr. Funk to Resign As Va. Health Aide

Richmond, Va., June 26 (AP).—Dr. J. Clarence Funk, director of health education for the State Health Department(has disclosed that he is resigning the post he has held for hte past 10 years on September 1.

Dr. Funk, who came to the State from the Pennsylvania health service, confirmed the report of his resignation that had cropped up several times in the past few days.

U. N. Unit Bans Russian Veto On Spain Issue

New York, June 26 (AP).—The United Nations Security Council tonight voted 8 to 3 to uphold a ruling of council President Francsco Castillo Najera that Russia did not have the right to veto a majority approved proposal to keep the Spanish question on the council's agenda.

The proposal was a resolution sponsored by Australian delegate Herbert V. Evatt providing that the counci lkeep the Spanish case before it "without prejudice to the right of the General Assembly" to take up the case later.

The Evatt resolution was approved by a vote 9 to 2, but Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko promptly raised the veto issue. He contended that his negative vote automatically vetoed the measure.

Gromyko Take Issue

Castillo Najera and several other delegates, including Evatt contended that the question was one of "procedure' 'and, therefore, was not subject to the veto. Gromyko took issue in a sharp exchange with the president.

France voted with Poland and Russia on the veto question.

Previously only Russia and Poland had voted against the proposals offered by Evatt as a substitute for a resolution submitted on the same subject by Polish Delegate Oscar Lange last Monday.

Gromyko asked for a vote on whether the question was one of procedure or substance.

Eelco N. van Kleffens, representative of the Netherlands, had declared earlier, however, that if the Council tried to decide the question on that basis it would be subject to the veto.

Van Kleffens declared that this leads the Council into "impossible situations."

Angry Clashes Occur

The entire debate was marked by angry clashes, most of which involved the Soviet delegate. He called the Evatt proposals "weak" and said some of the provisions were "foolish."

Evatt retorted:

"I am sure Mr. Gromyko, having exercised his right to say no, will not object to others using that right."

The delegates even became snarled over whether Evatt's proposal was an amendment to the Polish resolution and whether it should be voted on first.

Gromyko appealed to Assistant Secretary-General Arkady Sobolev, also a Russian, to rule on the question. Sobolev cited a rule that such disagreements had to be settled by a vote of the Council. The Council then voted 9 to 2 to consider the Evatt proposal first. Russia and Poland voted in the negative.

'X-9' Gang Jailed, But Ft. Meade Has 2 New Burglaries

Baltimore, June 26 (AP).—Two burglaries in as many days were reported in the "boomtown" area of Fort George G. Meade today—and State police admitted that this time they couldn't be blamed in "big fat, jr." and his "X-9 club."

That's because "Big Fat, jr.," and eight of the members of the gang of Negro youths he headed were in Cheltenham reformatory at the time the latest burglaries were committed.

The nine members of the "X-9 club" who were arrested in a raid on their cellar holeout last week confessed in Juvenile Court at Annauolis on Monday that they had made eight of a series of burglaries in "Boomtown," a commercial developmen tnear Fort Meade.

The same noght they were committeed to Cheltenham, a cleaning establishment owned by Yale Gordon was burglarized and about $600 in cash and some jewelry was taken.

Last night, a jewelry store—also owned by Gordon—was entered and jewelry valued at $2500 was stolen.

Va. Newspaper Hits Glass Seat Convention

Charlottesville, Va., June 26 (Spl.).—Commenting on the forthcoming convention which will choose a Democraitc candidate for the unexpired U. S. Senate term of the late Carter Glass, the Daily Progress, in its leading editorial today, asserts that "the September date, it appears, is for the convenience of members of the Virginia delegation in the House of Representatives who may aspire to the Senate seat. It's job insurance for them, enabling them to cast their hats in the senatorial ring without putting their House seats in jeopardy."

Army Officer Branded Her, Girl Testifies

Boston, June 26 (U.P.).—A comely brunette stenographer sobbed on the witness stand today as she described for an all-man jury how a war hero held her captive in a hotel room and branded her on the hips, thighs and breasts with lighted cigarettes.

Helen Stavrow, is of Holyoke, a civilian employe at Westover Army Air Field, was asked if she made any outcry while allegedly held by Lieut. Thomas Farrell, 24.

"I cried and struggled," she said. "But I was in mortal fear and didn't dare scream."

Miss Stavrow testified Farrell called at her hotel room, ostensibly to take her out. He ordered her to undress, Miss Stavrou said, and took her clothes off himself when she refused.

"He told me: 'Don't cry or scream or make any noise or I'll kill you,'" the girl said.

The Army officer forced her to lie naked on the bed while he burned the letter "T" 2 inches high, on her right breast, and the letter "F" on her left breast," she said.

After similar burnings on her hips and thighs, Miss Stavrow said, the officer told hter: "Now that I've burned you, you're mine and you'll never cheat on me."

Father Hunted In Slaying of 2 Infant Daughters

San Mateo, Calif., June 26 (U.P.).—The San Mateo County sheriff's office today asked a Nation-wide police hunt for Vorhes Newton, 24-year-old glazier, as deputies combed lonely Wagner's Canyon for the blunt instrument with which they believe he slew his two babies and critically injured his wife.

Authorities swore out a warrant charging him with the bludgeon murders of his two infant daughters.

Newton's 21-year-old wife, Lorraine, in a semicoma from multiple head injuries, was in a hospital in a serious condition.

Barefoot and bloody, the pretty blonde was found wandering in a dazed condition yesterday morning. The badly beaten bodies of her two babies, 3 years and seven months, were found hidden in the remote canyon.

The mother remembered only riding in a borrowed automobile with her husband and children last Monday.

Primary Rivals Pledge Support To MacDonald

Support from his two opponents in the State Democratic Primary came yesterday to Arch MacDonald.

William F. Carlin, who during the campaign is reported to have said he would not support MacDonald's nomination, yesterday receded from that stand. Carlin, Silver Spring candidate in the primary, wrote MacDonald that he would swing his support behind the sports commentator-politician in the general election.

Another primary aspirant, Dawson Horine of Frederick County, sent a telegram to MacDonald wishing him luck and pledged his support.

"I'll be back in 1948," Horine promised, however.

MacDonald said yesterday he planned a meeting early next week of his campaign committee to map out an election platform and to plan the campaign.

Three Indicted In Drug Sales

Baltimore, June 26 (AP).—Three of five men arrested about two weeks ago in a series of raids by Federal narcotics agents were under indictment today by a Federal Grand Jury on charges of unlawfully dealing in marihuana.

The alleged leader of the group was accused of selling unlawfully nearly 1200 grains of the drug, and the indictment charged that one of the alleged sales was to a Pawtucket, R. I. purchaser.

A night-club entertainer was charged with acquiring unlawfully 164 grains of marihuana last May 24, and a third defendant was accused of three unlawful sales, totaling about 265 grains, to a narcotics bureau undercover agent.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Anthony Purcell took the cases before the grand jury.

AMA Journal Held Biased on Health Bills

By the Associated Press

Dr. Channing Frothingham, chairman of the committee for the Nation's health, contended yesterday that the American Medical Association's opposition to national health insurance does not represent the sentiments of all physicians.

Testifying before the Senate Labor Committee on the Administration's Federal health bill, Frothingham said the Journal of the American Medical Association was biased and "controlled by the bureaucrats" of the organization.

"These sureaucrats," he added, "have repeatedly refused to permit the publication in their journal of points of view at variance with those of the House of Delegates of the AMA.

Suppression Charged

"Moreover, reports which they do print about health insurance developments, for example in foreign countries, often contain factual errors and much bias. This policy of suppression of the minority opinion has been maintained for many years."

Frothingham added that "freedom of the press as Americans know it hardly exists in medicine."

Gerard Swope, honorary chairman of the committee and former president of the General Electric Co., testified that he favored a national health insurance program similar to those already effective in many industries.

"Then," Swope said, "all will be protected, and all will pay into a fund for this protection—the individual, the employers and the Government—so no longer will it be true that millions of citizens are excluded from the benefits of a comprehensive social security system which directly or indirectly they are taxed to maintain."

Michael M. Davis, executive chairman of the committee, said that private insurance companies cover only five per cent of the potential need for medical service as measured in money, and added:

"Cash indemnities are no substitute for health insurance such as the national health program would provide. Limited cash payments to a worker while he is ill do no guarantee that the worker and his family will get medical care."

Atomic Control Bill Halted by GOP Delay Tactics—Democrats

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

A Republican filibuster in the House Military Committee to prevent approval of the amended McMahon atomic control bill before Friday was charged yesterday by Democratic members.

4 Administration spokesmen have pressed for action on the bill in order to establish domestic atomic energy policy before the United Nationes Atomic Energy Commission meets Friday in New York.

Democratic committee members said "some" Republicans on the committee had delayed final approval of the meaesure by "irrelevant arguments, insistence on roll calls and repeated reading of the bill and amendments." Chairman May (D., Ky.) said he intended to make every effort to report the bill by Friday.

As passed by the Senate June 1, the McMahon bill provided for an all-civilian commission to control development of atomic energy. In hearings before the House Military Committee, Secretary of War Patterson and Navy Secretary Forrestal expressed approval of the Senate bill with an amendment by Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) providing for a military liaison committee. Patterson said the McMahon bill contained adequate provisions for security and military liaison and urged prompt action on the measure.

Since the measure has been before the committee it has been amended to require at least one military member of the commission. Other House committee amendments would make mandatory the appointment of a military man to head the military applications division of the commission and would strengthen the hand of the Justice Department in safeguarding security.

A bill written by the House Committee and containing substantially the same provisions. It added to the McMahon bill, which has been blocked in the House Rules Committee for several months by Representative Smith (D., Ill.).

Propeller Victim Was Virginian

Norfolk, Va., June 26 (AP).—The Army Air Force captain who was killed last Monday on Kwajalein when he walked into the propeller of the test run superfort, was disclosed today to have been Capt. James E. Bishop, husband of Mrs. Doris Margaret Leighton Bishop of Norfolk.

Mrs. Bishop was notified by telegram last night of her husband's death.

Captain Bishop, AAF officer in charge of installing the atomic bomb for the Bikini tests Sunday, was 46 and a native of Kalamazoo, Mich. A Regular Army officer for 19 years, he was killed shortly before the plane, commanded by Maj. Woodrow P. Swancutt, was to take off on the test run. The crew placed the body in an ambulance and left one minute late for the run.

PAN AMERICAN WORLD AIRWAYS

orders a fleet of 20 new Convair-240's!

PAN AMERICAN WORLD AIRWAYS, with its globe-girdling network of air routes, is the third major airline to order a fleet of America's most modern postwar airliner—the Convair-240.

This airline selected the Convair-240 to fill its need for a new type of transport plane, to supplement its huge 4-engine ships—and to offer speed and advanced comfort features to the air-traveling public on flights of intermediate range.

It was only natural that in its search for such an airliner, Pan American should turn to Consolidated Vultee—the company which designed and built the famed Liberator bomber, the Catalina, the Coronado, and other well-known war planes—the company which operated a vast transpacific airline service for the Air Transport Command during the war.

The wonderful new Convair-240 airliner will carry 40 passengers at 300 miles per hour and with a new high standard in air-travel comfort and convenience.

Below, for example, you'll find ten of the many reasons why your first flight in the new Convair-240 will be an experience you'll want to repeat over and over again!

Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corporation

San Diego, California • Downey, California • Wayne, Michigan (Stinson Division) • Forth Worth, Texas • Nashville, Tennessee

10 reasons why you'll enjoy flying in the Convair-240

1. 40 Passengers—at 300 M.P.H.! Two Pratt & Whitney Engines—of the same type used on the Liberator bomber, but even more powerful—enable the Convair-240 to cruise at 300 miles per hour and better. It can take off and climb fully loaded on one engine.

2. Auxiliary jet exhaust thrust—for added speed! The Convair-240 is the first commercial transport plane to utilize the principle of auxiliary jet exhaust propulsion for added power and speed.

3. You fly in a quiet, air-conditioned cabin! A revolutionary new type of cabin insulation reduces engine noise and vibration to an almost unbelievable minimum. You breathe fresh cool air even in desert heat—and controlled radiant heating from the cabin walls insures your comfort even when it's below zero outside.

4. "Air Brakes" for smoother landings! In addition to regular hydraulic wheel brakes and wing flaps, the Convair-240 has reversible-pitch propellers, which enable the plane to come to a full stop on the runway in a much shorter distance.

5. You enjoy "Sea-Level" comfort at high altitudes! Gone is the annoyance and discomfort caused by abrupt changes of altitude. Because of the automatically controlled system of air pressure in the Convair-240's cabin, you never have to swallow to get rid of that "funny feeling" in your ears—never feel fatigued at high altitudes.

6. Heated wings prevent icing! The Convair-240 uses the anti-icing safety system developed by Consolidated Vultee for our combat pilots during the war. Wing edges are heated—entire wing surface is warm—ice and snow melt on contact.

7. Tricycle landing gear with dual tires! The Convair-240 lands level, and is still level when it comes to a stop—not with its nose in the air! You don't have to negotiate an "up-hill" or "down-hill" aisle when entering or leaving the cabin. (Landing gear is fully retracted in flight.)

8. Why pilots say, "Thanks for thinking of us!" The cockpit of the Convair-240 is "pilot-designed." Full visibility—for added safety in taxiing, on the take-off, in flight, and for landing—is just one of many reasons why pilots have given this airliner such an enthusiastic O.K.!

9. New safety-type wing! Born of Consolidated Vultee's wartime experience in designing combat planes, the Convair-240 airfoil is an incredibly efficient high-speed wing, but with characteristics which permit lower speeds for safe landings and take-offs.

10. You relax in easy-chair comfort! A newly-designed type of reclining seat gives you all the leg room you want. In the Convair-240 there's no bumping your knees against the seat ahead. Just settle back and stretch out in comfort!

China Army Status Held Peace Barrier

Negotiations Off

British Plan Interim Rule For India

New Delhi, India, June 26 (U.P.).—The three-man British cabinet mission and Field Marshal Viscount Wavell, the Viceroy, announced tonight that Indian independence negotiations had been suspended and a caretaker government would be named to administer the country until they could be resumed.

The suspension was necessary because the powerful Nationalist Congress Party rejected proposals for a temporary government pending writing of an Indian constitution. The party and the Moslem League had accepted long-range independence proposals.

Lord Pethick-Lawrence, secretary of state for India; Sir Stafford Cripps, president of the Board of Trade, and A. V. Alexander, first Lord of the Admiralty who came here to negotiate independence, plan to return to London Saturday.

They expressed regret the mission's efforts had failed but added that "we are determined that the effort shall be renewed" to find a way to form a real temporary regime.

Negotiations will be stopped for only a short interval.

The Congress Party said it could not give up its national character by participating under the interim proposal.

Nanking Uneasy as Marshall Studies Communist Offer

Nanking, June 26 (AP).—In an atmosphere made uneasy by bristling arms, U. S. General Marshall studied today a Chinese Communist proposal for reorganiaztion of the nation'es military establishment—last and most critical point blocking completion of a pact to end China'es civil strife.

Guards equipped with tommy-guns and rifles protected all Communist-occupied buildings in the capital. A heavy cordon of soldiers and police was thrown about Communist headquarters. These precautions followed reports anti-Communist elements were planning demonstrations.

The reorganization proposal, as described by the right-wing newspaper Ta Kang Pao, was said to differ widely from Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's demandes, which include a requirement that Red forces evacuate certain areas in north China.

Informed Chinese said the peace committee of three—of which Marshall is the neutral member—had reached agreement on two basic issues, cessation of hostilities and restoration of communications, and that the Communists were willing to sign separate parts covering these. The Government was said to have refused this offer, insisting on settlement of the army reorganization issue before signing a peace agreement.

Divorcee Held In Lonely Heart Marital Fraud

Detroit, June 26 (U.P.).—A 26-year-old divorcee who correctly described herself in a lonely-heart ad as a "lover of fantasy" was charged today with duping two current husbands and four other men and trying to get out of her entanglements with a faked brain operation.

Mrs. Stanton

The indictment said Evelyn Catherine (Cathy) Stanton, Clawson, Mich., waitress and mother of three children, obtained two diamond rings on promises to marry, money for traveling expenses and a fake "brain nerve" operation, and of escaping entanglements with her alleged lovers by arranging the "deaths" of herself and her mother.

Miss Stanton inserted a provocative advertisement in the cupid's column publication of St. Paul, Minn., in March, 1945. She sought a "father" for her three children. This brought in answers which sent Miss Stanton to Deniston, Anoka, Bethel and St. Paul, Minn. She also received replies from two men in California who sent about $125 each and told her to come on out.

In July, 1945, she went to Wisconsin and married Carl Wittstock. She told him she worked for a publishing company and had to travel for story material, and returned to Clawson.

Wittstock gave her $500, joined the Marines two months later and now is in China. Miss Stanton wrote:

"If I have an operation there is something that can prolong my life 10 to 20 years but I would just as soon die. Your letters keep me going."

Westphall sent $900 after receiving a statement on her need for a "brain nerve" operation from a spurious "Dr. T. L. York" of Royal Oak, Mich.

In April, 1945, she went to Bethel, Minn., and married Walter Westphall, 30, but arranged with a friend in Miami, Fla., to send a telegram summoning her to her mother's "funeral." She returned to Clawson.

Five days later a telegram to Westphall from "Dr. York" told him his new wife had suffered a fatal relapse and her body had been shipped to Florida.

Authorities said eight witnesses, including men from Nashville, St. Paul, Springfield, Mass., and Belvedere, Ill., were arrayed against her on the fraud charge.

They said she had one reservation as regards men. She disliked red-heads.

Theft or loss of two ladies' rings was reported yesterday to police. Mrs. Ruth Paul, 1629 Columbia rd. nw., said her diamond-studded wedding band worth $120 was missing from a drawer shortly after some workmen left the house. Mrs. Irene Myers, 801 L st. nw., reported lost an engagement ring valued at $45.

Recent Fall From Truck Proves Fatal

Total traffic deaths last year....96

Paul Pembroke, 50-year-old employe of the Manhattan Storage & Transfer Co., 639 New York ave. nw., died Monday night of injuries suffered when he fell from a truck a week ago.

Wham

Pembroke was riding atop a stack of chairs when the truck turned at Bladensburg rd and Franklin st. ne. The man lost his balance and fell to the pavement. He suffered a fractured skull.

Motorcycle Patrolman Pvt. Valdean Wham, 35, of 3871 Alabama ave. se., suffered a possible collar bone fracture about 3:30 p. m. yesterday when his cycle was struck by a Treasury Department truck at 24th st. and Virginia ave. nw. Police said driver of the truck, Talmadge Sturgis, 25, of 3400 Water st. nw. was charged with failing to yield the right of way.

Two men were injured, neither seriously, in a collision in the 1600 block of Michigan ave. ne. yesterday afternoon. They were Robert S. Sanchez, 51, of 3923 Livingston rd., Hyattsville, Md., and Kenneth T. Walsh, 33, of 1413 Taylor st. nw.

Walsh suffered a possible brain concussion and Sanchez received a scalp laceration when their cars collided.

Rabbi Breslau Elected President Of Zionist Unit

Rabbi Isadore Breslau, recently discharged Army chaplain and veteran of the World War I, was elected president last night of the Louis D. Brandeis District, Zionist Organization of America.

Breslau, who lives at 4221 Van Ness st. nw., was named with eight other new officers at a meeting of the organization at the Jewish Community Center, 16th and Q sts. nw. Others elected were:

Vice presidents, Aaron Goldman, Theodore H. Levin, William Simons, Joseph Tudor, and Joseph Andelman, treasurer, A. S. Kay, recording secretary, Arthur Schiller, auditor, Louis Grossberg. Retiring president is I. S. Turover.

Immediate aim of the group, which claims membership of almost 2000, is to carry out the recommendation of the Anglo-American Committee of Inquiry on Palestine for admission of 100,000 Jews to that country.

VA Maintaining 74,000 Policies

More than 74.000 commercial insurance policies are being kept in force by Veterans Administration, it was disclosed yesterday.

Under a special act, the Government guaranteed the private insurance of servicemen for a maximum of two years after discharge. Around 8000 veterans have paid up their premiums or have filed to do so, but some 74,000 policies are still in the hands of VA.

U. S. Army Units Isolated By Rains in South Korea

Seoul, Korea, June 26 (U.P.).—American Army units all over South Korea were isolated today as near-cloudburst rains poured on the American occupation zone again today after a one-day letup.

No American casualties were reported and it was believed that all isolated units had sufficient food for several days.

A report by the native police chief said that several hundred natives had been killed at Pyongtaek, 50 miles south of Seoul, where the whole town was reported flooded.

Col. W. D. Willis, Dallas, Tex., surgeon of the Twenty-fourth Corps, said it could not be told yet whether the flood would affect the South Korea cholera epidemic. To date 1300 cases have been reported and the death rate has been 50 per cent. However, four million persons had been vaccinated before the flood hit and slowed up the work.

Col. Holland L. Robb, Washington, D. C., Twenty-fourth Corps Engineer, estimated that 7½ inches of rain had fallen in the Seoul area in four days up to this morning.

Bus Company Predicts Loss On D. C. Fares

An official of the Washington, Marlboro and Annapolis Motor Lines, Inc., yesterday estimated the company will lose $8182 in transporting passengers in the District this year.

Moreover the total profit from transportation in both the District and Maryland will amount to only $28,142, L. L. Scates, secretary-treasurer of the W. M. & A. Lines, testified at a public utilities commission hearing. The company is protesting a proposed slash in fares within the District.

Operating expenses will exceed operating revenue in the District, Scates said. He added that expenses the first five months of this year as compared with the first five months of 1945 have shown a 30 per cent increase while there has been a decided drop in revenue.

Less Government employes in Washington, more private cars on the road, more bus drivers to pay and higher wages for all company employes through the new contract have caused a cut in the company's profit, he testified.

The hearing was called after the PUC received protests from several citizens associations and residents of Southeast Washington on W. M. & A bus fares.

V. A. McElfresh, PUC executive accountant and auditor recommended at a hearing in April that the present 10-cent fare be reduced to 7 cents for all W. M. & A lines within the District or that three-for-a-quarter tokens be issued to passengers traveling the Seat Pleasant, Forestville and Silver Hill express lines.

The hearing will be resumed at 10 a. m. Monday.

British Court Convicts 31 Jews Of Bearing Arms in Palestine

Jerusalem, June 26 (AP).—Thirty-one shouting and defiant Jews of the militant underground Irgun Zvai Leumi organization were convicted today by the Palestine military court of carrying firearms and explosives.

"The Jewish national state now is in a state of war with Great Britain," said Benyamin Kaplan, one of the defendants, who was convicted also of shooting a British prisoner.

Sentences were not announced immediately.

The courtroom was tossed into an uproar when one of the men refused an order to sit down and his 30 associates leaped from their chairs shouting. Menahem Binder, 19, one of the defendants, asserted "if Jewish blood is outlawed, British blood will be outlawed."

Police and troops were summoned to restore order.

As the trial climax passed, a British destroyer escorted to port the Panamanian steamer Beauharnais, renamed the Josiah Wedgwood, which was intercepted with nearly 1300 illegal Jewish refugees aboard.

In another action, the general officer commanding in Palestine confirmed a seven-year sentence on Geulah Cohen, 20, former announcer of the illegal radio station, "Fighters for the Freedom of Israel," an outlet of the outlawed Stern extremists.

The verdicts on three other Stern adherents also were confirmed.

Bandits Rob Diamond Plant

Jerusalem, Palestine, June 26 (U.P.).—Forty Jews, armed with submachineguns and pistols, held up a diamond polishing plant near Tel Aviv today and escaped with $120,000 to $160,000 worth of stones.

Part of the bandit gang surrounded the building and cut the telephone lines. The others gathered up the diamonds and the whole gang fled.

D. C. Stores Plan To Reopen July 5

Most Washington stores will open for business as usual July 5, the Merchants and Manufacturers Association announced yesterday.

Although Government employes are expected to have a four-day holiday over the weekend of the fourth, the stores have vetoed the long weekend because they plan to close Saturdays through July and August, a spokesman said.

Only three stores plan to observe the four-day holiday. They are: Erlebacher, Inc., 1210 F st. nw.; MacMannes, Inc., 1332 G st. nw., and Brewood Engravers, 1217 G st. nw., the association said.

U.S. Opposition Halts Empire Wheat Treaty

Ottawa, June 26 (AP).—A long-term, low-price wheat agreement between Britain and Canada has been sidetracked because of United States opposition, it was learned today.

It was understood that Britain and Canada at one stage had considered entering a 10-year agreement under which Britain would buy wheat a $1.25 Canadian $1.13 United States) a bushel. The current Canadian price is $1.55, and the American and world price is approximately $2 Canadian ($1.80 United States).

The United States has taken a firm stand favoring multilateral trade agreements, as part of the world postwar economy. Britain has shown a frequent preference for bilateral trade pacts.

Reverses Feared

Although Canada has favored the multilateral plan, she was under considerable pressure to sign the wheat agreement to assure herself a long range market to protect against sharp reverses.

John Strachey, British Food Minister, said in a press conference here yesterday that he hoped a pact would be signed later because "it would be suicide for us both if we didn't."

American objections, reportedly made emphatically both here and in Washington, hold that such a sweeping pact would tend to be restrictive and have an adverse price effect on the United States producers.

Called Inconsistent

By the United Press

Some Washington officials said today the United States opposed the proposed 10-year wheat agreement between Canada and Britain because it was regarded as "inconsistent" with the multi-lateral trade policies advocated by this nation.

These officials noted the proposed British loan agreement provided for review and revision of Britain's Empire trade agreements.

These points, it was said, were emphasized by Assistant Secretary of State Will Clayton and John Hickerson of the State Department's European division, who took part in the talks on the projected wheat pact.

A British Embassy official said the price also entered into American opposition since it was well below the prevailing United States rate.

Strachey in London

London, June 26 (U.P.).—Food Minister John Strachey returned today from conferences with American and Canadian officials and said that the general wheat outlook had improved in the last two weeks but there was no chance of Britain getting more bread immediately.

Political quarters said the cabinet would meet tomorrow to discuss bread rationing.

Strachey said British housewives would get more apples from New Brunswick, more fruit juices, dried eggs, and, perhaps, more canned goods.

In reply to a question as to the probable duration of the world food shortage, Strachey said: "It would be a bold man who would prophesy. But there will be no immediate relief. All we can hope for are good crops later in the year."

Post Executive Gets Merit Scroll For War Services

John Corson, 40, director of research for The Washington Post, yesterday was awarded a scroll for meritorious service as a member of the Personnel Advisory Board, Office of the Provost Marshal General, from January 1, 1943, to October 15, 1943.

Corson

The scroll was presented by Brig. Gen. Blackshear M. Bryan, provost marshal general, at a ceremony held in the office of the Undersecretary of the Interior Oscar Chapman, the only other civilian member of the board.

Corson has been with The Post for 15 months. Prior to that he was deputy director general of UNRRA. He lives at 3601 North Abingdon st., Arlington, Va.

Darwin Features U. N. Club Concert

More than 120 persons gathered on the lawn of the Dominican Republic Embassy last night to hear a concert by the Army Air Forces Band under the baton of Maj. George S. Howard.

Sponsored by the United Nations Club the concert featured Glen Darwin, baritone, as soloist. He is a recently discharged master sergeant and was formerly with the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York.

Among Darwin's offerings were "Song of the Open Road" and "Old Man River."

Taxi Drivers

Reports are in conflict as to the effectiveness of the taxi drivers' strike, euphemistically called a vacation. At the date of writing, however, a good many drivers are still on the job, while the riding public appears to be rather indifferent spectators of the controversy. It is our guess, therefore, that the present strike, like the AFL demonstration of last January, will fizzle out for lack of adequate support from the drivers themselves.

The chief grievance of the drivers and the cab-owning companies that are aiding and abetting the strike grows out of the failure of Congress promptly to enact legislation limiting the number of licensed cabs in the District. Chairman McMillan of the House District Committee and Chairman Flanagan of the Public Utilities Commission are the principal targets of attack. The former is under fire because his committee has shelved various bills imposing limitations on the number of operating taxis; the latter, because he has resisted union efforts to coerce the PUC into taking hasty action on their behalf by strikes and threats of strikes.

Mr. Flanagan's reappointment to the PUC comes up for consideration this week, and strike leaders are said to be hopeful that their hostility to him will be regarded by Senators as a black mark against his record. It is our hope and belief, however, that Mr. Flanagan's refusal to yield to union pressure tactics will be counted to his credit and will strengthen his candidacy.

We have repeatedly stated that, in our opinion, Congress ought to give the PUC discretionary power to limit the number of taxicabs operating in the District. For the time may again come when the volume of business will not be sufficient to provide living wages for all the men who seek licenses. But there is no need for haste in anticipating this possibility. Certainly there is no warrant whatever for the immediate imposition of restrictions designed to give existing licensed drivers a monopoly of the District's taxicab business. And there is even less reason for putting owners of taxis in a position to charge exorbitant rentals based on such a monopoly. As a matter of fact, regulation of cab rentals is called for both as a protection to drivers of rented cabs and for the sake of the riding public. For rate schedules, even if adjusted to yield fair returns to drivers, will speedily become inadequate if rental charges are excessive.

Like many other organized groups, taxi drivers are feeling the adverse effects of a postwar let down in the demand for their services. Consequently they clamor for protective legislation to insure a continuance of the abnormally large returns resulting from unavoidable limitation on the number of operating cabs. To yield to such importunities would mean to subject the people of Washington to the hardships resulting from inadequate cab service. During the war they endured such hardships with a minimum of grumbling, but they would not and should not be expected to tolerate them under peacetime conditions.

South Tyrol

With the rejection of Austria's claims to a portion of South Tyrol, the Council of Foreign Ministers meeting at Paris has lost an opportunity to right a real wrong. That wrong was perpetrated at the Paris peace conference in 1919 when in direct violation of the principle of self-determination South Tyrol, with its solidly Austrian population, was given to Italy. Despite persistent efforts by the late Fascist government to Italianize the region, it has remained Austrian in character.

The Austrian demand for the return of all of South Tyrol was turned down by the Council of Foreign Ministers at the previous Paris conference. Now the claim advanced by Austria for a rectification of her border with Italy so as to bring within her borders at least a section of the South Tyrol has also been denied. On this point all four Foreign Ministers were in agreement, though for different reasons. Messrs. Byrnes and Bevin felt that in view of other territorial losses which Italy was bound to suffer in the coming peace treaties—the colonies, the Dodecanese, all or part of Venezia Giulia—Italy should not also be deprived of the South Tyrol which, with its attractions for tourists and its water power resources, is considered essential to Italy's crippled economy. M. Bidault took the same view, in part for the same reasons, in part, also, because France wants frontier rectifications of her own. The attitude of Mr. Molotov was in no small measure determined, if reports from Paris are to be believed, by Russia's desire to win over Italy, which at present she considers belongs in the camp of the western powers. In any case the pressures of power politics have proved greater than the principle of self-determination, with Austria the loser.

One extenuating development was the instruction given the deputies by the Big Four Foreign Ministers that a clause be drawn up for inclusion in the Italian settlement whereby Austria would have the free use of the railway linking Northern and Eastern Tyrol which runs across Italian territory. It was because of the importance of this rail link that Austria had urged the Council to reconsider the South Tyrol decision. It is also reported that Italy, fully aware of Austria's parlous economic plight, is planning to offer the little Danubian country something resembling a customs union. Should such an arrangement go through, it would tend to minimize the importance of the Brenner border dividing the two countries which, for sentimental, historical and practical reasons, the Austrians cannot help but consider unfair and unjust.

Mr. Snyder's Promise

Secretary Snyder's speech after he was sworn in at the Treasury showed a deep awareness of the role of the Treasury in the front line of the fight against inflation. The onus upon him in this respect will be immensely increased in case the President should veto (as we hope he will) an OPA bill which enables Congress to work both sides of the street and which, in consequence, is unworkable. In the event of a veto, Congress doubtless would take no action, and OPA would therefore disappear. How much price rise would follow remains to be seen, but the prospect is that it would be enough to precipitate new wage demands. The Treasury would then share the responsibility with industry for arresting this inflationary spiral in its tracks—industry by an effort to accommodate wage demands and to speed up uninterrupted production and the Treasury by keeping the budget balanced. This is the task that Secretary Snyder says he will aim at.

There is some comfort in Secretary Snyder's statement that the United States is now producing more civilian goods and services than ever before in its history. We are obviously on the last stretch of reconversion. If we can surmount the threat implied in the liquidation of OPA, prosperity is assured. But, as the Secretary said, such prosperity cannot last on the basis of domestic demand. As a survey on which we commented recently showed, the notion that ordinary Americans have accumulated savings is largely a myth; in the bloated war years a spend-as-you-go policy was pursued by the vast majority of Americans. Moreover, our economic system, resting as it does on our massive, war-developed capital goods industries, requires foreign consumers.

As to this market, the demand for capital goods abroad in connection with reconstruction programs is immense. A good deal of it can be paid for, especially by the nations of South America, which built up abnormal dollar balances as a result of our wartime purchases of their raw materials. But much of the demand will have to be potentized by credit, and our willingness to furnish such aid will depend upon our attitude toward our foreign relations. Hence Mr. Snyder's word of warning against any harboring of "the seeds of isolationism."

In view of such comments, the notion that, as has been said, Mr. Snyder talks like a "small-town xenophobe" must be revised. In this initial speech he certainly spoke with a sense of world responsibility, and then not as an evangelist, but as a hard-headed businessman who knows where our interests lie. A man in Mr. Snyder's shoes cannot give to America what should be given to the world, for the effect, viewed in terms of our prosperity, would react disastrously upon the American people. In sheer self-interest our foreign relations have become foreign obligations. A stable world is vital to a stable America and vice versa; and the key is economic. Political stability throughout the world is dependent upon the way we relate our wealth to an impoverished world and upon the economic stability we retain at home. In his new post Secretary Snyder can be an artificer of the peace.

Overlord

"With this final capitulation by the German leaders, the mission of the Allied Expeditionary Force placed under my command on 14 February, 1944, was accomplished."

These words from General Eisenhower's report to the Combined Chiefs of Staff on the 11-month operations of the Allied Expeditionary Force in Europe between D-Day, 1944, and VE-Day, 1945, indicate the tone of the whole document. It is characteristically simple and modest throughout, with nothing beyond the facts themselves to suggest that the mission to which he refers was perhaps the most stupendous military operation in history. General Eisenhower is everywhere at pains to share credit for the successes with his subordinates, British and American, to acknowledge the advantages afforded him by the service units and by the efforts of the civilian workers at home, and to recall that the primary honors belong to the troops who fought and suffered in the campaign.

He is equally at pains to take the responsibility for what some writers deem were serious errors in the course of the campaign, and particularly in those cases where report or criticism has tended to place blame for them on his subordinates. Thus, of the costly effort in September, 1944, to seize the Rhine bridges in the northern salient, which is said to have been demanded by Field Marshal Montgomery, General Eisenhower writes:

> The attractive possibility of quickly turning the German north flank led me to approve the temporary delay in freeing the vital port of Antwerp, the seaward approaches to which were still in German hands . . . My decision to concentrate our efforts in this attempt to thrust into the heart of Germany before the enemy could consolidate his defenses along the Rhine had resulted in a delay . . . in making the port available as our main supply base. I took full responsibility for this, and I believed the possible and actual results warranted the calculated risk involved.

With equal candor he accepts full responsibility for the disposition of forces which left only four divisions spread over a line of some 75 miles in the Ardennes at the time of the German breakthrough in Rundstedt's counteroffensive of December, 1944:

> I took a calculated risk, based on the absence of strategic objectives or large depots in the area and also on the relatively difficult terrain . . . We did not consider it highly probable that Von Rundstedt would, in winter, try to use that region to stage a large counteroffensive on a large scale . . . Nevertheless this is exactly what the enemy did.

It is fairly evident that General Eisenhower's report was to some extent revised or rewritten in view of some of the criticisms recently directed against him and against Field Marshal Montgomery, notably in Mr. Ralph Ingersoll's book, Top Secret. The bitterest criticisms have concerned the transfer from Gen. Omar Bradley's command to that of Field Marshal Montgomery during the Battle of the Bulge of the greater part of the First and Ninth American Armies. General Eisenhower's explanation is that: ". . . General Bradley's left flank was badly separated from his right and the situation of his own headquarters, situated at Luxembourg, limited his command capabilities to the area south of the penetration."

But elsewhere, in describing the destruction of the German armies in the Saar Basin, the last decisive battle of the war, he pays to General Bradley as generous a professional compliment as it is possible for one officer to give another. "I unhesitatingly class General Bradley's tactical operations during February and March," he says, "as the equal in brilliance of any that American forces have ever conducted." Such a tribute, we think, should appease even those who, wishing for their own reasons to keep a controversy alive, have appointed themselves champions of General Bradley's military reputation, no doubt to his great embarrassment.

Meatless Cornucopia

Now that the acute scarcity of meat has touched practically every table, there are many efforts to assess the blame for this unpalatable situation. We, the best-fed nation in the world, are apparently unable to solve our own distribution problem. Some persons charge meat packers with a strike against the public. Others point out that the packers have not been receiving necessary livestock, that it is the farmers who are withholding cattle from the market. Still others chalk it all up to the OPA; just do away with the OPA, they say, and everything will be dandy.

It is impossible to dismiss the meat shortage with any such facile explanation. Without attempting to find a scapegoat, we submit that much of the difficulty has arisen from the dilatory tactics of Congress in voting on the OPA extension. Congress let action on the OPA go until the last minute. Uncertainty as to what the price picture will be after July 1 has led farmers to withhold their cattle until the fate of OPA is clear, just as we suspect some manufacturers have withheld goods until the price picture is settled. We may well deplore this situation, especially since it touches our stomachs. But there is as yet no law which requires a farmer to sell the cattle he raises, any more than a laboring man can be prevented from quitting a job if he wishes. The situation would not have arisen had there been definite action on Capitol Hill in time to allay the multitude of doubts—something, incidentally, that might have been accomplished were Congress now operating under the streamlined provisions of the La Follette-Monroney reorganization bill instead of under its old and cumbersome procedures.

Actually, of course, the prospect is that regardless of what happens to OPA there will be more meat after July 1. There is a limit to the length of time cattle can be kept off the market. Meat producers and everybody else will know by then what to expect in the way of prices. OPA, if it is retained in workable shape, will be in a stronger position to combat the black market. Or, in the unhappy event that OPA is allowed to die, rising prices will tend to bring more meat to the market and to discourage illegal competition. Thus, temporarily at least, the outlook is for not steaks for everyone but at least stew meat.

If this is accomplished by doing away with price controls and encouraging the feeding of grain to livestock, however, there will be scant compensation for anyone with a conscience. We will know that we are obtaining more meat at the expense of the starving abroad.

SUPPLICATION

Let the beauty I have sought to evoke allay what fear within these lines you thing you hear. So ends another day, begins yet one night more.
Is that the wind, a mouse
or someone at the door?
Light me, my candle, to the place where even wind unveils its face;
there let me loiter with the leaves, and let mine be the hand that weaves
the light lament, and aerial grief;
and let my heart of yours be thief.

Letters To The Editor

Communications must carry the writer's name and address, though pen names are permitted at the editor's discretion. Letters of less than 200 words will be given preference. All letters are subject to condensation.

"Hospitality To U. N."

On June 25, in an editorial entitled "Hospitality to U. N.," you said that "every official assistance, both local and Federal, is warranted in helping the United Nations solve its problem." You are absolutely right.

However, to date I have not seen any disposition on the part of the Government of the United States to aid U. N. in establishing a permanent home within our borders.

This hands-off policy was adopted in the summer of 1945, so that no favorites would be played among the American communities then vigorously competing to duplicate the successful conference just completed at San Francisco.

Perhaps this period of drift had to be. We passed up San Francisco, the only city in the New World with the "know how" on staging a conference that would make the whole world feel welcome. In the bustle of postwar readjustments, no other American community has had the time or patience to learn to do the job satisfactorily.

But a whole year has now passed and the location of a permanent home for U. N. is still unsettled. The comforts of Geneva are beckoning ever more strongly to the homeless, unwelcome delegates. Certainly, if U. N. ever returns to the Old World, its future is seriously endangered.

Can you not urge Senator Warren Austin, our new representative with the United Nations, to formulate a positive Federal policy on selection of a permanent headquarters? Unless the U. N. is to be perhaps fatally handicapped in its inevitable difficulties by a local landlord-tenant squabble, a strong, definite Federal position must be taken now, before the General Assembly meets in September.

ROBERT W. KENNY.

Teen-Age Draft

With reference to the draft bill to eliminate 18-year-olds, it is noted that Senator Gurney stated it was his belief they were needed, but that he hoped he was wrong, and that the "gamble" being taken with the pay raise will attract volunteers and will work to make up the difference in filling the replacement quota.

In this connection The Post emphasizes the seriousness of this "gamble," should it not work, what with the resulting disastrous effect on the United States foreign policy.

Let attention be invited then to the fact that all the malicious untruth and vilification that Congress, the press, and the people have heaped upon the Army during the past year is now boomeranging. The low state of the military profession is everywhere evident. Oldtimers, who once took pride in it now seek reasons why they should remain in it; and newcomers seek reasons why they should not be required to join it or how they can get out of it.

The once honorable profession of arms is the current scuttlebutt and whipping post of a people that has become morally uncourageous. The American Army in war has always been a reflection of the people itself. The so-called "caste" system is simply a condition that sprang from citizens who lacked the qualification and experience of officers in far too large a percentage of cases.

The gamble that the Nation now takes would entail a far smaller risk if the Army had been given the public esteem it deserves for winning in spectacular fashion the greatest war in history, instead of being degraded and held to public scorn until nobody wants to make the patriotic sacrifices essential to joining it.

W. C. M.
Washington.

Regarding the extension of the draft bill, members of the armed forces are fast coming to the conclusion that instead of being a body of men desiring to carry out the will of the people the House of Representatives is working only for self-satisfaction.

There is not one earthly reason why 18-year-olds could not replace other teen-agers, who have served their share of time in the armed forces and who have had their educations interrupted. One year, or 18 months of experience, is the best thing in the world for a man before he continues his education. It gives him time to realize more fully the benefits of a higher education so that he may lead a better life than some he has witnessed in his various travels. Being a teenager, myself, I am quite sure that most 18-year-old boys would jump at the chance of seeing the world.

If 18-year-olds are not to be drafted then all teen-agers now in the service should be released so they, too, may finish their educations.

Judge Learned Hand

In the editorial, "The Judicial Temper," of June 25, you made an error in placing Judge Learned Hand on the New York Court of Appeals. Judge Hand is a circuit judge on the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

The New York Court of Appeals is, of course, the highest State court in the State of New York.

The reputation of each of these courts is very high, as is Judge Hand's, and I think your misplacement does no harm to either court or to the judge—but only to The Post's reputation for accuracy.

Buyers' Strike

We are now in the midst of a "sellers' strike" which is creating artificial shortages in such items as meat, butter, men's suits, etc., worse than wartime shortages. Goods are being withheld from the market with the obvious purpose of seeking high profits after July 1. Since it seems almost certain that effective price controls are going to end within a week, consumers certainly should give serious thought as to how they may best weather the coming storm of high prices.

One device which might offer some hope of success would be a widespread "buyers' strike." This would be particularly effective if it could be applied to perishable items such as meat and butter, which cannot be held from the market indefinitely. Cattle raisers, meat packers and meat distributors must all start to move again soon or suffer large losses. Consumers, however, have largely been deprived of meat supplies and could do without a few days or weeks longer without serious hardship. Such action, if carried out on a large scale, would hold prices down and also demonstrate popular support of price control.

In the case of some other types of items, an effective strike would probably require a longer period of restricted buying, but would not require any real sacrifice for a fairly lengthy period. That is to say if prices on clothing, electrical gadgets, furniture, etc., were rapidly increased, buyers could simply refuse to buy, thus effectively nullifying efforts of any group attempting a quick profit grab. If individual sellers cooperated by trying to keep prices down, they could be rewarded by increased patronage, thus putting greater pressure on would-be profiteers.

Such measures, to be effective, probably require more self-restraint than was demonstrated in many cases during the war. However, a demonstration of this kind could do much to end at least the worst of the inflationary threats.

HARLESS WAGONER.
Arlington, Va.

Meat Famine

The meat industry has refused to produce any meat for the American public until such time as meat prices go up. This is admitted. The editors admit it, the meat industry grants it blandly, McGraw-Hill waves the death of OPA complacently all over the back page of section A of The Post and says now is the time for self-discipline. (McGraw-Hill isn't particularly concerned with meat, but the juxtaposition is painful.)

But nowhere have I seen anybody excoriate the meat industry, or any other industry behaving the same way, for putting the public out. If a labor union strikes with the same results as we are experiencing now, nobody is louder than The Post in telling what an unendurable situation is constituted by the action of one part of the community inconveniencing everybody just because it wants higher wages.

How about a little righteous indignation right where it belongs?

MRS. RAMSAY WOOD.
Takoma Park, Md.

Why are there no indignant outbursts in your editorial columns over the crippling effect upon the Nation's economy of the wanton and irresponsible strike of the Nation's meat packers?

Are you under any delusion that the disappearance of meat from the Nation's markets is not due to deliberate withholding by the producers and packers? Is there any doubt in your mind that this artificial and induced scarcity is an arrant squeeze upon the Government and Congress for selfish, pecuniary advantage?

Are you artless enough to think that this is not a deliberately planned and organized conspiracy among growers, feeders and processors the country over? And are you able to rationalize in your own mind any difference in the degree of heinousness between this antisocial conspiracy of the meat industry in withholding food and that of the United Mine Workers in withholding coal, of the steel workers in withholding steel and the railroad brotherhoods in withholding transportation?

This is a meat famine. It is brought on by a strike. The purpose of the strike is to gain certain economic advantages for the strikers. If the strikers in this case were members of the packinghouse workers union, I believe you and most other intelligent newspapers would condemn it loudly.

Why, then, do you ignore and thereby condone this strike in which management is the culprit? Is it any less an offense to the public's dignity to be kicked around by the American Meat Institute than by the United Packinghouse Workers-CIO?

MRS CABELL PHILLIPS.
Washington.

Editor's Note: The implication that The Post has not spoken out against the meat famine is unfair. Consistently in editorials and cartoons it has attempted to show how the withholding of meat has been bound up with the uncertainty surrounding the price-control extension. Much of the difficulty appears to be in the fact that meat packers simply are not receiving livestock from producers; it either is being withheld or is diverted to the black market. The situation was treated specifically in an editorial, "Meat Famine," of June 11. Another editorial appears today.

Glamour And Economics

By Malvina Lindsay

Woman's Straitjacket

THE AMERICAN woman continues under fire. Criticism of her centers about her absorption in clothes and cosmetics. Typical of it was the charge made by Fannie Hurst, novelist, last week, before the General Federation of Women's Clubs, that women of this country were "sleeping beauties," running their lives with the hour set at "sex o'clock" and failing to make themselves a force to improve politics or avert war.

Lady Astor recently, on leaving America, delivered a party shot at American women's vanity. She said she had lost all confidence in women here since seeing their hats. She called their extreme fashions an expression of postwar moral laxity, and urged "thinking women" to rebel against them.

Also, statisticians have pointed out that women's average clothes expenditure in middle class families runs about 50 per cent higher than does men's and that women now spend about two billion dollars annually on beauty shops and cosmetics.

Europeans who come here frequently remark on the emphasis women put on dress. They interpret this as a concern with sex. Even returned GIs, while admiring the smart looks of their womenfolk, have been wondering if so much pursuit of glamour isn't making them superficial and self-centered. And those who warn of the Nation's drift toward materialism usually cite as evidence the feminine scramble for adornment.

IT SO HAPPENS that at a time when the entire populace is seeking escape from the great problems that confront it, women's form of escape is of the obvious type that especially lends itself to criticism. Also, it should be remembered that the glamour cult is closely tied up with economics. American women are not driven wholly by vanity or sex expression to giving so much attention to their looks. They are egged on by other powerful forces, the state of culture, the social trend of the times, and above all, economic competition.

The old argument over whether women dress to please men or other women has now largely resolved itself into the theory that they make themselves outwardly attractive to maintain status—social, sexual and economic.

Men once wore the straitjacket of putting up a personal front, but they have managed during the last century and a half to shift it largely to their wives and daughters. Also, in the last quarter century, dress competition has been accentuated by mass production of clothing, now one of the Nation's leading industries. The so-called beauty industry has developed in the same period. From both of these, advertising and promotion pressure has been turned on women. (The beauty business now ranks second in national advertising) Hollywood has helped to foster competitive glamour. And with sales promotion, the tempo of fashion change has been stepped up. There are now style changes even within seasons—the hat of the month, the hair-do of the week.

Even the "thinking woman to whom Lady Astor appeals, must pay some heed to these changes—especially if she becomes active in public affairs. A man may get elected to office by wearing red galluses and no socks, but a woman, to get the respect of an audience, must be reasonably up-to-date in her attire. And for getting and holding jobs, to say nothing of husbands, sartorial demands are even greater.

THE END of this is not in sight. More production of goods—and more buying—are in the cards if this Nation is to be prosperous and maintain high employment. Chester Bowles, in his recent book, "Tomorrow Without War," points out that the country has doubled production every 20 years since the Civil War. Hence, 400 billion dollars worth of goods may be produced here in the late 60s. If past patterns are followed, a large proportion of this will be in women's finery and cosmetics. For these have proved the most marketable of goods, and the bulk of advertising is devoted to them.

Does this mean women will continue stepping up their style changes, their buying, their race after glamour? Will they continue being "sleeping beauties" about politics and war? Or will spending (if it increases) be more and more diverted to health, education, recreation, other intangibles? The answer will depend on world events, distribution of income, progress of science, social trends. It also will depend on whether women can work out a way to meet the increasing personal demands life makes on them, and at the same time function as citizens.

Russian Killing

As a former GI familiar with several similar incidents between American and Filipino soldiers in Manila after the war, I was shocked to see the shooting of two Americans by Russian soldiers given front page coverage in The Post of June 24.

The incident which you put on page one is not an extraordinary one, and becomes important only when the newspapers play it up.

I would never accuse The Post of trying to start a war with Russia, but I do think that it would have been an act of high patriotism had you given the story coverage commensurate with its inherent significance rather than with the unfortunate news value present conditions lend to it. The value of one "sensational" story is small beside the value of maintaining peace with Russia until and unless it imperils our Nation's existence to do so.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

House Leaders Frown On July 5 Holiday

HOLIDAY: Representative George H. Fallon (D., Md.) won't push his bill to make July 5 a holiday. House leaders frown on it. In other words, it seems assured that the bill is dead and if you want off July 5 you'd better arrange to take annual leave.

WRA: It will be abolished as of July 1. Now that it is dying, even its most severe critics admit that War Relocation Authority did a good job. The President yesterday ordered it wiped out.

OPA: Economists are now talking about the coming "Taft Depression." They say the Taft amendment to the OPA bill would send prices skyward for about two years and then we'd have an economic collapse.

UPWA: Its executive board meets here today and tomorrow to map out an organization drive and to make sure that its members aren't caught by the Ball-Russell antistrike rider to appropriation bill. This is the extreme left-wing union affiliated with the CIO.

COMMERCE: An employe election will be held today in its Office of Small Business. Candidate to represent employes on the board of efficiency rating appeals are E. M. Rolands, Louis C. Reynolds and Curtis E. Anderson.

RETIREMENTS William A. Wheeler retires on July 1 as chief of the seed marketing division in Agriculture. He's 70 and his 30 years of Federal service have been in the department. He'll take a short vacation and go to work on a better private job . . . William A. Roberts has retired as supply officer at Mount Alto.

LEAVE: Each of the four winners to make Representative Wilson (R., Ind.) red-faced with shame will get a $100 war bond. And personnally, I hope each of them will cash in their bonds and use the money to take a vacation. Wilson, you know, believes people who work for the Government are shirkers.

The four winners will be the man and woman who have served longest without taking any sick leave, and the man and the woman who have forfeited the most annual leave. Scores of entries are already in, so hurry along with yours.

The rules are simple. The contest is limited to Federal workers in and nearby Washington. All entries must be written, verified by a supervisor or the personnel office, and sent to me in care of The Post. The closing date will be announced soon.

NHA: It's in the market for 35 CAF-4 secretaries who have had two or more years of experience. They will be put on a 44-hour week, making the gross $2753 a year. Make applications in person at 1601 I st. nw.

FARM SECURITY: It gave its employes efficiency ratings under a new system devised by Virgil L. Couch, personnel officer. Some Civil Service officials believe the plan may eventually be extended over the entire service.

Briefly, it rates the employe on the specific job he performs. Each employe is given a copy of the rating form so that he may know what he is supposed to do and how well he must do it to be considered adequate. Couch predicts his plan will be popular among employes.

PAY RAISES: A step was taken yesterday to legalize pay raises for non-classification act employes in Reconstruction Finance, Federal Housing and a score of other agencies.

A rider to the third deficiency appropriation bill would give these agencies the authority to raise the salaries of their employes, provided the raises did not exceed the Classification Act rates for comparable grades. Don't overlook that point. It may cost you money.

The rider in other words, would just about force the agencies to put all their per annum workers under the Classification Act. The rider would prevent higher scales than those fixed by that act. Legally, employes whose salaries aren't fixed by that act aren't suposed to be given pay raises until it is approved. About 75,000 employes in a score of agencies are involved.

CEILING: It's getting more complicated by the hour—just as a lot of people predicted. The pay act carried an absolute over-all ceiling on the number of employes the Government could have on fixed dates. Now, every agency that gets a new or quick job tries to get exempted from the ceiling.

Finally, the House Appropriations Committee yesterday adopted a rider which would allow the President to exempt employes from the ceiling under extraordinary conditions. What it all would mean is more paper work for a President who is already overburdened. And, furthermore, every agency will run to him for an exemption. It's a bit ridiculous.

TREASURY: A run-off election will be held July 10 to name an employe member of the Treasury's Board of Review. More than 18,000 voted in the primary, and the four top leaders who will be in the run-off are May Gross, Internal Revenue; Willsey Hall, Procurement; Irving Lehman, Coast Guard, and Wayne Morris, Public Debt.

Church Group to Meet

Fredericksburg, Va., June 26 (Spl.).—Members of the Episcopal Laymen's Association of the Northern Neck-Tappahannock area will hold their summer meeting at the Episcopal parish house at Warsaw Thursday.

O'Conor Gets 2-to-1 Margin In Convention

Baltimore, June 26 (AP).—Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor, who was nominated in the Maryland primary election Monday as the Democratic candidate for United States Senator, appeared today to have achieved one of the most spectacular successes of his quarter-century in political life.

But 68-year-old Senator George L. Radcliffe, whom he defeated, declined to concede the nomination.

Hints Irregularities

Unofficial and incomplete returns, Radcliffe contended, cast doubt on the outcome in various counties. Furthermore, he said, he had received several reports of "irregularities" and he wanted to study the situation further before making a statement on the results.

The Senator declined to specify the origin or nature of the irregularities.

Belated returns indicated that the 49-year-old governor captured 102 of the 152 votes by which a party convention will make formal nomination. He appeared to be the winner by a convention majority of better than 2 to 1.

With only 19 of the State's 1331 precincts unreported, O'Conor polled 116,339 votes to Radcliffe's 93,670. The Governor carried 12 of the 23 counties, with convention votes totaling 67, and five of Baltimore City's six legislative districts, with 35 convention votes.

Meanwhile, the late returns showed that William Preston Lane, jr., national committeeman and Hagerstown publisher, banker and lawyer, was increasing the margin by which he won the Democratic nomination for Governor.

Lane Assured 85 Votes

Figures for 1299 precincts gave Lane 103,227 votes, while State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes had 84,347, and Representative H. Street Baldwin, 48,254. The convention vote was:

Lane, 85; Tawes, 49; Baldwin, 18.

The Hagerstonian won nine counties and five legislative districts in Baltimore. Tawes was high in 10 counties and one city district, and Baldwin led in four counties.

Lane's opponent in the general election, Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin of Baltimore, scored a smashing victory over Herman L. Mills, the Hagerstown merchant who deplored extensive Government regulation of business. Returns from 943 precincts showed a primary vote of 36,979 for McKeldin against 13,144 for Mills in their tussle for the GOP gubernatorial colors.

D. John Marker of Walkersville, the former brigadier general, maintained his commanding lead for the Republican senatorial nomination, as O'Conor's opponent in November. In 936 precincts Markey received 21,220, Joseph Allison Wilmer 11,734 and Roscoe F. Walter 4894.

James J. Lacy of Baltimore, won the Democratic nomination for comptroller, hands down, and Deputy Attorney General Hall Hammond of Stevenson easily took the Democratic honors for attorney general. Both were on Lane's ticket.

In November Lacy will be opposed by George Cochran Doub of Owings Mills, Republican, while Hammond's GOP adversary will be Alexander T. Grier of Salisbury.

Roe Renominated

The renomination of Representative Dudley G. Roe, Democrat, was assured in the First Congressional District. But with only 91 of the 193 precincts reporting, the Republican verdict was in doubt. William H. Lloyd led Edward T. Miller 2188 to 1710.

Hugh A. Meade, Representative Balwin's candidate for the seat he is relinquishing in Congress, led Democratic aspirants in the Second District House race. The unopposed Republican candidate is David G. Harry.

In the Third, Representative Thomas D'Alesandro was renominated by the Democrats and Edward N. Kowzan was the unopposed Republican entry.

Representative George H. Fallon won Democratic renomination in the Fourth and will meet Paul Robertson, Baltimore Republican chairman. Robertson bested Stanley Scherr in the primary.

Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer was renominated overwhelmingly by Fifth District Democrats. Edwin A. Glenn will offer the Republican opposition.

Arch McDonald, Washington radio announcer, received the Democratic nomination for the House from the Sixth District in a three-cornered fight with Dawson J. Horine and Williiam F. Carlin. He will undertake to oust Representative J. Glenn Beall, Maryland's lone Republican member of Congress, who had no primary opposition.

Retiring UDC Head Honored in Woodstock

Woodstock, Va., June 26.—The United Daughters of the Confederacy this week paid tribute to Miss Nan Williams, who retired as president because of her health, and presented her with a gift of 10 silver dollars.

Newly elected officers were: Mrs. W. H. Wunder, president; Miss Williams, honorary president; Miss Anne Clower, first vice president; Mrs. Shirley Smith, second vice president; Mrs. W. W. Pettitt, third vice president; Mrs. C. W. Carson, recording secretary; Mrs. W. B. Allen, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Nan Wissler, treasurer; Mrs. F. B. Riddleberger, historian; Mrs. Alice L. Heller, registrar.

FHA Expediter Named

Cumberland, Md., June 26 (AP).—E. Price Steiding, former Allegany County supervisor for the National Youth Administration, has been named regional expediter for the Federal Housing Authority. He will have charge of work in Garrett, Allegany, Washington and Frederick Counties.

Hitch-Hiker Reenacts Stabbing at Scene

GRAND JURY HEARING SET SATURDAY—Twenty-three-old William F. Harvey, who the FBI says has admitted the hitch-hike slaying of O. J. Beckerman of Leesburg, Va., is shown with officials at the spot on Route 1 near Fredericksburg, where he said the stabbing happened. Left to right are: Spotsylvania County Commonwealth's Attorney T. Stokely Coleman, Harvey, State Police Lieut. Wayne Carr, and Fredericksburg City Sergt. L. E. Chittum. A grand jury hearing to consider a charge of murder against Harvey will be held Saturday at 10 a. m.

State Senate Will Have 15 New Members

Baltimore, June 26 (AP).—New members will occupy more than half of the seats in the new State Senate when the Legislature convenes in January, a check on results of Monday's primary election disclosed today.

Of the 29 Senators, two failed to win renomination, and 13 others retired from politics or sought other State offices, leaving only 14 old members to seek reelection in the general balloting in Novmber. Seven of the nine Senate Republicans will be missing in the next General Assembly.

Senator A. Raymond Marvel of Talbot County was defeated in the Talbot County Democratic primary by Herbert H. Balch, Easton attorney, and Senator Stephen B. Campbell of the second Baltimore district lost the Democratic nomination to Hubert P. Barton.

Lindsay Also Retires

The 13 Senators who either retired, or sought other offices, included James J. Lindsay of Baltimore County, the Senate president, who didn't seek reelection.

Another vacancy to be filled will be that of floor leader, since Senator John B. Funk (D., Frederick) vacated his seat to make an unsuccesful bid for State Comptroller on the Baldwin ticket.

Leading candidates for the Democratic floor leadership, provided they are reelected, appear to be Senators L. Harold Sothoron (D., Prince George's) and Joseph M. George (D., Queen Anne's).

Senator Wilmer Fell Davis (R., Caroline,) the minority floor leader, did not seek reelection.

Republicans failed to file in eight counties and three Baltimore City districts, and Democrats failed to file in Charles County. In many instances, party conventions will fill the vacancies.

Others who either retired or sought other office and will be missing in January are:

uo fiASR

Primary election returns still were incomplete in Harford County and although unofficial returns gave Senator J. Wilmer Cronin a slight lead, his opponent in the Democratic contest—Roy L. Pyle—claimed to have a three-vote lead. Pyle is a former Maryland American Legion department commander.

Fifth—*Joseph B. Byrnes (D.), Republican, none.

Sixth—*George W. Della (D.), Republican, none.

One of Five Jail-Breakers Seized in Va.

Rocky Mount, Va., June 26 (AP).—One of five prisoners who escaped from the Franklin County jail here shortly before midnight last night was captured early today near Lanahan, a hamlet on route 40 between here and Ferrum. He is Curtis Goings, 17, of Mount Airy, N. C., according to Sheriff Grady Gregory. The officer added that from information given by Goings it is believed the other four men headed north.

J. L. Doughton, night jailer, who was slightly mauled in the break, suffered a few cuts about the head and face.

The four men yet at large are Richard Patterson, 26; J. M. McCray, 16; Emmett Gillespie, 21, and Cecil G. Mitchell, 22. Patterson's mother lives in Pennsylvania. He was to serve three years on an automobile theft charge and also was wanted in Georgia as a fugitive convict. McCray and Goings, both of Mount Airy, N. C., were to serve five years for assault, and Mitchell, of Schoolfield, was being held for Federal authorities.

Carwile Platform Includes $2000 Veterans' Bonus

Richmond, Va., June 26 (AP).—Howard H. Carwile, independent candidate for the U. S. Senate against Senator Harry F. Bryd proposed a bonus of $1000 from the State and one of like amount from the Federal Government to every serviceman who did duty at home or abroad in his campaign platform announcement yesterday.

He also registered his opposition to any State or Federal laws limiting or restricting the activities of labor unions, expressed his favor for unemployment compensation of $25 a week for 26 weeks, the unionization of farm labor and a minium wage of 65 cents an hour.

In a preface to his platform Carwile said he was "ultra left;" Senator Bryd "ultra right;" Bryd's Democratic primary opponent Martin A. Hutchinson, "fluttering in the center," and Lester S. Parsons of Norfolk, Republican candidate, "a skeleton rattler."

"I am not a stranded Byrd nor a double-talking Hutchinson," Carwile said. "I know where I stand. I refuse to bootlick anyone. Votes are the least of my concern."

New Fishermen's Group To Elect Tomorrow

Annapolis, Md., June 26 (AP).—The Maryland Commercial Fishermen Association, recently organized, will hold its first annual meeting Friday to elect officers and directors for the coming year.

The Maryland Tidewater News reported today that the organization has grown rapidly and now has members in most of the Tidewater counties.

The association will have two directors from each Tidewater county.

Gilbert H. Moore is executive secretary of the association which maintains offices in Baltimore.

A Vote for Him Is Blow at PAC, Says Sen. Byrd

Richmond, Va., June 26 (AP).—Senator Harry F. Byrd has taken up the political gauntlet tossed at him by the CIO's political action committee and is hurling it back with vigor.

The Virginia Senator struck back again at the CIO in a campaign address at Cumberland courthouse yesterday and urged his listeners to roll up a large majority in the August Democratic primary because "the larger the majority the greater the impression in other States."

"It will be very helpful with other members of Congress in getting legislation passed," he asserted.

Watched by Other States

The results of the Virginia primary election will be very closely watched by other States, he added, because of the PAC's interest in his defeat.

There is "nothing like" the PAC, Byrd said, adding:

"The PAC can come into Virginia and spend one million dollars and not a word can be said, while a corporation cannot contribute a nickel to a political campaign.

Introduced by former Gov. Colgate W. Darden, jr., his campaign manager, Byrd spoke from a platform in the shade of the 126-year-old Cumberland courthouse building.

Darden praised the Senator for his "conspicuous ability" and said he hoped Byrd would stay in the Senate as long as he lives "unless we ease him over to the Presidency."

Cites Fight on Waste

Senator Byrd told his listeners he had worked for the elimination of waste in the national Government and pointed out that the national debt had risen since he went to the Senate 13 years ago from 16 billion dollars to 275 billion dollars. He said the enormity of the amount could be visualized by comparing it with Virginia's total wealth of about five billion dollars.

In his 30 years of public life, Senator Byrd said, he had been blamed for about everything and recently had noted he was charged in public print with responsibility for tuberculosis in Virginia and "blamed" by a northern Virginia Republican—John Locke Green of Arlington—"for blue mold on tobacco."

State Police Get 3 Planes As Air Arms

Richmond, Va., June 26 (AP).—The Virginia State Police soon will be putting the "air arm" on law breakers.

The department has purchased three highwing, low speed monoplanes to cruise the airways over Virginia and work in close cooperation with earthbound police forces in crime detection and detention of lawbreakers in the Old Dominion.

In disclosing this modernization development yesterday, Col. C. W. Woodson, State police superintendent, said the new air branch of the police service would not require any new personnel to fly the planes as quite a few of his men had war time training in flying all types of aircraft.

The three planes, now at Preston Glen Airport, Lynchburg, will operate over the three major geographical areas of Virginia. One will be based at a strip to be built near headquarters on the Midlothian Pike outside of Richmond to patrol Eastern Virginia; another at Waynesboro for the central section and the third near Chilhowie in Wythe County for the western area. The western base is as yet tentative.

Woodson pointed to the important role the airborne troopers could play in directing searches in not readily accessible areas by two-way radio to automobile forces in hunting stolen cars or chasing fleeing fugitives.

The State decided to purchase the ships after making a study of similar operations in Pennsylvania, New York and other States.

Results in other States generally have been good, Woodson said.

Multiple Dam Advocated at Salem Church

By the Associated Press

A multiple purpose dam at Salem Church "is the only salvation" for Fredericksburg against the damage of recurring floods, the Senate Commerce Committee was told yesterday.

Mayor Marshall King of Fredericksburg testified that engineer studies of levees and a series of dams for flood protection had shown the only feasible method to be the proposed $17,755,000 power-generating dam on the Rappahannock River.

A dam solely for flood protection, would not be feasible, he said, because the cost of such a non-revenue reducing work would not be justified economically.

Both King and City Manager L. J. Houston, jr., said the city is interested only in flood protection. It is concerned in the power feature only to the extent of having the project approved.

Testimony by King and Houston came after witnesses Tuesday said the project is unjustified economically.

King and Houston said dikes as flood protection would be impractical because valuable business property would have to be sacrificed for such construction.

King offered copies of letters to Senators Byrd and Burch asking their support, because "in the opinion of the government of the city of Fredericksburg, the importance of this project in providing flood protection and improved sanitary conditions would offset any other considerations in this matter.

Shaw on School Board

Annapolis, Md., June 26 (AP).—Governor O'Conor today appointed Harry B. Shaw, deputy chief engineer of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, Hyattsville, to the board of visitors of the Maryland School for the Deaf.

'Escape Artist' Seeks Legal Jail Release

Annapolis, Md., June 26 (AP).—Jack Hart, 59, serving a life term for murder, will be given a hearing here tomorrow before F. Murray Benson, State parole director, on his application for a parole from the Maryland Penitentiary.

Hart, whose two breaks from the pen won him the title of the State's best escape artist, will be given a routine hearing along with other parole applicants.

A prisoner serving a life term can apply for a parole after 15 years. Hart will have completed 24 years in October. He was sentenced for his part in the payroll murder of William B. Morris, Baltimore contractor, in August, 1922.

Benson said that up to three or four years ago Hart had an understanding with prison officials that he would not attempt escape if it involved attacking a guard, but that if he could find a space small enough to squeeze through, he was going.

He escaped in 1923, by removing window bars, and was returned to the jail the following year after being arrested for a $35,000 silk robbery in Chicago.

He escaped from solitary confinement in 1929 by sawing through three cell blocks. A year later he was arrested in San Francisco on a theft charge. Before authorities there learned his identity he skipped the bail he had posted.

In August, 1933, he was arrested as James (Red) Kelly on charges of shooting three men during a card game in Cicero, Ill., and was returned to Baltimore.

C. I. Londeree Rites Are Held; Stone Foreman

Charlottesville, Va., June 26 (Spl.).—Funeral rites for Charles I. Londeree, 52, foreman at the plant of the Alberene Stone Corp. at Schuyler, were held this afternoon at Woodland Methodist Church, at Manteo, in Buckingham County.

He was a native of Buckingham County, son of the late Charles and Millie Ragland Londeree. He married Miss Martha Ragland of Buckingham, who survives, with a daughter, Mrs. Lois Woody of Schuyler; three sisters, Mrs. William Adcock of Manteo, Mrs. Willard Bryant of Howardsville and Mrs. Pearl Londeree of Richmond, and five brothers, Massie Londeree of this city, Collie and Harry Londeree of Richmond, Joseph Londeree of Lynchburg, and Herman Londeree of Howardsville.

James Foster

Luray, Va., June 26.—James Foster, 63, sawmill operator, died unexpectedly here yesterday. He was stricken with a heart ailment in the yard at his home. Mr. Foster is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Bessie Gochenour, and the following children: Carl Foster of Baltimore and Luray, Mrs. Dolly Hebb, Miami, Fla., Mrs. Mamie Honn and Miss Bernice Foster, Baltimore, and Mrs. Nellie Brown, Leonardtown, Md.

Angelo D. Erba

Shenandoah, Va., June 26.—Funeral services were held yesterday for Angelo Dell Erba, 63, of Shenandoah and Washington, who died Thursday in a Washington hospital of head injuries received in a fall.

Henry Cox

Fredericksburg, Va., June 26.—Funeral services were held at Bethel Baptist Church in Stafford County today for Henry Cox, 54, a veteran of World War I, who died at Mount Alto Hospital, Washington, Sunday. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Sarah Cox, and a stepson, Lloyd Martin.

State Welfare Funds Short, Cities Protest

Richmond, Va., June 26 (AP).—Complaints from a number of localities of insufficient State funds to meet their welfare case loads posed a tough question for State fiscal authorities today.

Apparently, one of four courses might be followed. The State might cut the minimum basic expenditure per case, or "freeze" the relief lists at their present number; it might require the localities to bear a larger share of the burden; it might authorize deficit expenditures in amount sufficient to meet the expressed needs, or a special session of the General Assembly might be convened to deal with the problem.

The latter possibility, however, generally was regarded as remote in view of Governor Tuck's statement last weekend that the 1946 General Assembly increased the welfare appropriation by more than $500,000 for the new biennium beginning July 1 and that he was "at a loss to understand why the impression continues to grow that the General Assembly cut the appropriations to the State Board of Public Welfare."

Richmond has reported it is supplying only 80 per cent of basic minimum needs for old-age assistance, aid to the blind and aid to dependent children cases and faces a reduction from 60 to 35 per cent for general relief cases as of July 1.

Richmond, Roanoke, Alexandria, Henrico and Chesterfield have lodged protests.

Johnson Seated As Governor of Va. Boys' State

Blacksburg, Va., June 26 (AP).—An Osaka youth, J. B. Johnson, was inaugurated today by Governor Tuck as the Governor of the Old Dominion Boys State set up this week on the Virginia Tech campus to give Virginia boys experience in government.

Johnson defeated Patsy Warner, jr., of Richlands, by a vote of 181 to 110 in elections yesterday. Johnson was the Nationalist Party candidate and Warner the Federalist' man.

The Nationalist also won the lieutenant-governor's job, Douglas Knight of Norfolk defeating Robert White, a fellow townsman, 174 to 116.

Federalist Frank Avery of Fredericksburg defeated Nationalist Jimmy Marshall of Louisa for attorney-general by a vote of 147 to 144.

The Boys State bar association elected Billy Wolf, Norfolk, president; Johnny Chalfont, Arlington, vice president; Jack Prince, Appalachia, secretary, and Donald Runyan, Dunbar, treasurer.

The new governor succeeds Louis Tyree of Newport News, governor of the last Boys State held in 1941.

New Beetle Trap With DDT Used in Md.

Cumberland, Md., June 26 (AP).—A new type of Japanese beetle trap which contains DDT and requires no emptying, is being used here, according to Ralph F. McHenry, county farm agent.

The traps are not available for leasing.

Some areas here had a heavy infestation of beetles last year with one of the hardest hit areas being the Cumberland Country Club.

Maryland Sportsmen Elect Marten President

Glen Marten of Baltimore, has been elected president of the League of Maryland Sportsmen.

Other officers include J. R. Bordas of the Berwyn Rod and Gun Club, regional director, and A. Lee Amoss of the Prince Georges Game and Fish Conservation Association, treasurer.

Today And Tomorrow

The British Loan

THE BRITISH loan, which has already been approved by the Senate, will be before the House in the next few days. There would be little doubt of its approval there if, during the long months since the loan was negotiated and explained, so many among us had not forgotten the reasons for it. The result is now in doubt because a critical number of Congressmen and a large number of voters have come to think that to approve the loan is to approve and to underwrite the whole foreign and the whole imperial policy of Great Britain.

LIPPMANN

They are, of course, confirmed in this view by the very considerable number who favor the loan, not because it is a necessary measure to restore the economic life of the world in which the United States lives and works, but because they imagine it is a way of showing their disapproval of the Russians.

THOSE WHO hold these views are in fact saying that we have a pot of gold worth 4000 million dollars, and that like some lunatic millionaire we can bury it in the ground, or dig it up and give it away, depending upon whether we prefer to rebuke Mr. Bevin or to spite Mr. Molotov. Yet if that is the issue, if that is what this is all about, if this is the outcome which the State Department and the Treasury and leading members of Congress have been studying, arguing, and laboring to produce, we have been wasting a lot of time and money.

If our object is to show our disapproval of British foreign policy, it is simpler, cheaper, and more effective to say what we dislike. And if our object is to impress the Russians, what could be more roundabout and expensive than to lend money in London in order to annoy Moscow?

THE USE of money not for economic well-being but for political ends is known in our history as dollar diplomacy. The use of this loan to rebuke Mr. Bevin or to take a sideswipe at Mr. Molotov would be dollar diplomacy in its crudest and most amateurish form. We have outgrown dollar diplomacy, and we do not need to relapse into it.

For the object of this loan is to enable ourselves to live in a world in which we are not the sole and solitary country which still does business through free and private enterprise. Without this loan it is as certain as anything can be that British—the greatest international trading community in this world—will be driven into a strictly regimented, narrowly restricted, form of government trading. The loan is Britain's pledge and our inducement to work our way back from the regimentation of war to a system of freedom. That is such a great object that it is really very small potatoes to ignore it because we are having postwar political troubles with Mr. Bevin and Mr. Molotov.

ON BRITISH and Russian foreign policy there is much to be said—and it is certain to be said, and there will be no end to the things that will have to be said, for years to come. But this loan is not a good place to say it. Britain and Russia are the two great powers with whom we shall have to work, contend, be annoyed rather often, and be pleased now and then, as they are and will be with us, for as long a time as we can see ahead.

We are mixed up together on the same globe. It is not yet one world legally, normally, or spiritually. But we shall have to make it one world that is free and at peace under equal laws, no matter how long it takes, no matter how often we fail, no matter how many insulting and caddish remarks are made, no matter how stubborn, strong, or poisonous the forces of reaction and tyranny, of stupidity and guile, of greed and cowardice.

WHEN WE ASK ourselves nervously and wearily whether our high hopes are dashed, the great promises denied, we are trying to live too cheaply. We are dismayed because we find that great things are not to be had easily. They are not to be had easily. The pacification of this troubled earth, and the construction of a world order upon the anarchy and misery and fear which beset mankind must be, cannot help but be, the work of years and indeed of generations. It cannot be done in three weeks in Paris, or in six months in the Bronx, nor will it have failed and be impossible to do because it has not yet been done in Paris or in the Bronx.

To do it, a little of it, a part of it, men will first have to spend themselves, and be replaced by other men who will spend themselves too, until eventually and in long travail the new world is born.

Bodies of 2 Small Girls Found in Underbrush

San Francisco, June 25 (AP).—Badly bruised bodies of two small girls were discovered in underbrush some 25 miles south of here today after their 21-year-old mother, dazed and bleeding, was found wandering aimlessly in a rugged canyon.

Undersheriff Walter Moore of San Mateo County said the woman, Mrs. Lorraine Newton, told him her last recollection was motoring with her husband and the children along a coast highway yesterday.

Police sought the husband for questioning.

OPA Boosts Price Of Bottled Beer Sold in Stores

By the Associated Press

The price of beer was ordered up 1 cent a bottle by the OPA yesterday.

The increase, effective immediately, applies at present only to bottled beer consumed off the seller's premises. However, OPA expects to authorize an increase of 1 cent a bottle soon for beer served at bars and restaurants.

OPA said the price of draught beer will not be affected "because the increase per glass is too small to reflect 1 cent."

Brewers' price ceilings are being raised $1.27 a barrel of 31 gallons.

Chetniks Blamed for Yugoslavia 'Lidice'

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, June 26 (U.P.).—Six Serbian peasants testified today that brigands whom they believed to be Chetniks wiped out nearly the whole population of the village of Bolic in December, 1943.

Bolic is near Belgrade. The prosecution had charged in the trial of Gen. Draja Mihailovitch and 23 other prominent Chetniks that it was attacked as part of a Chenik purge of Communists and Partisan sympathizers.

A peasant woman wth an artificial larnyx said her head had been half cut off. She was able to make herself understood by holding one hand to her throat.

An old man in a sheepskin jacket said his whole family, including a 4-month-old baby, had been killed. Another witness said a friend had been tied to the ground and beaten to death with shovels.

A one-eyed man testified he was shot and fell to the floor, pretending he was dead.

Next to him, he said, was his dying brother, whose throat had been cut. He said his mother's throat had been cut also and she died up top of him (the witness).

A farmer said his whole family was knifed to death, from a 93-year-old grandfather to an 18-month-old nephew.

Mihailovitch was confronted by a blood-stained cradle and the woman whose neck had been half severed. He said the man they named as leader of the raid was one of his commanders, but he denied that he had ever issued an order to carry out any such slaughter.

Retail Price of Cotton Towels Hiked One Cent

The OPA last night announced an increase of 1 cent in the retail price of cotton towels.

It said the rise results from an 11.5 a dozen increase on cotton toweling granted to producers to cover increased costs of cutting and hemming.

The agency also increased the ceiling prices for producers on cotton goods less than one yard length by 25 per cent but the hike will not be passed on to the consumer.

Minister Freed In African Race Prejudice Case

Durban, South Africa, June 25 (U.P.).—The Rev. Michael Scott, who recently bought a native baby for $20 as part of his campaign against race prejudice, was freed with a court reprimand today on a charge of riotous assembly.

Forty-two others, mostly Indians, were in court with Scott to answer the charge. Two Indians were sentenced to seven days in jail at hard labor. The rest, like Scott, were let off with a caution.

Scott bought the baby with money which should have gone to pay an income tax instalment. He has pledged that he will pay no tax until there is a "dramatic reversal" of government policy toward non-white citizens, especially Indians.

Waiting is tough on us, too

For months we've been hoping to present each and every one of you with the new Packards you've ordered, and have been waiting for so patiently.

Last fall, the outlook was good. Packard was confident it would double its pre-war output in 1946. (The factory is equipped to turn out far more than that.)

Look what has happened!

Then came material shortages. Parts shortages. For reasons completely beyond its own control, Packard was able to keep its assembly line moving only nine days in the first quarter of this year.

In the meantime . . .

Our friends have kept calling us up and asking, "Hey! Where's that new Packard I ordered weeks ago?" Many of these are old friends—Packard owners since 'way back.

But to make life more complicated, everybody seems to want one of these grand new Packards. Over 65% of the people out to buy new Packards are now driving some other make.

Honest, it's gotten so we hate to answer the telephone or look our friends in the face. But . . .

Your patience will pay off!

One of these days, the shortage of parts and materials is bound to ease up. And when it does, those twin-assembly lines at Packard will really roll.

Anyway, you can depend on this:

As fast as the factory ships cars to us, we'll do everything we can to deliver yours at the earliest possible moment.

So, we hope you'll be patient a little longer. We're doing the best we can, and so are the folks at the factory!

Trieste's Future

By Barnet Nover

A Compromise In The Offing?

NOVER

THE ARRIVAL at Trieste of the United States cruiser Fargo gives substance to the persistent rumors that a compromise regarding Trieste is in the making at Paris.

Facing each other across the so-called Morgan Line which separates Italy and Yugoslavia is a small Anglo-American force and a very much larger Yugoslav force.

For that reason it has been feared that Marshal Tito might try to take over Trieste by force. It is also realized that the temptation for the Yugoslav dictator to attempt a coup might prove irresistable once it became clear that the Allies were finally going to reject Yugoslavia's demand for a peaceful cession of Trieste and Venezia Giulia.

With this in mind, it is a fair assumption that the strengthening of the Anglo-American naval force at Trieste is designed as a warning to Tito to indulge in no rash ventures as well as a move in anticipation of a four-power decision regarding the future status of the Adriatic port and its hinterland.

THE TRIESTE problem has from the very beginning of the Big Four effort to write the peace settlements with Italy and Germany's former satellites been the principle obstacle in the way of agreement, although by no means the only one.

It has long been recognized that the deadlock between Russia and the western powers could not be broken unless and until a solution of the Trieste problem were found.

Russia's contention has been that all of Venezia Giulia, including Trieste, should go to Yugoslavia.

Great Britain and the United States have insisted that any change in the status quo of the disputed region should be on the basis of self-determination.

Since Trieste itself is overwhelmingly Italian, Messrs. Byrnes and Bevin have favored its retention by Italy. They have, however, been prepared to agree to any equitable division of the rest of Venezia Giulia that did not result in the establishment of a large Italian minority in Yugoslavia or of a large Yugoslav minority in Italy.

IT IS A CURIOUS fact that recently the Russian press and radio have been redoubling their agitation for the cession of Venezia Giulia, including Trieste, to Yugoslavia.

This propaganda campaign would seem, at first glance, to give the lie to the rumors emanating from Paris that Molotov was preparing to abandon his stiff-necked attitude on the Trieste problem and accept an arrangement at variance with his earlier views.

Actually this Russian propaganda campaign may have been undertaken for the precise purpose of giving exaggerated importance to any concessions—however minor—that Molotov might make to his colleagues at Paris.

Certainly any scheme for the internationalization of Trieste would be far more to Russia's advantage than to those of the western powers.

ONLY IN A NEGATIVE sense could any internationalization scheme be regarded as in line with Anglo-American views or interests. It would mean, certainly, that sovereignty over Trieste would be withheld from Yugoslavia. But it would mean a further sacrifice, in the interests of expediency of the principle of self-determination embodied in the Atlantic Charter.

That principle has already received a bad battering from the Allies. It was not applied in Poland, in the case of the Baltic states, in the case of Bukovina.

It was flagrantly violated by the very Council of Foreign Ministers now meeting in Paris when the decision was reached to turn back all of Transylvania to Romania, despite the presence in that region of a sizable Hungarian minority. It was flouted again when the Foreign Ministers decided to let Italy keep the south Tyrol, although that region is overwhelmingly Austrian in population.

HAVING allowed this principle to be set aside in the case of Transylvania and the south Tyrol, Messrs. Byrnes and Bevin have found it more difficult than would otherwise have been the case to argue its pertinence in the case of Trieste.

Actually the real struggle over Trieste has been primarily and predominantly a struggle involving strategic and political stakes of great importance. If Trieste went to Yugoslavia it would mean the extension of Russia influence and authority to the Adriatic. It would mean the permanent domination of Austria and Hungary by the Soviet Union.

Internationalization would no doubt be a more equitable solution of the Trieste problem than outright cession to Yugoslavia. But in view of the experience the world has had with international zones both in the prewar period and recently in the case of Germany, Austria and Korea, the internationalization of Trieste would very likely mean only the perpetuation of friction among the great powers rather than the reverse.

Such a plan, despite its immediate advantages in the way of hastening the peace settlements that are so desperately needed, is full of concealed dynamite.

Sergeant Decorated 7 Times Tells of Lichfield Punishment

Bad Nauheim, Germany, June 26 (U.P.).—S/Sergt. James B. Gallordy, who was decorated seven times for heroism in the Normandy campaign, testified today that he was locked up seven weeks in a guardhouse of the Tenth (Lichfield, England) Reinforcement Depot for overstaying a pass five hours.

"I was punished three times in this period," Gallordy said, as a prosecution witness against Col. James A. Kilian, who was commanding officer of the depot.

"Once I was made to stand nose and toes t oa wall for 45 miniutes and on another occasion for three hours. Then, one day when I laughed at a particularly tough guard who tripped over a wire, Sergeant Smith (Judson Smith) beat me on the back with his billy club."

(Convicted of brutality toward prisoners, Smith is serving a three-year sentence at hard labor.)

Meanwhile, another court-martial found Thomas E. Warren of Plainview, Tex., guilty of wrongfully striking a military prisoner at Lichfield and fined him $100. He was the seventh Lichfield defendant convicted.

Gallordy also told how GI prisoners were forced to eat in five minutes and how they had seven hours of strenous army calisthenics at a stretch. One exercise, he said, consisted of standing 20 minutes with the arms outstretched.

A stocky, quiet-mannered man, Gallordy was in the D-Day landings and later was wounded at Brest, France.

He said he was sent to the Tenth Reinforcement Depot to be re-equipped and tried for weeks to get a pass. Finally, he did, but five hours of it had expired when he heard about it. So he and three buddies were late five hours and when they returned were charged with desertion and put into the guard house to await court martial.

The defense has contended that Lichfield prisoners were malingers and deserters and that the reason spartan treatment was instifrom using it as a haven.

Iran Company Cancels Azerbaijan Flight

Tehran, June 25 (AP).—Iranian Airways announced today it had canceled a scheduled flight from Tehran to Tabriz, capital of Azerbaijan Province, because it did not wish to risk its equipment on "enemy fields." The company's planes are operated by American personnel.

Joseph S. Iseman, operations manager of the company which is connected with Transworld Airlines, said that the flight was cancelled yesterday in view of the jailing of an American military attache a few days ago.

Engineer Braves Fire For Dynamite Caps

Medford, Oreg., June 25 (U.P.).—A Southern Pacific Railroad engineer backed his switch engine into raging flames tonight to haul two cars loaded with dynamite caps from an uncontrolled fire which swept through the plant of the American Fruit Co., two lumber yards and three homes.

All city fire equipment was fighting the blaze and extra help was summoned from Camp White. There were no reported dead or injured.

Eden Holds Atomic Energy Agreement Vital

Ottawa, June 25 (U.P.).—Anthony Eden, former British foreign minister, said today that when international understanding is reached on atomic energy, the solution of other world problems will follow automatically.

Eden, speaking before the Canadian branch of the Empire Parliamentary Union, said that "given a fair measure of good will," the world's quarrels "could be settled in a few hours."

A St. Bernard Grows in BROOKLYN

GALLO WINE GLACIER

Residents of Flatbush, Greenpernt, and Canarsie can't get enough of those tall, frosty Gallo Wine "Glaciers."

Naturally, the Gallo "Glacier" is so icy and so cold that parlors turn into igloos.

So they're sending St. Bernards to rescue these snow-bound Gallo "Glacier" lovers.

Many cases of frost-bite (and a few cases of St. Bernard bite) have been reported but no one has complained of the heat.

Science triumphs over Cleaning Drudgery!

IT'S MADE BY THE MAKERS OF CLOROX!

THE MODERN NEW HOUSEHOLD CLEANER
SAVES WORK...SAVES TIME...AND BEST OF ALL
IT'S SAFE ON PAINT...SAFE ON HANDS!

Boon, the modern new household cleaner, quickly and easily wipes away dirt, grime, grease, soot, fingerprints, lipstick, crayon, pencil marks from washable surfaces . . . no mixing, no rinsing, no drying. And, BOON does more! It cleans without harm to paint or hands. That's because in BOON intensive scientific research has achieved a safety-balanced cleaning formula.

The efficiency of BOON has been proved by repeated experiments based on U.S. Government testing methods.

BOON saves you time and work in cleaning walls, woodwork, floors and other washable surfaces. You merely wipe soiled area with a cloth saturated with BOON . . . dirt and grease disappear without hard rubbing. And, too, it costs surprisingly little to lighten your work and brighten your home with BOON. See simple directions on label.

5-Year Tax Bill Tops Previous 151-Year Total

S. Oliver Goodman

The size of those Federal income taxes during the past five years was not a mirage. Nor was the bill for other internal revenue payments.

The Index, quarterly publication of the New York Trust Co., yesterday issued an analysis of Federal taxes, graphically pointing out the skyrocketing trend since 1940.

The survey showed that in the five years from 1941 through 1945 Federal taxes have yielded 121.5 billion dollars. This was about 38 per cent more than the 88.7 billion dollars returned in internal revenue receipts during the preceding 151 years of our national history.

"Really heavy taxation in this country," the study says, "is a product of the last 10 years. The United States paid its first billion-dollar Federal tax bill in 1917. In 1942, Federal tax revenues reached 12 billion, approximately double the yield of the preceding year. In 1943 they totaled 21 billion, and in 1944 they again almost doubled, reaching 40 billion, while in 1945 they totaled 41 billion.

"Previous Federal tax collections, even under conditions imposed by World War I, had not prepared the Nation for a tax bill of this size. From approximately one billion in 1917, Federal tax revenues increased to 3.3 billion in 1918 and to 5.7 billion in 1920.

"From 1922 to 1930 they were on a fairly constant level, maintaining an average of about 3.3 billion, with a slight dip in 1925 and a slight increase in 1929 and 1930. For the next three years they declined to the low since 1917 of about 1.8 billion in 1932 and 1933. Then they began an irregular upward climb, and in 1940 reached five billion."

American Fork & Hoe Co. and subsidiaries reported for the fiscal year ended April 30 net profit of $632,384, or $1 a common share, against $1,022,738, equal to $1 a share in the previous fiscal year. The 1945 net includes a tax credit of $375,124.

International Telephone & Telegraph Co., in a cosolidated report which excluded some important subsidiaries, showed for the first quarter net loss of $1,520,588, compared with net income of $2,010,405, equal to 31 cents a share, in the first quarter of 1945.

Southern Natural Gas Co. and subsidiaries reported for 12 months ended March 31, net income of $3,770,302, equal to $2.67 a capital share, compared with $4,020,221, or $2.85 a share in the previous 12 month period. The 1945 figures were adjusted to reflect elimination of $1,269,185 of special amortization.

Emerson Radio & Phonograph Corp. and subsidiaries reported net income for 26 weeks ended May 4 of $343,909, or 85 cents a share, against $514,575, or $1.29 a share, for the comparable period last year.

Nunn-Bush Shoe Co. reported for six months ended April 30 net profit of $311,410, or $1.63 a common share, compared with $127,285, or 54 cents a common share, for the corresponding 1945 period.

American Export Lines reported for the quarter ended March 31 net profit of $834,337, compared with $426,522 in the comparable 1945 quarter.

Detroit Edison Co. and subsidiaries reported for 12 months ended May 31 net income of $8,498,862, equal to $1.34 a common share, compared with $6,647,707, or $1.05 a share, in the preceding 12-months period.

Chain Store Sales Up 43%

Chain store and mail order sales totaled $1,667,000,000 in April, an increase of 43 per cent over April, 1945, the Commerce Department reported yesterday.

This put the department's index of these sales during April at 216 per cent of the 1935-39 average, after adjustment for seasonal factors and the late Easter this year. In comparison, March was 227 and April, 1945, was 162.

The index decline from March to April, the department said, reflected the pronounced sales expansion in March to new peak levels rather than "any significant falling off in consumer purchasing in April."

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Keeping The Record Straight

THE STALEMATE between the western powers and Soviet Russia is growing into a sort of Chinese wall. New stones are being added at the United Nations meeting in New York and at the Conference of Foreign Ministers in Paris, so that soon we shall scarcely be able to look across at one another.

Childs

In view of the extreme gravity of this situation, as it develops from day to day, it is important to keep the record straight. Shortly before the current meeting of the Foreign Ministers, the statement was made in this column that it was regrettable that Secretary of State James F. Byrnes had not at an earlier date pressed his proposal for a 25-year four-power treaty to keep the peace in Europe.

SHORTLY BEFORE he left for the conference now going on in Paris, Secretary Byrnes wrote to me taking courteous issue with that statement and stressing the need to keep the chronology straight. Perhaps the best way to present the record is to quote the relevant paragraphs of the Secretary's letter.

"I became Secretary in July and immediately left for the Potsdam Conference. At Potsdam, the Council of Foreign Ministers was established. Its first meeting was held in London in September. It was during this meeting in the early part of September that I made the treaty proposal to Mr. Molotov.

"It was necessary to first discuss it informally and ascertain how it would be received by the Soviet government. Later, on December 24, I discussed it with Generalissimo Stalin and he agreed to it in principle and said he would support it.

"I announced this history to all the correspondents in Paris on the day I announced that I had made the offer. I emphasized that, instead of first being offered at that time, it had been agreed to by Generalissimo Stalin on Christmas Eve, 1945.

"When Mr. Molotov for the first time questioned Generalissimo Stalin's agreement, I stated at a press conference the history, a copy of which I will inclose for you because I do hope you will help me in keeping straight this record of its being proposed last September. The Paris meeting was simply the forum in which the announcement was made of what had been proposed in September, 1945."

THE RECORD inclosed by Secretary Byrnes shows that Stalin said he "would wholeheartedly support" such a treaty if Byrnes proposed it. Apparently Byrnes was still under that belief when he made public the proposal in Paris in April of this year.

If Stalin really meant what he said on December 24—and Byrnes believed that he did—then the first duty is to see if any logical reason exists for a change of mind. In the interval between December 24 and Molotov's abrupt rejection of the 25-year treaty, what was the chief single event affecting British-Soviet-United States relations? Obviously it was Winston Churchill's speech at Fulton, Mo., on March 5, which seemed to have been made with the sanction, if not indeed the approval, of President Truman.

Running through that speech was the intimation that the Soviet system, alien, secretive, harsh, implacable, could scarcely exist in the same world with the western democracies. At any rate, as read in the Kremlin, it was subject to that interpretation.

The Churchill speech caused the most violent outcry we have heard from Moscow since the end of the war. The masters of the Kremlin have not forgotten, of course, that Churchill became, after 1918, the chief fomenter of a holy crusade against Bolshevik Russia. I believe a careful examination of relations before the speech and after would show a striking change that could be directly attributed to the Churchill declaration.

IN THE LIGHT of all this, information which has come to me from a reliable source seems highly significant. In conversation with an important British official, Stalin recently remarked that no one in the Attlee government in London had as yet repudiated Churchill's remarks at Fulton. He said this with considerable feeling, plainly indicating it was a source of rancor. Moreover, he went on to point out that Churchill was still a paid official of the government, which is under Britain's parliamentary system, as leader of the opposition.

Perhaps the case is hopeless, as we are told so often by those who denounce "appeasers." The headlines—on atomic energy, on Trieste and so on—seem to confirm this. But we should not reconcile ourselves to this final disaster until the heads of state have met once again to try to clear the air of doubt and suspicion. It is time for Stalin, Truman and Attlee to sit down around the conference table to see whether any area of agreement exists.

Md. Auto Injures Youth Emerging Under Car

Westminster, Md., June 26 (AP).—Ivan Baublitz, 17, suffered a fractured skull and arm when a car struck him as he crawled from under a truck on the Houcksville pike near Hampstead yesterday, State Trooper Sergt. J. K. Cushwa reported.

The motorist was taking his wife to Maryland University Hospital on an emergency maternity case. Baublitz was taken to the same hospital in a Westminster ambulance.

Two Veteran Virginia Bridge Aides to Retire

Roanoke, Va., June 26.—Two officials of the Virginia Bridge Co., representing combined service of 85 years with that company and U. S. Steel Corp. of which it is a subsidiary, retired July, 1, it was announced today by L. A. Paddock, president. They are Robert J. Meybin, vice president and general manager, and Frederic E. Bishop, comptroller.

Meybin began his career with the Virginia Bridge & Iron Co., predecessor to the present concern, in 1906. Bishop started with the U. S. Steel in 1901, holding various posts in the corporation and its subsidiaries until 1936 when he became secretary and comptroller.

Coup's Failure Spurred Drive Into Manchuria

Tokyo, Japan, June 26 (U.P.).—The failure of a plot to overthrow the Japanese government with 300 fake bombs led a disgruntled militarist-minded group to plan the Mukden incident, permitting the Japanese army to sweep into Manchuria, prosecution witnesses testified today at the war crimes trials.

Marquis Yoshichika Tokugawa, of the Japanese peerage, told the court he tried to persuade Shumei Okawa, one of the original 28 defendants, to abandon plans for a coup d'etat in 1931.

Tokugawa said Okawa's group planned to storm the Diet building with 300 faked "bomb explosions" and pave the way for installation of a military clique.

Konosuke Shimizu, to whose house the bombs allegedly were delivered, testified that Okawa personally originated the overthrow plot and when that failed conspired with army leaders to cause the Mukden incident.

Shimizu said that Okawa told him one night when he was drunk on saki that Okawa and members of the Kwantung army planned to stitution suffering from paresis afbring about the incident.

Okawa was sent to a mental inter he slapped former Premier Hideki Tojo on his bald head at the opening of the trials.

Former Premier Kijuro Shidehara said under cross-examination that the Japanese cabinet was unable to control the army's rush into Manchuria, once the "incident" had started.

100 Va. Workers on Strike

Pulaski, Va., June 26 (AP).—Upwards of a hundred employes of the two plants of the American Pigment Corp., of Pulaski County, remained away from their jobs today because of a dispute with the firm's management over a union shop.

War Crimes Trial Nears End; Last of 21 Heard

Nuernberg, Germany, June 26 (U.P.).—Hans Fritsche, one-time chief of Nazi radio propaganda, today testified in his own defense at the war crimes trial, the last of the 21 top Nazis on trial to do so.

Presentation of evidence against Martin Bormann, Hitler's deputy who is missing and believed dead, and final arguments by counsel will conclude the individual cases which opened November 20. This was expected to take three to four weeks. The international tribunal then will hear the cases against organizations and groups, such as the Gestapo, the SS and the German high command.

Fritsche testified after Constantin von Neurath, Nazi protector of Bohemia and Moravia, completed his defense.

Von Neurath admitted he was morally responsible for the Lidici massacre in 1942.

Von Neurath acknowledged the order but said he accepted only "moral responsibility."

"Did you not set up a system of hostages which eventually led to the horrors of Lidici?" Raginsky asked.

"If our enemies did not obey orders they naturally would be punished," Von Neurath replied.

Von Neurath claimed he postponed signing an anti-Jewish order from April to July 1939 "to give the Jews time to prepare themselves."

Hans Voelkers, former Cabinet secretary in Prague, Von Neurath's last witness, said the SS had been "completely independent" of him.

Hans Dieckhoff, former German Ambassador to Madrid and to Washington, said Sumner Welles, former U. S. Undersecretary of State, expressed regret when Von Neurath resigned as Nazi foreign minister in 1938. Dieckhoff is now detained with other former German diplomats at a camp near Frankfurt.

Virginia Reports Seven New Spotted Fever Cases

Richmond, Va., June 26 (AP).—Seven new cases of Rocky Mountain spotted fever were reported to the State Health Department's bureau of communicable diseases for the week ending last Saturday, the bureau announced today.

The new cases brings the total for the last four weeks to 22 cases, which health department officials declare is unusually high. However, they are not alarmed over the situation as yet and had no comment to make yesterday other than to renew the admonition to beware of ticks.

Bridge Authorized

The House Interstate Committee yesterday approved legislation authorizing Kentucky and West Virginia to build a free highway bridge across Tug Fork of the Big Sandy River at or near Williamson, W. Va.

France Triples Duty On Imported Tobacco

Paris, June 25 (AP).—The finance canceled yesterday in view of the ministry tripled the customs duty on imported tobacco today, increasing the tax on a package of American or British cigarettes to 75 cents.

Black market prices on American cigarettes presently average about $1.25 a package.

Tigers Blast Bosox, 16-2, Then Bow, 9-3

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

The American League vs. National League All-Star game, a war casualty in 1945, moves back on the Summer scene at Boston on July 9 and the man with the best claim to a job on the A. L. team would seem to be Mickey Vernon, of the Washington Club.

POVICH

In another week, the 16 big league managers will submit their nominations for the All-Star teams as they customarily have done ever since the baseball brass hats took the game away from the fans who formerly picked the teams by popular vote. Only the unreasonable American League manager could leave Vernon off his ballot as his league's first baseman.

Vernon, the league's leading hitter, is so far in front of every other first baseman that it is no contest. At this point he is batting .365, with his closest challenger being Rudy York of the Red Sox. Vernon is outhitting York by 79 points and a thousand points separate them defensively. Hank Greenberg is wallowing in the depths with a mere .266 average, but those 17 home runs of his will probably land him an honorary place in the lists.

The Red Sox are sure shots to provide two of the top three American League outfielders with Ted Williams (.354) and Dominic Di Maggio (.341) impossible to pass over. This is the year when Joe Di Maggio's little brother is a better ball player than Yankee Joe who is struggling in the .266 bracket. Like Greenberg, however, Joe Di Maggio will probably be voted onto the club. The managers aren't always impressed with averages. That was the complaint against the popular vote—that the fans were over-impressed by figures.

It's some kind of a commentary on the American League that only three of its regular outfielders are hitting .300 this year. The third is Charley Keller of the Yankees (.335), who is eclipsing Joe Di Maggio on his own team. A Williams-Dom DiMaggio-Keller outfield doubtless will be in the starting A. L. lineup.

Because six outfielders will be named to the squad, Washington may get a look-in in that department. Buddy Lewis is hitting a nifty .292 and Stan Spence (.290) is on a home run spree besides being one of the better defensive outfielders. The White Sox rookie, White Platt, recommends himself with his .299 figure.

It will be a rough deal for Johnny Berardino of the Browns if he isn't elevated to the second base job ahead of his more famous contemporaries, Bobby Doerr, and Joe Gordon who have been All-Star game perennials. Berardino (.322) is the only second baseman in the league who is hitting .300 and his defensive play this year has been of a high order. Doerr (.287) tops the league in runs-batted in, however, and it was his home run in Shibe Park with two on that won the 1943 All-Star game for the A. L.

The hardest choice confronting the managers may be at shortstop where they must choose between Vern Stephens (.323) of the Browns, Luke Appling (.308) of the White Sox and Johnny Pesky (.305) of Boston. Phil Rizzuto of the Yankees has eliminated himself by his long slump that finds his average down to .226. Lou Boudreau (.290) of the Indians also commands respect. My personal choice would be Pesky.

At third base, Rookie Ed Kell (.274) of the Tigers could be the choice despite the fact that Bill Johnson (.300) of the Yankees is outhitting him. But Johnson has played in far fewer games and Kell's defensive play has been beyond criticism. Ken Keltner, a former third base landmark in the All-Star games, has scant claim this year with his .224 average.

There isn't a catcher in the American League who is hitting as much as .280, and Hal Wagner (.276) of the Red Sox tops the list. Manager Bill Dickey of the Yankees (.260) will doubtless win a place on the team along with Wagner but as a group the league's catching falls befow the former par.

The easiest choice will be in the pitching. Six hurlers are customarily chosen and the top six can be rattled off quickly. They are Hal Newhouser (10-2), Dave Ferris (10-2), Bob Feller (11-5), Mickey Harris (9-2), Spud Chandler (11-3) and Jack Kramer (7-4). Any manager would be delighted to go along with that staff.

On recent form, however, Tex Hughson demands recognition. His average of 7-4 is not as fancy as those of the other pitchers, but Hughson's last two victories were impressive shut-outs. The best bet is that he'll find a place on the club. In fact, there'll probably be six Red Sox on the A. L. team, watch.

Race Course to Be Widened For President's Cup Regatta

The Hains Point course will be doubled its width to assure greater speed for the President's Cup Regatta September 20-22, civic leaders and regatta sportsmen were told yesterday at the first report luncheon this season in the Cabinet Room of the Willard Hotel.

Eric Greenleaf, the new powerboat chairman, made the announcement, and at the same time said that his committee had mapped out a program designed to bring the world's greatest speed stars to the Nation's Capital for the first regatta classic to be held here since Dan Arena piloted Herb Mendelson's fleet Notre Dame to victory in 1940.

Greenleaf's plans for improving the 2½-mile course also called for better crane service to handle the big boats for the possibility of "some hoped-for dredging."

"We have promises from some big names in outboard and inboard racing," Greenleaf declared.

Presiding over the session was R. Aubrey Bogley, general chairman of the regatta committee, who formerly held the powerboat chairmanship, and upon whose shoulders will rest the responsibility for directing not only the Gold Cup classic, crowning event of the regatta, but also the swimming, canoeing and rowing contests scheduled September 7-8 and the sailing on September 14-15.

Thomas P. Morgan, jr., and Rear Admiral Merlin O'Neill, assistant commandant of the Coast Guard, were named as Bogley's aides.

Capt. L. H. Baker, of the Coast Guard, was appointed Patrol Committee chairman and Anton Koerber as membership committee chairman. Donald G. White, of the U. S. Engineers, will serve as one of the regatta directors.

Edward C. Baltz, president of the President's Cup Regatta Association; Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, District Engineers' Commissioner; Rear Admiral (Ret.) H. G. Hamlet, executive secretary; Edgar Morris, newly elected vice president and Edmund F. (Ned) Jewell, past commodore of the Corinthian Yacht Club were among other who spoke and occupied the speakers' table.

Bogley also announced that the Navy Yard would be used this season and that both the Navy and Coast Guard would cooperate 100 per cent. Special transportation to and from Hains Point also will be arranged, it was stated.

Ted Williams, Greenberg Hit 2 Homers

Detroit, June 26 (AP).—The scoring game in big bunches here today as the Detroit Tigers chased across 15 runs in the first two innings to hand the Boston Red Sox their worst defeat of the season, 16 to 2, in the first half of a twin bill and Boston came roaring back with a seven-run eighth inning to grab the nightcap, 9 to 3, and gain an even split.

Ted Williams and Hank Greenberg, running a neck and neck race for the home run leadership, each belted a homer in each game to remain deadlocked at 19 each.

Detroit scored seven runs off three Boston pitchers in the opening inning of the first game and powered across eight more runs in the second as Greenberg and Hal Newhouser knocked in five with a home run each.

It was the first home run of Newhouser's seven-year major league career and helped him coast to his thirteenth victory of the season while striking out 11 men. Manager Joe Cronin yanked all his regulars but Catcher Roy Partee and Williams in the third inning.

Virgil (Fire) Trucks, Detroit fastballer, had a 3-2 lead going into the eighth inning of the nightcap when the Red Sox exploded six hits for seven runs to give Dave (Boo) Ferriss his eleventh win after three straight defeats.

Walker Stars As Dodgers Trip Reds, 4-2

Brooklyn, June 26 (AP).—The league leading Brooklyn Dodgers maintained their three-game National League margin over the St. Louis Cardinals today by defeating the Cincinnati Reds, 4-2 while the Red Birds downed the Philadelphia Phillies.

Dixie Walker accounted for all of the Dodgers' runs with two triples and a single. The popular outfielder batted in three markers and tallied another with his seventh inning three-bagger with two on breaking a 2-2 tie.

The Reds began the scoring in the second when Ray Mueller hit his third homer in two days with none on off Rex Barney. Walker tied the count in the third by singling home Pete Reiser. Cincinnati went back in front in the fifth on Pitcher Ed Heusser's single, a walk and Ed Lukon's one-bagger but the Dodgers deadlocked the score again in the sixth on Walker's first triple and Ed Steven's single.

Barney bowed out in favor of Art Herring in the eighth inning when the Reds put two men on base. Herring retired the side and Barney received credit for the win, his first of the season.

Fred Stroth Wins Va. Junior Golf

Richmond, Va., June 26 (AP).—Seventeen-year-old Fred Stroth, Bristol dairy employe, won the State junior golf championship today in an 18-hole playoff with a fellow townsman, Bill Pritchett.

Stroth fired a 6 over par 77 over the Lakeside Country Club course against Pritchett's 86 and had an even par 36 on the back nine.

Pritchett's chances largely evaporated on two holes, the second where his tee shot caught a trap, and the sixth where his ball found a bad stone lie that cost him a 3 over par 6.

Giants Release Pitcher Andrews

New York, June 26 (AP).—Manager Mel Ott of the New York Giants tonight announced the unconditional release of Nate Andrews, veteran righthanded pitcher, who recently was signed by the New Yorkers after he had been released by the Cincinnati Reds.

Andrews, a 16-14 pitcher with the Boston Braves two seasons ago, was belted from the mound by the Chicago Bubs in the second inning of a game Sunday.

Ferrell Resigns Lynchburg Post

Lynchburg, Va., June 26 (AP).—Wesley Cheek Ferrell, former major league pitcher, today resigned as manager of the Piedmont League Lynchburg Cardinals, but will continue to handle the team until his successor arrives about the first of next week.

Business Manager Wallace McKenna said he would delay naming the new pilot until the successor arrives.

The Lynchburg team is 23½ games behind the leading Portsmouth Cubs and in the Piedmont League cellar.

Ferrell will return to his home at Guilford, N. C.

Brown to Play 9 on Grid

Patty Berg Rallies to Top Betty Hicks

Des Moines, June 26 (AP).—The two ranking favorites, defending champion Babe Didrikson Zaharias and persistent Patty Berg, today handled the easiest and toughest tests, respectively, as eight survivors bounced into the quarter-final round of the Women's Western Open Golf Tournament at the Wakonda Club.

While the Babe, representing Denver, Colo., was matching masculine par in routing 18-year-old Jean Hutto of Kansas City, 6 and 5, Minneapolis' Miss Berg had to come off the ropes again and again to whip Betty Hicks of Chicago, 1 up on the 18th.

Mrs. Zaharias zoomer over the first nine in 36, one under men's par and three under feminine standard 39. Miss Hutto, hopelessly outdistanced by Babe's whistling tee shots, failed to take a single hole.

Mrs. Zaharias went over men's figures only once and that was on the deciding 13th hole where she was twice stymied and took an one-over-par six. Babe had 54 strokes for the 13 holes played.

There was one other battle settled on the 18th green in the eight match session as veteran Mrs. H. R. Staats of Davenport, Iowa, defeated Betty Jane Haemerle of Normandy, Mo., 1 up. But the Berg-Hicks clash, in which only five holes were halved and the lead changed hands five times, was the gallery-getter.

Miss Hicks carried the scrap to her red-haired foe the first nine, winning four holes, but held only a 1 up lead at the turn. It was even again—for the third time—on the 10th when Patty banged a par four to start a back nine count of 37, one under women's par.

Miss Hicks took the eleventh. Miss Berg evened it again on the twelfth and Betty went ahead for the last time on the fourteenth. Patty's birdie four on the 482-yard sixteenth squared it again and then she stowed it way with a 20-footer for a deuce on the seventh. The eighteenth was halved with fours. Miss Berg took a 78 and Miss Hicks an 82.

In the dynamite-filled upper bracket starting at 1:15 p. m. (CST) tomorrow Mrs. Zaharias will face professional Betty Jameson of San Antonio, Tex., whose eagle three on the 403-yard sixteenth was the finishing blow in a 3 and 2 victory over Shirley Spork of Detroit.

In the lower bracket, Miss Berg encounters Marjorie Row, Riverside, Ont.

Hitchcock Nabs a Chisox Runner at Third

15 INNINGS LATER THE NATS WON—Washington Third Baseman Bill Hitchcock was waiting with the ball in the first inning of yesterday's game when Chisox Outfielder Mizell Platt tried to go from first to third on Don Kolloway's hit. Stan Spence made the throw to Hitchcock. The Nats won, 4-3. The umpire is Joe Paparella.

Nats Defeat Chisox, 4-3, In 16 Innings

Kennedy followed with another single to center, but Platt was cut down, trying for third on a true peg to Hitchcock by Spence.

The Nats went one up in the sixth, putting together four hits, and had the ill luck to have another counter erased at the plate on a fine throw by Wright.

Travis opened the frame with a single but was forced at second by Priddy. Hitchcock put on the perfect hit-and-run-play single through short to send Priddy to third. Evans' single scored Gerry as Hitchcock stopped at second. Leonard followed with a single but Wright's perfect strike to Tresh nailed Hitchcock at the plate. Grace ended things by grounding out.

Leonard Settles Down

Meanwhile, Leonard had settled down after his rough first inning and was flinging six innings of two-hit ball until he was touched for three safeties and the tying run in the eighth.

The Nats touched Papish, who had relieved Haynes starting the ninth, for hits in each inning from the tenth to the fifteenth before putting two together along with that error for the winning marker in the sixteenth.

Leonard retired the side in order in the ninth and tenth and Haefner duplicated that feat in the eleventh and twelfth before retiring in favor of pinch-hitter Mike Guerra in the thirteenth.

That left it in Hudson's lap, which turned out to be a pleasure as far as the Nats were concerned.

Jimmy Dykes, who by now should be manager of the Cleveland Indians according to the "experts" who had Lou Boureau out in the cold, visited the White Sox dressing room today still very much "at liberty" . . . Leonard retired the White Sox in order in the third on four pitched balls. . . . Billy Hitchcock's sixth inning single that sent Gerry Priddy from first to third was almost a duplicate of Luke Appling's hit and run single that ultimately beat the Nats yesterday. Billy slashed the ball right through the spot Appling vacated, and it paid dividends because on the very next pitch, Al Evans singled to center with the run that put the Nats in front, 3-2. . . . The Nats moved on to Boston tonight, starting a tough 25-hour train ride before engaging the league-leading Red Sox in a four-game series, single contests Friday and Saturday and a double-header Sunday . . . Roger Wolff will face the league leaders in Friday's opener.

Coulter 'Jump's Ga. Tech, Signs With Pro Giants

Fort Worth, Tex., June 26 (AP).—Dewitt Coulter, former All-American lineman at West Point, confirmed the report here Wednesday that he has signed a contract with the New York Giants. The agreement was reached Monday after a conference here with Wellington Mara of the New York club.

Coulter had previously announced that he would go to Georgia Tech to study commercial art.

"In the light of the fact that I plan to be married in about two weeks," he said, "I couldn't turn down the Giant offer. Too, they are going to help me to go on with my education and I plan to go to art school in New York."

Coulter said he would marry Miss Ruth Tindle of Fort Worth, a former student at Masonic Home where Coulter first won fame as a gridder and track weight man. They have been "going together" since they were together in the ninth grade.

Coulter refused to confirm the report that the contract called for $19,000 plus $2500 for signing. However, friends said that was the correct figure.

25,616 Watch Cards Snap Phils' Streak

Philadelphia, June 26 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals snapped a five-game victory streak of the Philadelphia Phillies today, winning 4 to 1.

The loss, witnessed by a Ladies' Day crowd of 25,616—including 15,624 paid—was the seventh in the Phils' last 25 games. It kept them from climbing to the top of the National League second division as the league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers defeated the fifth place Cincinnati Reds, 4 to 2.

Ervin Dusak sewed up the game in the fourth inning with a home run, scoring Stan Musial ahead of him.

The Phillies got their only run in the fourth inning as young Charley Gilbert, rightfield replacement for Ron Northey, walloped a lusty triple and scored on an outfield fly.

Until the eight inning when the Cards scored their final two runs the Ladies' Day crowd was in an uproar. After the game, some of the Cards said the enthusiasm was reminiscent of Brooklyn in its palmiest days.

In the eighth the Cards got their final tuo runs on a single by Elvin Adams and doubles by Stan Musial and Enos Slaughter.

The huge mid-week throng brought the home attendance of the Phils over the half-million mark, compared to 382,000 in the entire 1945 season.

Murray Dickson held the Phils to six hits.

Yanks Drop Indians, 8-4; Chandler's 11th

Cleveland, June 26 (AP).—The New York Yankees wound up a successful Western invasion today by defeating the Cleveland Indians, 8-4, in the rubber game of the three-game series. The victory gave the Yankees a record of eight games out of 12 for the trip and reduced the lead of the Boston Red Sox to seven games.

Spud Chandler was the Yankee winning pitcher, the ace righthander spacing eight hits for his eleventh triumph. Heavy hitting by Joe Gordon and Charlie Keller made it easy for the former Georgia football star.

Gordon put the Yanks in front in the second inning with a two-run homer off Red Embree, his seventh. Keller's first of two doubles added two in the third and the Yanks collected a total of four more runs in the eighth and ninth against Joe Krakauskas and Pete Center.

Chandler got into trouble in the fifth when three Indian hits produced a run and again in the sixth when Pat Seerey belted his ninth round tripper after Les Fleming had walked. Doubles by Felix Mackewicz and Lou Boudreau ended Cleevland's scoring in the eighth.

Witch Sir, 50 to 1, Wins Equipoise

Chicago, June 26 (AP).—Witch Sir, at odds of 50 to 1, was the surprise winner of the $35,000 Equipoise Mile at Arlington Park today, with Old Kentuck second and the 3-to-5 favorite, Armed, the Nation's handicap champion, third in a field of 12.

The winner, owned by Louis Schlosser, Chicago baker, paid $106.60, $30.60 and $7.20 across the board. The place price on Old Kentuck was $6.40 with $3.20 to show. Armed paid $2.60 to show.

Armed, winner of $174,350 this season, was away slowly and ran ninth down the back stretch, but gradually made up ground.

A crowd of 20,000 witnessed the upset.

The time for the mile was 1:37 1-5.

U. S. Pros Under Canadian Par

Montreal, June 26 (AP).—From their performances in practice, United States golf pros appear sure to set a new competitive course record when the Canadian Open golf championship starts tomorrow on the Beaconsfield Club course. The competitive mark stands at par 72, and already Harry Todd, up-and-coming pro star from Dallas, Tex., and George Fazio of Los Angeles have toured the layout in 68.

That the home-breds also will have a word to say was shown yesterday, when Stan Leonard of Vancouver, B. C., posted a 6-under-par 66.

Cooper Beats Chicubs, 11-2, For Braves

Boston, June 26 (AP).—Keeping 12 hits, including a pair of two-baggers, well scattered, the veteran Mort Cooper out-lasted four Chicago pitchers today while hurling the Boston Braves to an 11-2 victory for the odd game of their three-game series.

The Cubs scored their pair of tallies i nthe fourth inning, before the Tribesmen were able to give Cooper a run. But in the last half of that frame, they set off a four-runs rally against Starter Hank Wyse and Charlie Adams, the first of the Chicago "firemen" called into the free-hitting action.

Billy Herman led the Braves' 15-hit attack by collecting three singles and Phil Masi connected for a triple.

Kramer Tops Avory at Wimbledon

No. 2 Steller Wins Despite Hand Blister

Wimbledon, England, June 26 (AP). His blistered racket hand protected by a gray cloth glove, Jack Kramer of Los Angeles walloped E. R. Avory, 6—1, 6—1, 6—0 today, continuing the withering American advance through the third day of the Wimbledon Tennis Championships while the vaunted Australian title bid lost some of its steam.

The No. 2 seeded American ran into a new twist from his British opponent—a pendulum windup for his service—but the oddity was no help to Avory once the ball got into play. Kramer played leisurely from the baseline, going up to the net only twice during the last set in which he gave up only eight points. He found Avory's baseline and sidelines at will to advance to the third round.

While the Wimbledon championships, being played for the first time since 1939, advanced rapidly with all seeded players making good, the upsets began with two big league Australians.

Harper Eliminated

Jack Harper, ranked No. 8 down under where the Davis Cup rests, was eliminated the second round by A. C. Van Swol, of Holland a big rangy racket-wielder who rallied fast after dropping the first set, 4—6. The next two were deuced with Van Swol winning 8—6, 7—5. He took the fourth more easily, 6—3.

The second Aussie ousted was the international veteran Harry Hopman, who at 39 still swats with the best. He let slip a two-set lead to Pierre Pellizza of France, and went out 4—6, 4—6, 6—3, 6—4, 6—1 as Frenchmen from all parts of Wimbledon rallied to the word that the tricolor was flying high on the courts.

Their elimination left two Australians in the singles competition —top-seeded Dinny Pails, who was extended in one set in accounting for H. Wilton of Holland, 6—0, 6—4, 6—1, and No. 3 seeded Geoff Brown who made short shrift of H. Marriner of Britain, 6—0, 6—0, 6—1.

Pancho Segura, Ecuadorean who is seeded fourth, made a second-round victim of J. S. Comery of Britain, 6—1, 6—1, 6—1, and Yvon Petra, French Davis Cupster and seeded No. 5, found J. Pallada of Yugoslavia stubborn in the first two sets but finally tamed him, 9—7, 6—4, 6—0. Eighth seeded Lennart Bergelin, 22-year-old Swedish Davis Cup star, chalked up the most impressive win—beating M. E. Lucking of Britain in love sets.

Meanwhile, the seeded American misses moved into the third round of the women's singles in step, each winning in straight sets. No. 3 seeded Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., trimmed Mrs. M. Landry of France, 6—2, 6—1. Louise fell on her right knee in the fifth game of the second set, skinning it slightly.

Dorothy Bundy Scores

Dorothy Bundy of Santa Monica, Calif., fifth seeded, eliminated a strong British doubles player, Mrs. Betty Passingham, 6—4, 6—1, and Miami's Doris Hart, No. 7, rolled over Miss Joan Ingram of England, 6—0, 6—1. Unseeded Kay Winthrop of South Hamilton, Mass., defeated Mrs. G. Blaisse of Holland, 2—6, 6—0, 6—1.

Mrs. Pat Canning Todd, of Hidden Valley, Calif., a member of the U. S. Wightman Cup squad but unseeded, trounced Mrs. R. E. Haylock of Britain, 6—1, 6—0.

Mrs. M. C. Belin of Washington, D. C., became the first American woman to lose when she was eliminated by Mrs. P. Danton of Britain, 7—5, 6—3.

Top-seeded Pauline Betz of Los Angeles and Margaret Osborne of San Francisco, seeded No. 2, advanced to the third round yesterday.

Mrs. Kay Stammers Menzies, seeded No. 4 and the roaring lion's brightest hope in the women's singles competition, kept pace with her American rivals. She conquered Mrs. E. S. Law, a fellow countrywoman, 6—3, 6—1, in a second round match.

Durocher Fined $100 by Ford Frick

Brooklyn, June 26 (AP).—Manager Leo Durocher of the Brooklyn Dodgers was notified before the start of today's contest with the Cincinnati Reds that he had been fined $100 by National League President Ford Frick for his rumpus with Umpire Tom Dunn yesterday.

Durocher was thrown out of yesterday's 15-3 Cincinnati victory for protesting an inning ending double-play in the Dodger half of the eighth.

Pennsylvania Board Grants Guild Hearing

Harrisburg, Pa., June 26 (AP).—Robert Murphy and his American Baseball Guild today were granted a hearing before the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board in his quest to unionize the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Less than an hour after arrival of Murphy's petition seeking a collective bargaining election, the PLRB set July 2 for a hearing at Pittsburgh.

The board's action contrasted sharply with the rebuff met by the guild at the hands of the National Labor Relations Board which already had declined to hold hearings.

"We're going to be fair with both the guild and the baseball club in this case," said Board Secretary Jacob Bryerton in announcing Trial Examiner Conrad H. Checco will conduct the hearing to collect evidence for eventual action by the three-man board.

But, because of jurisdictional difficulties, it may not be entirely smooth sailing for Murphy's union.

PLRB Chairman Darrell W. Smiley said last week a prime issue will be whether the Pirates are engaged in intra-State business only. If not, the board is required by Pennsylvania law to consign jurisdiction to the NLRB.

Such a move, in view of the NLRB's decision not to hold hearings, would doom Murphy's hopes of gaining official recognition of his union in the Keystone State, Smiley added.

Broken Hand Forces Robinson Out of Bout

Milwaukee, June 26 (AP).—Sugar Ray Robinson, New York welterweight, notified Matchmaker Morrie Zenoff today that an injury would prevent him from meeting Chuck Hunter of Cleveland here Monday night.

Robinson informed Zenoff that he suffered a broken hand in defeating Norman Rubio at Union City, N. J., last night. Zenoff said he was trying to sign Jake Lamotta of New York as a substitute for Robinson.

Movies' 'Green Thumb' Grows Perfect Fruit In Cronin Boy Story

FOR QUICK CLASSIFICATION, and in the large view, "The Green Years," this morning's new screen attraction at Loew's Palace, is a companion-piece to "How Green Was My Valley" and "The Corn Is Green."

Ann Sheridan

The kinship extends beyond the mere matter of titular coloration.

Like its predecessors, this Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of the A. J. Cronin novel unfolds a simple and warmly human story, richly embellished with illuminating incident, sharply etched character drawings and an atmospheric background that closely approximates reality.

The narrative embraces a wide panorama of people and events and spans the years between childhood and young manhood in the life of a lad born in Dublin and reared by his maternal relatives in a bleak little town in Scotland.

In their adaptation, Scenarists Robert Ardrey and Sonya Levien have observed a respectful regard for the original, and Victor Saville has directed with a shrewd eye for the contrasts of minor persecution and sympathetic understanding, pathos and humor, threatened disaster and eventual triumph.

Through the craftsmanship of its sponsors and the abilities of an uncommonly capable cast, "The Green Years" emerges as a closely woven dramatic fabric. It knits many loose ends of plot into a tight pattern of spiritual and physical conflict that gets pretty well down to the fundamentals of clear thinking and useful living.

Petticoat Indignity

As the play opens, Master Robert Shannon is arriving from Dublin and the precepts of the Roman Church to live out his life in the penurious Presbyterian home of Grandma Leckie in the village of Loganford, Scotland.

He is accepted into the household as an utter alien, upon whom is heaped the crowning insult of a school suit fashioned from the worn folds of an outrageous green, ancestral petticoat. This affront to male sensibilities precipitates the boyhood fight that forms the basis of the youngster's staunchest friendship. The admiration of little Alison Keith lays the foundation of the picture's expanding vein of romance.

The clashes of early training and the rigid regimentation of the oddly incompatible Leckie family, however, quickly lead to open rebellion against the iron domination of Great-Grandma Leckie and a strange spiritual alliance with the Bibulous, blustering and ineffectual Great-Grandpa Gow.

Out of this community of spirit comes the eventual unseating of all the penny-pinching Leckies—bellweathered by Grandpa Leckie, pompous in his post of assistant sanitary inspector; the crafty Adam, scheming insurance solicitor; Kate, the school teacher, and the elder harridans—and the realization of all Robie's dreams through the great-hearted foresight of Grandpa Gow.

Glows With Kindness

This homely tale of warming and repellant relationships and variegated embroidery is spun out with frequent changes of pace, flashes of engaging comedy and constantly mounting interest, as Robert's ambition for a doctor's degree and Alison's for a musical scholarship seem to grow more and more remote from fulfillment. The play's impact is wholly on the side of tolerance, kindliness and virtue triumphant. It leaves a nice feeling around the heart.

If, in view of many fine performances, "The Green Years" belongs to anyone, it is Charles Coburn's. As Grandpa Gow, the venerable and versatile Coburn contributes a robustious portrayal of a roughly tender old gentleman with more than a little of a Rabelaisian Falstaff about him. Most of the humor and all of the compassion stems from this character. On the strength of it, Mr. Coburn might find himself on the way to another Academy Award.

Next to the Coburn characterization must be ranked that of Grandpa Leckie, executed by Hume Cronyn with scene-stealing, if not picture-stealing, skill. Cronyn's stock as a character actor rises to the top of the board with this admirable depiction of a chill and unsympathetic figure.

Gladys Cooper, the Grandma Leckie, and Selena Royle, Mama Leckie, are foremost among the feminine players, with Jessica Tandy close in their wake.

Man and Boy

Robert and Alison, in their maturer years, are honestly and effectively played by Tom Drake and Beverly Tyler, and, as children, by Dean Stockwell, an extraordinarily likable moppet, and Eilene Janssen. Hank Daniels gives an excellent account of himself as the older Gavin Blair, and Richard Lyon of the same character in childhood.

Richard Haydn is splendidly cast as the headmaster, completely on Grandpa Gow's side in salvaging Robert fro mthe avariciousness of the Leckies, and valuable supporting roles are handsomely played by such as Wallace Ford, Norman Lloyd, Andy Clyde, Robert North, Henry O'Neill, the understanding Canon Roche; Henry Stephenson and Norma Varden.

The two hours and eight minutes required by the detailed and deliberate completeness of "The Green Years" reduces the short subjects on the new bill at the Palace to "The Milky Waif," a cartoon comedy, and "News of the Day." Excess baggage, at that, with so superlative a feature.

The pendulum was invented by the Italian astronomer Galileo.

New York, June 26.—On the eve of the Louis-Conn fight Lou Clayton, manager of Jimmy Durante, phoned the heavyweight champion and reminded him of a golf date they had the next day. "And if I'm the former champion tomorrow," replied the score - knowing Louis, "would you let me caddy for you?" . . . Frank Sinatra will be profiled by the New Yorker. E. J. Kahn, jr., is writing it . . . Although little was made of it at the time, the Army's Chemical Warfare Division was much concerned about the Jap balloons which landed in the Northwest during the war. They were examined thoroughly for bacteriologic content—for fear that this was the beginning of germ warfare. For the Army learned, long before, that it would require only eight immunized men, squirting bacteriological weapons from the top of the Empire State Building on an overcast day, to level the city . . . Former Sgt. Walter Bernstein, who as a correspondent for Yank magazine was the first to reach Marshal Tito, was refused accreditation t othe Mihailovitch trial.

Two Hollywood executives who were trying to enter into a business deal with a Lever Bros. official enlisted the aid of Ben Hecht. "We want you at the next conference, as a psychologist and observer," they told Hecht. "We get no reaction from him." Hecht attended the next conference and told the Lever man: "I want to congratulate you on still having your pants. I surely thought these men would steal them by now." The Lever official laughed and Hecht told the film men:? "See? I broke ice for you . Now at least you have a reaction." . . . Mississippi's Chamber of Commerce will release five documentary shorts about its State, to combat the effects of Bilbo . . . Tom Benton, who once gave interviews about Drinking and Art, has gone on the wagon. "John Barleycorn doesn't make you less tired," said Benton. "He only makes you forget it."

Senator Glen H. Taylor of Idaho will request Attorney General Clark to start antitrust proceedings against radio receiver manufacturers for withholding FM from 1946 radio-sets. . . . Two fund-raising films for restoration work abroad now are being shown here. The first, "He Restoreth My Soul," sponsored by the Baptist and the Presbyterian Church, was narrated by Martin Gabel and written and directed by David Epstein. The second, sponosored by the Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, was narrated by Orson Welles and written by Bill Sweeney. . . . William Saroyan, still angry at the Army, has joined no veterans' organization.

Fred Allen hired a gag-writer for $100 a week. In two months he didn't contribute a single usable joke. Another noted comedian, hoping to capture Allen's formula, hired this writer for $200 a week. Again he didn't produce a single joke. But on the strength of having worked as a writer for two top radio comedians, he got another radio job at $300 a week. And he now is making $500 a week, without ever having produced one joke. . . . Billy Rose, who acquired the Orlando Weber estate next to his at Mount Kisco, hopes to establish Rose Village there. . . . Sinatra is writing "Advice to Young Girls" for Collier's magazine.

Willie, the sheep-dog owned by John Steinbeck, is the only dog ever permitted in the Empire State Tower. Max Wagner, who had taken Willie out for the day, was halted by an Empire State guard. "Have you ever heard of Seeing-Eye dogs?" Wagner asked. The guard nodded. "Well, I'm deaf, and this dog listens for me," explained Wagner. The guard stepped aside and they went up. . . . Ed Gardner of "Duffy's Tavern," in discussing some friends, told Harry Kurnitz: "Mind you, I'm not a snob." Kurnitz reassured him: "How could you be?" . . . Gene Pope, the Italian-American newspaper publisher, may invade the radio field here shortly.

Brendan Bracken, now a spokesman for the opposition in Parliament, refers to Attlee's cabinet as "the vivisectors of British industry" . . . Sid Grauman, who press-agented his Chinese Theater in Hollywood by inviting stars to leave their imprints in cement, explained last week that this stunt, which brought him international publicity, was the result of an accident—when he rushed across the freshly-laid cement floor at the theater and was berated for it by the laborer who complained: "I'll have to redo it, or else it will leave permanent imprints" . . . Ruth Gordon's autobiographic play, "Miss Jones," will be retested this fall.

Here's What Smart Modern Mother Would Say:

Get a Slimming Swimming Suit

By Ida Jean Kain

MOTHER, may I go out to swim? Yes, my darling daughter. Just get yourself a cleverly designed slimming suit before you go near the water.

The good news is that swim suits have changed—for the better. If your figure isn't all it should be, it needn't be an open secret. This season the designers have come to the rescue with suits that reveal our good points and conceal the bad ones, instead of the other way around.

There are many abbreviated affairs, but only the streamlined lassies should sally forth in a two-piece number-britches, bra and naught between but suntan. These styles come in sizes 10 to 18, but few girls requiring an 18 in large sizes there are cleverly should risk wearing one.

cut dressmaker suits that are positively slimming. Some are made of jersey, princess style to diminish the waistline, with shirred bodice and an ample flowing skirt cut like a dress. They come in sizes up to 46 and are designed to slim away 20 excess pounds.

Hefty hips? Don't let that keep you out of the water. Choose a suit with a skirt that whooshes out in flattering flares. These nip in the waist too. Some of these are made of cotton chambray, some in stripes converging at the waistline to belittle the waist.

The painfully thin girls used to be out of luck in a sad sack of a swim suit. Now they can look cute and cuddly in a little girl bloomer suit that fits snugly through the midriff, with bloomer effect seamed to wheel out from the hips. And, sh-h-h, some of them even have gay deceivers in a built-in bra!

Also, there are beguiling ruffles and short, full skirts over bloomers. A new feature is the cover-up high neckline.

But for the dimpled darlings there are plenty of decolletage, strapless affairs. And for the girls with super-figures there are brief, lovely nothings, short on material, but long on style. And, of course, there are wool knits for serious swimmers.

Look them over and choose your suit with as much care as you would an evening gown. And get in the swim. Swimming will fix anything that is wrong with your figure—and fix it quickly.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Man's Wife, 15 Years His Junior, Took Job, Visits Taverns, Against His Wishes; Now She Plans Vacation Without Him; How Curb Her?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am married and have a nine-year-old stepson. After my marriage two years ago, my wife and the boy were with me, near Army camps, while I was in the service. My wife's behavior during that time was laudatory in every respect and we were very happy despite the disparity in ages—she being 15 years my junior. She is now 25.

Following my discharge 10 months ago we came here to live. For the past eight months I have been regularly employed and able to provide an apartment and a comfortable living for the three of us. However, two months ago my wife took a full-time job paying $30 a week, as she felt a personal allowance of $40 a month (which I was giving her) didn't meet her needs. Now for my grievances:

1. She goes out about three nights a week, to visit neighborhood beer parlors where she stays until midnight in the company of men whose intentions I regard as questionable. She claims they are fellow employes but I have no way of checking this. Although I am obliged to stay home with my stepson, twice I have seen her drinking with strangers. Naturally I am jealous and suspicious.

Comes In Drunk, Rouses Household

2. SHE returns home drunk occasionally and awakens the boy and me. Already the landlady has complained twice about the noise. My wife justifies her behavior by saying she is spending her own money and is entitled to some relaxation. But is she? I have ordered her to quit her job but she ignores my pleadings.

3. Now she plans to visit her parents in New York next month, going alone to stay 10 days, and I fear a series of drunken parties with old friends may be the story. She is always boasting about the good times she had at home, and complaining about my being old fashioned and a tee-totaler. Should I permit her to go? She saw her parents last November; and I think she should stay home and keep house as other wives do. Don't you agree?

How can I persuade her to stay? I love her and am greatly worried. Perhaps in being too lenient and tolerant I am in a measure to blame. J. C.

Pleasure-Bent, Deaf to Reason

DEAR J. C.: If your wife is 25 and has a son now 9, either she was married or an illegitimate mother at the age of 16,—a past record which, when combined with her present misconduct, points to a wild, headstrong nature. Hence it is my opinion that you can't do anything about her. It is much too late in her life course for anybody to reform her character,—by either prayerful or coercive tactics.

You can only let her go her way, which obviously is pleasure-bent. She recognizes only, one master, namely, her appetite for excitement, which you were able to satisfy for a time, by making her a war bride and taking her to live in the whoopla atmosphere of Army encampments,—but which now demands a change of pace, an endless variety of men cronies, and above all, escape from the prospect of round-the-clock homemaking.

Being your gypsy companion was one thing; but being the steadfast helpmeet of a settled working man is something else,—repugnant to her taste, and she won't adapt to it.

Stooped to Folly In Marrying Her

Her tavern traipsing of recent weeks, to drink in the company of Tom, Dick and Harry,—leaving you home to mind the boy,—is outlaw behavior of the moron variety. It is a throwback to incorrigible adolescent wilfulness,—and the average upright self respecting husband would have called a showdown long before this. The fact that you've been stringing along, with worried tolerance, labels you a glutton for punishment.

However, I don't mean to say that your too-lenient reaction has contributed anything to her misconduct,—which I think is indigenous to her nature and bound to crop out in any case, in one form or another, sooner or later. But it is my conviction that your martyred performance hurts you and only you,—by prolonging your stay in a hopeless situation, which will only get more disorderly as time goes on.

You stooped to folly in marrying her,—and her loss of interest reflects no discredit on your personal qualities. Her callous indifference to her son's welfare sets the tone of her disreputable character,—which point I make because I suspect you are distracted by the false notion that you failed her, by being too old (comparatively) to keep her content. My advice is: Face the fact that you made a mistake, and take legal steps to extricate yourself. M. H.

Children Need Own Allowance To Learn Real Value of Money

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

WHEN children become aware of personal desires they wish fulfilled they usually find money beginning to figure in their thinking. The age at which children become conscious of money and desire to use it differs with the child who lives near a cluster of shops and one who does not. It might be as early as 4 years or well after school age.

As soon as the child is able to count money and go to the store with other children who handle money, he or she is ready to have certain limited sums doled out and called an "allowance."

Mrs. G. does not seem to be aware of her boy's need for a sum of money, however small, which is his own to spend as he pleases.

"My boy is 9 and has everything he wants, all the toys anyone could play with, nice clothes. We give him plenty of candy and ice cream and soft drinks. Yet, in the last two months he has twice taken money from a neighbor. When she old me I was horrified. I cannot see any reason for this behavior. This boy is adopted and I wonder if he inherited this taint from his family. I whipped him hard for the first offense, and now it has happened again."

We don't inherit behavior, only physical traits. Dishonesty has a dozen roots, but in the case of so young a child, it is born out of a necessity to do as others do. Spending money is an experience which other children have and which he is denied. So he manages to get the experience by taking money wherever he can find it. Children who take money obviously are in need of an allowance.

Do not think you fulfill your obligations when you give him those stray pennies every pocketbook contains. In such case the money he gets is never enough and the child becomes a beggar.

Let the sum be the same each week and give it at some regular time. Start with 5 cents and advance rapidly, as the child shows some discretion in his use of it, up to the sum of 10 or 15 cents weekly, which is about right for his age.

Don't expect any masterly use of these sums. Expect that he will spend and spend until he discovers the profit ensuing when he saves from week to week. Eventually he should learn both saving and sharing.

Calls for Help Ignored, Md. Youth Drowned

Middle River, Md., June 26 (AP).—Joseph Capp, 15, of Essex, was drowned yesterday in Middle River while two companions ignored his calls for help because they thought he was joking, Essex police reported.

Police said Capp's 14-year-old friends told them he pretended several times to be drowing and called them as a joke. His body was decovered and identified by Patrolmen William Schramm, Clarence Todd and Charles Knoerlein.

PENNY

DON'T YOU THINK, MARK, AFTER WHAT I'VE TOLD YOU THE ONLY SQUARE THING IS FOR ME TO MARRY BOB WOODY?
NO, I THINK WHAT HE DID WAS GREAT, CHERRY, BUT IF YOU DON'T LOVE HIM, I'M NOT GOING TO LET YOU MARRY HIM!
WHAT DO YOU MEAN BY THAT?
I MEAN I'M GOING TO WOODY AND TELL HIM YOU LOVE ME!
BOB DODD
IF YOU DO THAT, MARK TRAIL, I'LL NEVER SPEAK TO YOU AGAIN AS LONG AS I LIVE!

DOTTY

GOODBYE, PENNY, AND THANKS!
SO LONG, DAPHNE--HAVE FUN.
IT WAS THOUGHTFUL OF YOU TO HAVE DAPHNE STOP BY FOR SOME OF THAT EXPENSIVE PERFUME AUNT ELLEN GAVE YOU, DEAR.
IT WAS DEFINITELY ONLY THE DECENT THING TO DO, MOTHER. JUST BECAUSE I DON'T BELONG TO HER SORORITY AND BRUZ COULDN'T TAKE ME TO THE DANCE-----
AT LEAST I SHOULDN'T KEEP HIM FROM BEING REMINDED OF ME THROUGHOUT THE EVENING!

WHAT A LUCKY GUY I AM---
ALL RIGHT, HORACE--WHO'S THROWING THE POKER PARTY TONIGHT?!

NO REASON FOR YOU TWO TO BATTLE OVER THOSE GOLD BRICKS. FOR, AFTER ALL, THEY BELONG TO ME!
TO YOU?
AND MAY I ASK HOW YOU CAME INTO POSSESSION OF THEM?
I MADE THEM!
YOU MEAN--YOU MANUFACTURED THESE FAKE GOLD BRICKS YOURSELF?
TRUE...EXCEPT FOR ONE DETAIL. THEY'RE NOT "FAKE." THEY'RE 100% REAL!
REAL GOLD! WHAT'RE YOU TRYIN' TO HAND US?
YOU DOUBT ME? STEP INTO THE NEXT ROOM, AND SEE THE PROOF WITH YOUR OWN EYES!

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

CIVILIAN Production Administrator Jack Small, worried over race-track construction while veterans are denied homes, has now sent out orders to his branch offices to spur veterans' housing.

Some of these problems were discussed with Small at a recent closed-door meeting with representatives of the major veterans' groups, when Wesley Pearce of the Veterans of Foreign Wars broached the subject of the new race track in Monmouth County, N. J., which is being built with OPA okay.

"Now, wait a minute," interrupted Small. "That particular race track was started before we had established effective building controls.

"You can't blame me," he insisted. "I admit that it was a mistake. But it was started last November, before we instituted these stop orders on nonessential construction. The materials were already on the ground. The contractors couldn't get by with anything like that now."

Small did not, however, explain why the race track hadn't been stopped by the CPA.

Just before the meeting broke up, VFW's Jim Gillan asked Small about the 250-room addition to Washington's Shoreham Hotel which was OK'd by the CPA on the shallow grounds that the added 250 rooms were needed to promote "foreign relations."

Gillan pointed out that it might have been smarter for CPA to divert bathtubs, bricks, and other building essentials into building homes for veterans, inasmuch as visiting diplomats already enjoy a high priority on Washington hotel accommodations.

"We have plenty of bathtubs," replied Small, "and a new type of nonessential flooring material for the Shoreham which won't interfere with construction shortages."

Before veterans' spokesmen could pin him down on the number of essential housing items going into the Shoreham annex, including bricks, the CPA boss announced that he had an appointment with the Secretary of War and ended the conference.

Getting the OPA

OPA ADMINISTRATOR Paul Porter was being quizzed by Senator Homer Capehart, the Indiana "music-box master," regarding the renewal of price control.

"We don't want to destroy price control," said the Senator from Indiana. "We just want to reform it so it will work. I don't see why you fellows don't cooperate."

"Senator," replied Porter, "you remind me of the fisherman who had just pulled in a whopper and then said to the fish, 'Hold still. I'm not going to hurt you, I just want to gut you a little bit.'"

Horse-Trading at Paris

SECRETARY BYRNES' cabled reports to President Truman regarding the Big Four Conference have been reasonably optimistic. Both the Russians and Byrnes seem willing to do a little horse-trading. In fact, it was horse-trading that brought about the arrangement to evacuate Soviet troops from Bulgaria.

One victory Byrnes scored was on the evacuation of Soviet troops from Bulgaria. Here's how it happened behind closed doors in Paris.

The entire Italian question was being thrashed out, and the conversation between the two men went like this. Molotov asked Byrnes:

"What's this I hear about you Americans enlarging all your airfields in Italy? Could you be planning to pull something of a permanent nature there?"

Byrnes merely smiled and said: "What's this I hear about the new Red Army air bases in Bulgaria? Were you Russians planning to settle down and stay there indefinitely?"

"Where did you hear that?" asked Molotov.

"Oh," replied Byrnes, "we have our sources."

"Well," replied Molotov, "I wouldn't believe every rumor you hear about what's happening in our area."

"In that case," Byrnes snapped back, "don't believe everything you hear about what is happening in our zone."

This conversation gave birth to further discussion which finally led to the important agreement to evacuate all foreign troops from Italy and Bulgaria.

Getting Bevin's Goat

IN THE SAME discussion, Molotov turned to British Foreign Minister Bevin and asked if, while the issue of evacuating troops was under discussion, the British might not like to talk about evacuating their 57,000 troops from Greece.

"That's none of your damned business," snapped Bevin.

Note—Some observers wished that Secretary Byrnes had supported Molotov in urging that the British army be withdrawn from Greece. If so, there might have been results.

Paris News Blackout

HERE'S WHAT happened behind closed doors in Paris during the fight which led to the Big Four news blackout.

British Foreign Minister Bevin first proposed the blackout. Secretary Byrnes protested. He pointed out that he had to keep the American people informed of what he did in Paris, and he warned that everything would leak out sooner or later anyway.

Bevin, however, said flatly that if Britain was to get together with the other three powers on Trieste, the negotiations would have to be secret. So, reluctantly, Byrnes agreed to ending the news leaks on what is happening at the conference.

Note—At the same meeting, the Big Four named Andrei Vyshinsky, Gladwyn Jebb of Great Britain, and Ben Cohen of the State Department as members of the commission to investigate disposal of Italian colonies.

Deserts 'Grand Old Party'

WHEN FIERY Representative Charlie LaFollette of Indiana announced he was leaving the Republican Party but could not join the Democratic Party because of some of its members, it was too much for Rootin'-Tootin' Representative John Rankin of Mississippi. Rankin correctly guessed that LaFollette referred to him.

So the gentleman from Mississippi took the House floor, with LaFollette not present, to jeer at LaFollette's statement.

"I am reminded of the old fellow down in one of the Southern States whose reputation was not the best in the world," he said. "When he died they inscribed on his tombstone this epitaph:

" 'Hark ye, stranger passing by,
As you are now, so once was I.
As I am now, so you must be.
Prepare for death and follow me.'

"One of his neighbors," continued Rankin, "read this inscription and wrote these lines under it:

" 'To follow you I'd no consent
Unless I knew which way you went.' "

A day later, LaFollette took the floor to reply in his own verse:

"If I shall start a new goal to seek,
From time to time over my shoulder I'll peek.
And if by chance I find John Rankin behind,
I'll know I'm wrong and change my mind."

Wife Beats Him, So Md. Man Files Assault Charges

Baltimore, June 26 (AP).—James F. Waugh, 42, who scales 170 pounds to his 29-year-old wife's 155, told a police magistrate today that "I don't mind my wife beating me if only she wouldn't hit so hard."

Waugh, was arraigned before Magistrate Preston Pairo on charges of assaulting and striking her husband, a diemaker.

The magistrate dismissed the charges and told the couple to go home and settle their differences.

Pairo asked Waugh if his wife was stronger than he. Waugh said "definitely," adding that she once beat him so badly that he was in a hospital for 10 days.

"She used to be the captain of a basketball team in West Virginia," he said. "I don't like to hit her."

A local service organization for housing in Los Angeles gave the city $60,000, which was turned over to the Los Angeles Housing Authority.

Baldwin Loses Home County In Hot Fight

Towson, Md., June 26 (AP).—One of the bitterest political campaigns in Baltimore County's history was ended today with the three incumbent county commissioners emerging victorious over the organization of Representative H. Street Baldwin.

Going down to a resounding defeat, Baldwin failed to carry his own home county in his unsuccessful bid for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

Moreover, he appeared to have lost control of the county organization, although a few of his candidates were nominated for minor offices.

The incumbent commissioners—Christian W. Kahl, John R. Haut and Bremen A. Trail—ran as independents after Baldwin had dropped them from his slate.

Supporting William Preston Lane, jr., winner of the Democratic nomination for Governor, the incumbent commissioners rolled up a majority of some 2000 votes over a county-manager ticket to gain control of the county government.

Kahl himself, a 40-year-old accountant and president of the county board, emerged as the dominant figure in Baltimore County.

During the campaign, the three commissioners were indicted on nine counts of misfeasance in office in connection with a water and sewer contract, but were acquitted.

Tract Purchased For High School

Winchester, Va., June 26 (AP).—The Frederick County school board has approved a proposal for the purchase of a 30-acre tract just west of the Winchester city limits for $30,000 from heirs of the late Col. William W. Glass.

The property, situated on the historic northwestern grade in the heart of the commercial apple-growing section is to be the site for a general consolidated high school building for Frederick County children.

Leslie D. Kline, county school superintendent, said the new building will serve as a central high school with the present high school plants at Middletown, Stephens City, Gore, Gainesboro and Stonewall to be operated as elementary schools.

Mississippi County, Ark., is the largest cotton-producing county in the world.

Soda Lounge Clerks Transform Almost Every Word But 'Jerk'

If you should go into a drug store and ask for some DDT, you might get just that—or you might get some tunafish salad.

It would depend on whom you asked.

For DDT, in addition to being the abbrevation for a powerful insecticide, also means, in drugstore lunch-counter parlance, delicious, delightful tuna.

It is amazing what the soda jerks have done in a way of inventing a whole new language for themselves.

A one-block tour of soda counters yesterday yielded this wealth of colloquialisms:

Coffee black, with sugar, is Lena Horne.

"Shake one in the dark" stands for a chocolate milk shake. "Day break" is a vanilla ditto. (Both made with Grade A, or milk).

Eggs are hen grenades and tomato juice is a red head.

An English highball is hot tea.

For some reason or other, spiced ham is seabiscuit.

These were some of the terms gleaned from soda men Bobby Stallings, 311 6th st. se.; Harold Woodward, 1242 12th st. nw., and a chap who said "Just call me Herman. I got reasons."

These fellows have gone far beyond the "Shoot one," "Draw one," "Stretch one" stage. They are really jive artists on a different level. Herman says, however, that Chicago and New York are the places for picturesque patter.

"Washington? Naaah. Too many Southerners here. New York and Chicago have got guys from all over," says Herman.

None of the lexicographer-soda-men could say how that old phrase "86" (signifying all out) got started. Yesterday, they all agreed, sure was an "86" day.
